Phd Symposium Track: Message from Chairs

Welcome to the PhD Symposium, International Conference on Service Oriented Computing 2012 (ICSOC2012) in Shanghai, China. The ICSOC PhD Symposium 2012 is an international forum for PhD students working in all the areas addressed by the ICSOC conference (http://www.icsoc.org). We particularly encourage students that are still developing their research methodology or are somewhere in the middle of their research program to submit to this symposium.

This year, there are 12 submissions from Australia, Canada, China, France, Germany and Italy respectively. Each submission was reviewed by three program committee members. After rigorous review process, the program committee finally accepted 6 papers for presentation. During the symposium, we were happy to see good attendance and active discussions. This is particularly important to young researchers.

Finally, we would like to thank all authors, their supervisors, and all conference organizers for their support and contribution to this successful event.
