

II. THE PROBLEM

- (1) Cognition is a biological phenomenon and can only be understood as such; any epistemological insight into the domain of knowledge requires this understanding.
- (2) If such an insight is to be attained, two questions must be considered:

What is cognition as a function?

What is cognition as a process?

What follows should answer these two questions.