The original article (Werner-Lin et al. 2018) was initially published with the following list of authors: Allison Werner-Lin, Shana L. Merrill, and Amanda C. Brandt. This author list is now corrected as follows: Allison Werner-Lin, Shana L. Merrill, Amanda C. Brandt, Rachel E. Barnett, & Ellen T. Matloff. Ms. Barnett and Ms. Matloff's contribution to early conceptualization and drafting fulfill the authorship criteria for important intellectual content and have, therefore, been added to the author list. As such the authors' contributions section has been amended accordingly.

Authors' Contributions

AWL conceptualized and structured the published paper, researched and authored sections regarding developmental theory and research, interpretation of case material, scripts to common questions, and background. SM revised the original conceptual framing, made substantial textual additions and revision to the original clinical and family communication portions of the work. She updated the genetics overview and partially authored Tables. AG authored, diagrammed, and applied developmental theory to cases. RB was responsible for initial conceptual framing of the paper and conducted literature reviews from 2011–2013. She contributed to authoring supporting tables and annotations. EM oversaw the original design of the paper, wrote original scientific material regarding BRCA genetics, and critical feedback and editing of early drafts.

All authors read and approved the final manuscript.
