Since 2001, she has also been a member of the visiting faculty of the Escuela Internacional de Cine y Televisión in Cuba where she teaches biannual workshops on film history, analysis, and screenwriting. She writes about Cuban cinema and about horror film.

Antonio Gómez teaches Latin American film and culture at Tulane University. His research interests include the narratives of displacement in Argentina and Cuba, the representation of recent history in documentary films, and new poetics of documentary in Latin America. He has published articles on the work of Alejandro Agresti, Víctor Gaviria, Fernando Solanas, Hugo Santiago, Albertina Carri, and Martín Rejtman.

Germán Liñero was born in Santiago, Chile, in 1961. He completed a degree in critical theory at Universidad ARCIS, Santiago, and film direction and cinematography at École Louis Lumière, Paris, in the 1980s. Liñero is the creator of the UMATIC Project, a broad survey of video productions in Chile since 1975. He is also the author of Apuntes para una historia del video en Chile (Santiago: OchoLibros, 2010). Currently, Liñero teaches critical theory and film studies at Universidad ARCIS and Universidad de Viña del Mar, and is directing documentary films for Chilean television.

Ana M. López is Associate Provost for Faculty Affairs and Director of the Cuban and Caribbean Studies Institute at Tulane University. She is an associate professor in the Department of Communication and teaches film and cultural studies. Her research is focused on Latin American and Latino film and cultural studies. She is currently working on early sound cinema in Latin America and the radiophonic imagination. Her most recent publication is a collection of essays entitled Hollywood, Nuestra América y los Latinos (Havana, Cuba: Ediciones Unión, 2012).

Susan Lord is an associate professor in the Department of Film and Media, Queen's University, Canada. She researches in the areas of cosmopolitanism, new media, gendered urban spaces, and Cuban cinema and visual culture. Her current projects include: a forthcoming anthology entitled Images of Utopia, Documents of Belonging: Sara Gomez's Contribution to Cuban and World Cinema; a collaborative archival project, Decolonizing Cosmopolitanism: The Visual Culture of Havana from 1959 to 1968; and a monograph, Moving Images of Belonging: Friendship and Media Practices in the Non-aligned World. Her books include (with Janine Marchessault) Fluid Screens: Expanded Cinema and Digital Cultures; (with Annette Burfoot) Killing Women: Gender, Violence and Representation; (with K. Dubinsky, C. Krull, S. Mills, S. Rutherford) New World Coming: The Sixties and the Shaping of Global Consciousness.

Vinicius Navarro is an assistant professor of Cinema and Media Studies at the Georgia Institute of Technology. He has written on nonfiction and experimental media, on Brazilian documentary, and on global television formats. He is the co-author, with Louise Spence, of Crafting Truth: Documentary Form and Meaning (Rutgers University Press, 2011). His current research focuses on the migration of documentary practices to online media.

José Miguel Palacios holds an MA in Film Studies from Columbia University and is now a PhD candidate in the Department of Cinema Studies at New York University, where he is writing a dissertation on Chilean exile cinema. Other research interests include theories of third cinema, revolutionary manifestos, exile and diasporic cinemas, and contemporary documentaries from Latin America, with a special focus on Chilean cinema. His work has appeared in Revista de Comunicación y Medios, Cuadernos de la Cineteca Nacional, La Fuga, The Brooklyn Rail, and Artishock.

Juan Carlos Rodríguez is an assistant professor of Spanish in the School of Modern Languages at Georgia Tech. His research interests include Latin American and Caribbean studies, documentary film, urban culture, and critical theory. He is currently working on a book project entitled “La Habana audiovisual: Imaginarios urbanos y dilemas culturales de Cuba en el documental contemporáneo,” which looks at the role of nonfiction cinema in the formation and dissemination of urban imaginaries from Cuba. He has published articles in The Journal of Latin American Cultural Studies, Revista Iberoamericana, Latin American Perspectives, Pensamiento de los confines, and Debats, as well as interviews with Latin American artists in La Habana Elegante and A Contracorriente. He is a member of the editorial board of La Habana Elegante. He also co-edited a special number of Polygraph: An International Journal of Culture and Politics on the concepts of immanence and transcendence.

Cecilia Sayad is a lecturer at the University of Kent and the author of Performing Authorship: Self-Inscription and Corporeality in the Cinema (I.B. Tauris, 2013). She has articles in academic publications such as Framework and The Journal of Film and Video, and is a co-editor of the forthcoming Film Studies journal. She is also one of the directors of the Centre for the Interdisciplinary Study of Film and the Moving Image.

Freya Schiwy is an associate professor of Media and Cultural Studies at the University of California, Riverside. She is the author of Indianizing Film: Decolonization, the Andes, and the Question of Technology (Rutgers University Press, 2009). She has co-edited Digital Media, Cultural Production, and Speculative Capitalism (Routledge, 2011); Indisciplinar las ciencias sociales (Ediciones Abya-Yala, 2002); and a dossier on the geopolitics of knowledge in Nepantla: Views from South (2001). Her current book project, titled Broadcasting Dissent: Community Media, Latin America, and the Politics of Aesthetics, examines the notion of the political in light of contemporary debates in cultural theory and community media in Mexico and Bolivia.

Antonio Traverso is a senior lecturer in Screen Studies at Curtin University (Australia). He is a co-editor of Interrogating Trauma (Routledge, 2011), Living Through Terror (Routledge, 2011), and Trauma, Media, Arts (Cambridge Scholars, 2010). He is also a co-editor of “Political Documentary Film and Video in the Southern Cone: Argentina, Chile and Uruguay (1950s–2000s),” a special issue of Latin American Perspectives (40: 1, 2013); and “Political Documentary Cinema in Latin America: Concepts, Histories, Experiences,” a special double issue of Social Identities (19: 3–4, 2013). Traverso is currently writing a monograph on Chile’s postdictatorship documentary cinema.
