Gillian Arrighi is senior lecturer in the School of Creative Arts at the University of Newcastle, Australia. Her research on circus, and on children in the entertainment industry has been published in Theatre Journal, Australasian Drama Studies, New Theatre Quarterly, the Journal of Early Visual Popular Culture, and Theatre Research International, and in edited collections. She is associate editor of the scholarly e-journal, Popular Entertainment Studies, and her new book on the late nineteenth-century circus in Australasia, Shaping Nationhood, is due for release in 2014.

Mark Branner is assistant professor at the University of Hawai'i, Manoa and serves as the director of the TYA graduate program (theater for young audiences). He has toured nationally with various groups—including Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey, Diavolo, Monkey Waterfall—and performed extensively in Asia, most notably in Sichuan Opera, a regional form of Chinese traditional theater. He and his family operate CiRSCO Redempto, a community outreach program utilizing theater and the circus arts to benefit children from the Nosu Yi minority nationality of central China.

Noel Brown received his PhD in Film from Newcastle University, UK, in 2010. He is the author of The Hollywood Family Film: A History, from Shirley Temple to Harry Potter (I. B. Tauris, 2012), and the co-editor (with Bruce Babington) of Beyond Disney: Children's Films and Family Films in Global Cinema (I. B. Tauris, forthcoming). He is currently researching the history of British children's and family-orientated cinema, and writing a short book on the children's film genre for Wallflower Press.

Gilli Bush-Bailey is Visiting Professor in Women's Performance History at The Royal Central School of Speech and Drama, following 12 years in the Department of Drama & Theater at Royal Holloway University where she was Professor of Women's Theater History. She has published extensively on the professional practice of actresses, managers, and female playwrights, bringing her own professional practice as a child performer into new dialogues with historiography and autobiographical performance. Her recent publications include Performing Herself: AutoBiography & Fanny Kelly's Dramatic Recollections (Manchester University Press, 2011), and a contributing chapter "Re:Enactment" in the Cambridge Companion to Theater History (2012).

Ken Cerniglia is a dramaturg, writer, and director. He holds a PhD in theater history and criticism from the University of Washington and has published articles and essays in Theatre Journal, Theatre Annual, Broadway: An Encyclopedia of Theater and American Culture, and Tarzan's Global Adventures: From King of the Jungle to International Icon.

Broderick D. V. Chow is lecturer in Theater and Drama at Brunel University, London, UK, where he teaches theater history and leads the musical theater strand of the undergraduate theater program. His research concerns the intersections of performance practices, politics, ethics, and industrial change, especially in the world of work. He has published and presented on professional and amateur wrestling, parkour (free-running), and actor training. He is currently preparing a monograph on the fitness industry, masculinity, and the neoliberalization of work. He is co-editor (with Alex Mangold) of Žižek and Performance, forthcoming with Palgrave 2014.

Dyan Colclough teaches in the Department of History and Economic History at Manchester Metropolitan University. Her PhD entitled, "Manufacturing Childhood: The Contribution of Child Labour to the Success of the British Theatrical Industry, 1875–1903" was shortlisted in 2009 by The Economic History Society for the Thirsk-Feinstein PhD Dissertation Prize, and she has presented conference papers that include "Marketing the Pantomime Child: The Theatrical Training Industry and Its Practices" (University of Birmingham 2010) and "The Legacy of 'At Homes' for Victorian Middle Class Women 1780–1900" (Royal Holloway University of London 2011). Her most recent publication is entitled "Oh No It Wasn't!?: Theatrical Revelations from Child Performers During the 1930s," Manchester Regional History Review, (Spring 2012).

Rossella Del Prete is assistant professor of Economic History and Adjunct Professor of Financial History and Labor History, in the Department of Economics, Management and Quantitative Methods, Università degli Studi di Sannio, Benevento, Italy. She has a PhD in economic history and her research fields are the economic histories of art and culture, economic institutions, education, labor and that of women. Her most recent publication is “Tra botteghe, cappelle e teatri: l’articolazione socio-professionale della famiglia dei musicisti a Napoli in età moderna,” in G. Da Molin ed. Ritratti di famiglia e infanzia. Modelli differenziali nella società del passato (Bari: Cacucci, 2011), 51–71.

Victor Emeljanow is emeritus professor in the School of Creative Arts at the University of Newcastle, Australia, and General Editor of the e-journal Popular Entertainment Studies. He has published widely on subjects ranging from the reception of Chekhov in Britain and the career of Theodore Kommissarjevsky to Victorian popular dramatists. He co-wrote with Jim Davis the award-winning Reflecting the Audience: London Theatregoing 1840–1880 in 2001 (University of Iowa Press) and his most recent book is “Herbert Beerbohm Tree” in the Pickering and Chatto series, Lives of Shakespearian Actors (2012).

Lisa Mitchell is an arts educator with a background in acting, directing, and producing. Currently, she is the Education & Outreach Manager at Disney Theatrical Group, where she develops the company’s educational initiatives and engages young people through Broadway and student-driven productions. She is the Education Director for Two Turns Theater Company, co-chairs the Education & Outreach committee of The Broadway Green Alliance, co-chairs the Theater in Our Schools conference, and serves on the Teaching Artist Affairs committee for the New York City Arts in Education Roundtable. She holds a Master’s Degree in Educational Theater from The City College of New York.

Laura Noszlopy is an anthropologist, writer, and editor specializing in Indonesian culture and society, and biographical writing; her PhD is from the Sainsbury Research Unit at the University of East Anglia. She is an Honorary Research Associate in the Department of Drama and Theatre at Royal Holloway, University of London, and also works as an editor for her consultancy katakata, the Lontar Foundation (Jakarta), Indonesia and the Malay World and Inside Indonesia, among others. She has published widely on contemporary Indonesian performance and is co-editor (with Matthew I. Cohen) of Contemporary Southeast Asian Performance: Transnational Perspectives (Cambridge Scholars Press, 2010).

Darren O’Donnell is a novelist, essayist, playwright, director, designer, performer, and nascent urban planner. He is the Artistic Director and Research director of Mammalian Diving Reflex and co-founder of The Torontonians. His books include Social Acupuncture, which argues for an aesthetics of civic engagement and Your Secrets Sleep with Me, a novel about difference, love, and the miraculous. His best-known work is Haircuts by Children, which was first created in collaboration with the children of Parkdale Public School in 2006. In addition to his artistic practice, he is currently an MSc candidate in Urban Planning at the University of Toronto.

Shih-Ching H. Picucci received her Master's degree (2005) in TESOL at the University of Liverpool, UK. After a time as a lecturer at Lung Wha University of Science and Technology, Taiwan, she is presently undertaking a doctoral degree in Education at Durham University, UK. Her research interests include Chinese language and culture teaching, intercultural communication, identity, and material/textbook analysis. Currently, she is teaching GCE A/AS level in Chinese at Durham Chinese School and her upcoming chapter about textbook analysis of A level Mandarin Chinese in the United Kingdom will appear in the volume The Teaching of Asian Languages in the 21st Century, to be published by Cambridge Scholars Publishing.

Jamie Skidmore is professor in the English Department at Memorial University of Newfoundland, specializing in theater arts and video production. He has been working in the theater for almost 30 years as a designer, director, technician, author, and educator. His work in academia focusses on semiotics, performance theory, circuses, sideshows, and Newfoundland theater.

Shauna Vey is associate professor at the New York City College of Technology of the City University of New York. Her work has been published in Theatre Survey, Theatre History Studies, Boyhood in America, and Querying Difference in Theatre History. She is currently finishing a book on the Marsh Troupe, a professional company of child actors that toured the United States and Australia in the mid-nineteenth century.
