

CONTRIBUTORS

Gerald Baker is an independent scholar-director based in South-West London where he directed a staged reading of Double Falsehood in April 2010 as well as full stagings of a seven-woman Henry V and a two-woman adaptation of Dr Faustus, amongst other early modern and contemporary productions. He has also written on the Calverley murder plays and the evidence for role-sharing in early modern drama and is currently enquiring how to identify nonverbal collaboration in early modern plays.

Joyce Boro is Associate Professor of English at Université de Montréal. Her work focuses on the English reception of Spanish romance. An editor of Lord Berners's Castell of Love (MRTS 2007) and Margaret Tyler's Mirror of Princely Deeds and Knighthood (MHRA forthcoming 2012), she has published on translation, Fletcher, and Grisel y Mirabella.

Terri Bourus is an Associate Professor of English Drama at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis (IUPUI). She is also the Director of the New Oxford Shakespeare Centre at IUPUI and one of the General Editors of that edition. In 2009, Bourus founded Hoosier Bard Productions, for which she directed Young Hamlet (2011), The History of Cardenio (2012), and two versions of Measure for Measure (2013). Bourus has edited multimedia editions of Hamlet and A Midsummer Night's Dream for Sourcebooks' Shakespeare and digital editions of two John Fletcher plays. She has published on film/stage, the early modern book trade, Shakespeare, Middleton, and most recently, the theatrical evolution of Taylor's reconstruction of Cardenio in The Quest for Cardenio (2012). Bourus is the recipient of several prestigious teaching and research awards from Indiana University.

Roger Chartier is Professor at the Collège de France, Directeur d'études at the Ecole des hautes études en sciences sociales in Paris, and Annenberg Visiting Professor in History at the University of Pennsylvania. He is one of the world's leading authorities on the history of the book, publishing, and reading in a perspective that associates cultural history and textual criticism. His latest monograph in that field to be translated into English is Inscription and Erasure: Literature and Written Culture from the Eleventh to the Eighteenth Century (University of Pennsylvania Press, 2007). In fall 2011 he published in French a book titled Cardenio entre Cervantes and Shakespeare. Histoire d'une pièce perdue (Gallimard), published in an English translation in fall 2012.

David L. Gants is Associate Professor at Florida State University, where he also teaches in the interdisciplinary History of Text Technologies program. He is editor of Publications of the Bibliographical Society of America, and digital editor of The Cambridge Edition of the Works of Ben Jonson (2012). He began his career studying the stationer William Stansby, who printed Jonson's Works (1616) as well as Thomas Shelton's translation of Don Quixote (1612). Formerly Canada Research Chair in Humanities Computing, he has won fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Folger Library, the Houghton Library, and the Newberry Library.

Carla Della Gatta is a doctoral student in the Interdisciplinary PhD in Theatre and Drama program at Northwestern University. Her research focuses on the intersection of contemporary Shakespearean productions and the performance of Latinidad. She studies bilingual Shakespearean adaptations, the role of Shakespeare Festivals in cultural exchange, and Spanish Golden Age theater. She has already published an essay on the Spanish contribution to Greenblatt's multinational Cardenio project.

Huw Griffiths is Senior Lecturer in English at the University of Sydney. His contribution to the Oxford University Press Quest for Cardenio volume (2012) traces Double Falsehood's hidden histories of male friendship.

Christopher Hicklin is Fletcher scholar and Associate Editor of the Early Modern London Theatres website, an international collaborative project by the Records of Early English Drama at the University of Toronto, the Centre for Computing in the Humanities at King's College London, and the English Department of the University of Southampton.

Lori Leigh is Lecturer in the Department of Theatre and Drama at Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand. She was assistant director of the 2009 production there of Taylor's reconstruction of The History of Cardenio, and has published on that text and on Theobald's Double Falsehood in Shakespeare (2011) and The Quest for Cardenio (2012). She has worked on productions and readings of plays both Off-Broadway and regionally in the United States, collaborating as a performer, puppeteer, writer, director, and dramaturg. While in New York, she assisted Shirley Kaplan in productions at Ensemble Studio Theatre, and her production of Lauren Wilson's Wedding Duet was a Samuel French Festival Finalist. Lori's play Lessen has been produced at the Bailiwick Repertory Theatre in Chicago and her short play Wi(n)dow on the World was selected for the Edward Albee/Great Plains Theatre Conference Short Play Lab. In New Zealand, she directed Dog Sees God for BATS Theatre and Wellington Summer Shakespeare's production of The Winter's Tale in the Wellington Botanic Gardens. She has also served as a dramaturg for Auckland Theatre Company (Romeo and Juliet), a script advisor for Playmarket (NZ Agency for Playwrights) and a mentor for Young and Hungry Festival of New Plays. She assists part-time at Shakespeare Globe Centre New Zealand where she has directed Twelfth Night and Much Ado about Nothing.

John V. Nance has taught at St. John's University in New York City and is currently a PhD student in early modern literature at Florida State University. His article "Gross Anatomies: Mapping Matter and Literary Form" is included in the anthology The Age of Nashe (Ashgate, forthcoming).

Vimala Pasupathi is Assistant Professor at Hofstra University. Her work appears in Research Opportunities in Medieval and Renaissance Drama, Modern Philology, ELH, Early Theatre, Shakespeare, and Celtic Shakespeare: The Bard and the Borderers (Ashgate, 2012).

Kevin C. Robbins is Associate Professor of Early Modern and Modern French History at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis. His research work now extends to the cultural history of art and the history of the print worlds of Paris, especially radical, illustrated serial publications of the modern era.

Emily Schwank has been known to characterize herself at unguarded moments as "stubborn, arrogant, smart, insecure, confident, curious, noisy, and a middle child." A photographer since the age of 13, she strives everyday to see, really see; it seems so many images of grace and tragedy slip by without acknowledgment because the world is unwilling to open its eyes—not only to the obvious, but to the possible.

Elizabeth Spiller is Professor of English and Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Florida State University. She is the author of Reading and the History of Race in the Renaissance (Cambridge University Press, 2011) and Science, Reading, and Renaissance Literature (Cambridge University Press, 2004), and was formerly editor of the Journal for Early Modern Cultural Studies. Her first published article was on Don Quixote, which is also the subject of a chapter of her most recent book. She has held major year-long fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, Mellon Foundation, and Fulbright Foundation. Her work has been published in such journals as Renaissance Quarterly, SEL, Criticism, Modern Language Quarterly, South Central Review, Renaissance and Reformation, and Renaissance Drama. Her essay on "Shakespeare and the Making of Early Modern Science" was awarded the Kirby Prize for the best article of 2009 from the South Central MLA.

Gary Taylor is Distinguished Research Professor at Florida State University. He worked for eight years as one of the general editors of the Oxford University Press Complete Works of Shakespeare (published in 1986–1987). He is now lead General Editor of the New Oxford Shakespeare project, forthcoming from OUP in 2016. He has also coedited John Fletcher's The Tamer Tamed, and was General Editor of OUP's 2007 edition of The Collected Works of Thomas Middleton ("our other Shakespeare"), which won the Modern Languages Association prize for a Distinguished Scholarly Edition and the Elizabeth Dietz award for Outstanding Book in Early Modern Studies. He is editor of two series published by Palgrave: "The History of Text Technologies" and "Signs of Race."

Ayanna Thompson is Professor of English at George Washington University. She specializes in Renaissance drama and focuses on issues of race and performance. She is the author of two books: Passing Strange: Shakespeare, Race, and Contemporary America (Oxford University Press, 2011) and Performing Race and Torture on the Early Modern Stage (Routledge, 2008), and the editor of two books: Weyward Macbeth: Intersections of Race and Performance (Palgrave Macmillan, 2010; coedited with Scott Newstok) and Colorblind Shakespeare: New Perspectives on Race and Performance (Routledge, 2006). In addition, she is the guest editor of two special editions of scholarly journals: “Shakespeare, Race, and Performance,” Shakespeare Bulletin (special issue 27.3, Fall 2009) and “Actors of Color in Shakespeare,” Borrowers and Lenders: The Journal of Shakespeare and Appropriation (special issue 4.1, Spring/Summer 2008). Her essays and reviews have appeared in Shakespeare Quarterly, Renaissance Quarterly, Seventeenth-Century News, The Eighteenth Century, The Journal of Popular Culture, Textus, and Arthuriana.

Steven Wagschal is Associate Professor and Chair of the Department of Spanish and Portuguese at Indiana University (Bloomington). The author of The Literature of Jealousy in the Age of Cervantes, he has published essays on Don Quixote in Cervantes: The Bulletin of the Cervantes Society of America (2012) and Cervantes in Perspective (Madrid, 2013). He has also published essays, in English and Spanish, on Góngora, Calderón, Cristóbal de Castillejo, and on Cervantes’s “Romance de los celos.”
