Oroub El-Abed has her PhD in Development Studies at the University of London, School of Oriental and African Studies and has consulted widely in the area of forced migration and Palestinian refugees in the Middle East. Dr. El-Abed is the author of Unprotected: Palestinians in Egypt since 1948 (Washington, DC and Ottawa, CA: Institute for Palestine Studies and the International Development Research Centre, 2009).

Anita H. Fábos is an anthropologist and Associate Professor in the Department of International Development, Community and Environment at Clark University. She has conducted ethnographic research with Muslim Arab Sudanese forced migrants in the Middle East, Europe, and North America. Fábos’s work explores transnational ethnic and religious identity, race, displacement and gender among Muslim refugees at a time of intensifying discourses of ‘security’ and ‘Islamic spiritual geography’. Her book, Brothers’or Others? propriety and Gender for Muslim Arab Sudanese in Egypt (2010) is published by Berghahn Books. Fábos is currently researching the transnational performance of Sudanese music in the diaspora.

Homa Hoodfar is Professor of Anthropology at Concordia University, Montreal. Her primary research and expertise lies in legal and political
