
About the Authors

Albarran, Alan B., Dr., is a full professor and former Chair of the Department of Media Arts at the University of North Texas, Denton, TX, USA. His research revolves around the management and economics of the media industries. The author of 14 books, many articles in scholarly journals and several book chapters in edited volumes, Dr. Albarran previously served as the Editor of the Journal of Media Economics (1997–2005) and the International Journal on Media Management (2005–2008).

Alhassan, Abubakar D., Ph.D., is a lecturer at Bayero University, Kano, Nigeria, where he teaches courses in communication law and ethics, International communication, media and religion and history of mass media. From 2011 to 2015 he served as Special Assistant on legislative research and policy analysis to the Deputy Chief Whip of Nigeria's House of Representatives & Head of Nigerian Standing Delegation to the ACP-EU Joint Parliamentary Assembly.

Altmeyen, Klaus-Dieter, Prof. Dr., is a professor at the School of Journalism at Catholic University Eichstaett-Ingolstadt. His research focuses on the economics, management, and organization of media; the structures, ethics, and accountability of journalism and media; and entertainment acquisition and production.

Bachmann, Claudius is a research associate at the Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, Faculty for Business and Economics and lectures on Business Ethics and Christian Social Sciences. He studied Catholic Theology, Christian Social Science, and Economics at the Westfälische Wilhelms-Universität Münster, Germany. He also works as a project manager of the 'Bund katholischer Unternehmer' (BKU) and is researcher at the 'Center for Corporate Citizenship' in Ingolstadt. From 2012 to 2014 he developed the German-Arab research and dialogue project 'Practical Wisdom for Sustainable Management'. His research interests fall at the intersection of economics, ethics, and education, specifically in the field of responsible leadership and practical wisdom.

Bachmann, Philipp, Dr. des., is a postdoctoral researcher at the Institute of Mass Communication and Media Research (IPMZ), University of Zurich. His research interest focuses on strategic communication, corporate social responsibility, and media organizations. He is editorial manager of the international journal Studies in Communication Sciences (SComS).

Bichler, Klaus, MMag., PhD candidate at the Department of Media and Communication Sciences, University of Klagenfurt. Lecturer at the University of Vienna and the University of Krams. Research interests: journalism research, media ethics, web 2.0, literature and media. E-mail: klaus.bichler@gmx.at.

Bracker, Isabel, Dipl.-Online-Journ. (FH), is working as a research associate at the School of Journalism at the Catholic University of Eichstaett-Ingolstadt. Her main area of research is corporate social responsibility and corporate citizenship for media companies, the communication of these concepts by the companies as well as in the media, and the structuration theory.

Doyle, Gillian is Professor of Media Economics and Director of the Centre for Cultural Policy Research (CCPR) at the University of Glasgow where she directs Glasgow's MSc in Media Management. Gillian has carried out and supervised studies of economic and policy aspects of media for the Council of Europe, European Commission and OECD and her research has been translated and published in several languages. Gillian is former President of the Association for Cultural Economics International (ACEI).

Elsäßer, Marc, Dipl. Oec., is doctoral candidate and research associate at the Chair for Information and Communication Management at the German University of Speyer. His publications focus on media and internet management, business model management and marketing.

Franzetti, Annika is lecturer and research associate at the School of Journalism at the Catholic University of Eichstaett-Ingolstadt. Her research and teaching interests primarily focus on political communication, journalism research, and media management.

Gershon, Richard A., Ph.D., is Professor and Co-Director of the Telecommunications & Information Management program at Western Michigan University where he teaches courses in Media Management and Telecommunications. Gershon is the author of six books, including Digital Media & Innovation: Management and Design, Strategies in Communication (Sage, 2016). He is a Fulbright scholar having held visiting appointments at the University of Navarra, Spain and Nihon University, Japan. Gershon is a founding member of the Information and Telecommunications Education and Research Association (ITERA) where he served as the organization's first President.

Gossel, Britta, Dipl.-Medienwiss., is research assistant at Media and Communication Management group, Technische Universität Ilmenau (Germany). Her research focuses organization and entrepreneurship in the area of media, technology and engineering, including entrepreneurial journalism. She is alumna of trust for the Foundation of German Business and worked as spokesperson of a Vice-President of the European Parliament in Brussels, Strasbourg and Berlin. E-mail: britta.gossel@tu-ilmenau.de.

Greck, Regina, Dr., is research associate at the the School of Journalism at the Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt (Germany). Her research interests focus on political communication a mediatization, journalism research, media management as well as elite research.

Gutiérrez-Rentería, María Elena, PhD, is a Professor in the School of Business and Economics at the Universidad Panamericana in Guadalajara, México. She was Visiting Scholar Professor at the College of Media & Communication, Texas Tech University, United States. Gutiérrez Rentería is a member of the National System of Researchers in Mexico. Gutiérrez Rentería currently serves on the editorial boards of the International Journal on Media Management and the International Journal for Hispanic Media. E-mail: egutierr@up.edu.mx.

Habann, Frank, Prof. Dr., is full professor of media management at the University of Applied Sciences, Offenburg, Germany, since 2010. He focuses his research on media innovation, media entrepreneurship and international media development. He has published several scientific contributions in these fields and has been working as researcher and lecturer for media management and marketing at the Universities of Cologne, St. Gallen (Switzerland), Zurich (Switzerland, invited professor) and Mainz before.

Habisch, André, Prof. Dr., is a trained Economist and Theologian and teaches Social- and Business Ethics at the Faculty for Business and Economics, Catholic University of Eichstätt-Ingolstadt. Prof. Habisch is a Scientific consultant of the Catholic Entrepreneurs Union (BKU) in Germany as well as the Global Association of Christian Entrepreneurs and Managers (UNIAPAC). Moreover, as a Associate Research Director at the Academy of Business in Society (ABIS), Brussels, he coordinates a project on 'Practical Wisdom in Management from the Religious and Spiritual traditions' since 2009. He serves as an Associate Editor of 'Business Ethics—A European Review' and is the Co-editor of a series of Special Issues of the Journal of Management Development on Practical Wisdom from the Spiritual traditions. Moreover, he has published in the Journal of Business Ethics, Business Strategy and the Environment, Journal of Management Education, Zeitschrift für Umweltrecht.

Hangartner, Stefanie A., M.A., is a research and teaching associate at the IPMZ-Institute of Mass Communication and Media Research at the University of Zurich (Switzerland). She writes her dissertation thesis on communicative legitimation strategies of legacy news media organizations. Her research interests lie in the fields of media management, strategic communication, organizational sociology, and persuasion effects.

Hollifield, C. Ann, is the Thomas C. Dowden Professor on Media Research in the Grady College of Journalism & Mass Communication at the University of Georgia in the United States. She also directs the graduate Certificate Program in Media Analytics. Her research focuses on the structural effects of markets and organizations on news media performance, international media sustainability, and the effects of media on economic development.

Ingenhoff, Diana, Prof. Dr., is full Professor of Media and Communication Research and currently Vice-Dean of the Faculty of Economics and Social Sciences at the University of Fribourg (Switzerland). Since 2015, she is President of the Swiss Association of Communication and Media Research (SACM). Her research interest focus on Organizational Communication, Media Economics, and International Public Relations, especially with regard to Public Diplomacy, Reputation Research, Responsibility Communication, and New Technologies.

Karmasin, Matthias, PhD, is director of the institute for comparative media and communication studies of the Austrian Academy of Sciences and the AAU (Alpen Adria University Klagenfurt). Furthermore, he is a full professor and chair for media and communications sciences at the University of Klagenfurt. He is corresponding member of the philosophic-historic class of the Austrian Academy of Sciences. He is an expert for media accountability and he has published extensively on media ethics and media management, political communication, communication theory and media practice. E-mail: Matthias.karmasin@aau.at.

Moellinger, Terry, Dr., is an Adjunct Professor in the Department of Media Arts at the University of North Texas. His primary areas of research focuses on media economics and organizations, as well as Internet-based communication and the changing patterns of both communication and interpersonal relations that these communication modalities have influenced. A second line of research deals with media content and examines media presentations for their semiotic meaning.

Rinsdorf, Lars, Prof. Dr., is professor for journalism at Stuttgart Media University (HdM), Germany. His fields of research are newsroom management, innovation management, and news media usage. Before joining HdM he used to be head of research and development for a huge German newspaper publisher. Rinsdorf got a degree in journalism and spatial planning at TU Dortmund, Germany. Since 2014, he's vice president of the German Communication Association (DGPUK). E-mail: rinsdorf@hdm-stuttgart.de.

Scholz, Christian, Prof. Dr., since 1986 full professor of Management at the Faculty of Law and Economics at the Universität des Saarlandes in Saarbrücken (Germany). He is founding director of the European Institute of Advanced Behavioural Management (EIABM) with its MBA-Program. 2004 he started together with John Lavine the International Media Management Academic Association (IMMAA). His research interests include both Human Resource Management and Media Management, as well as changes in the work environment (Darwiportunism). Currently his focus is on Digitalization and the impact on new structures of work, in particular with respect to the Generation Z.

Schuhknecht, Stephanie, Diploma in International Cultural and Business Studies, is a PhD student at the WFI, Ingolstadt School of Management at the Catholic University of Eichstaett-Ingolstadt. Her main areas of research are corporate social responsibility and corporate citizenship for energy providers, as well as social innovation in the energy sector.

Siegert, Gabriele, Prof. Dr., is full professor of communication science and media economics at the IPMZ-Institute of Mass Communication and Media Research, University of Zurich, Switzerland. She is member of the Swiss Federal Media Commission, president of the Foundation for Research in Science and the Humanities at the UZH and member of editorial and advisory boards. Her research interests include media economics, media management and advertising.

Sylvie, George, associate professor of journalism at The University of Texas at Austin, studies newspaper innovation, change, and decision-making, specifically newspaper editors' decision-making styles, personal value systems, ethics, and approaches to management. His works include Newsroom Decision-Making: Under New Management (Media XXI, 2012); a leading media management textbook, Media Management: A Casebook Approach (Routledge, 2015); and Time, Change, and the American Newspaper (Erlbaum, 2002). Sylvie is on the editorial boards of Journalism & Mass Communication Quarterly, The Journal of Media Economics, The International Journal on Media Management, and The Journal of Media Business Studies.

Trappel, Josef, Prof. Dr., is full professor of media policy and media economics at the Department of Communications Studies at the University of Salzburg (Austria). His research work concentrates on media and democracy, changes in mass media structures and their implications on mass communication, national and international media policy and media economics. Since 2006, he is the convenor of the Euromedia Research Group.

van Loon, Joost, Prof. Dr., is Professor of General Sociology and Sociological Theory at the Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt. His main research interests concern the fields of Media, Technology, Risk, Space, Sociological Theory and Empirical Philosophy. He is currently the Editor-in-Chief of the journal Space and Culture and vice chair of the "Sociology of Culture" Research Network of the European Sociological Association.

von Rimscha, M. Björn, Prof. Dr., is Professor of Media Business at Department of Communication at the Johannes Gutenberg-University Mainz (Germany). His research interest focuses on the drivers of media production on the structural, organizational and individual level. He was speaker of the media economics division in the German Communication Association and serves on the board of the European media management association (emma).

Will, Andreas, Prof. Dr., is a full professor of Media and Communication Management at Technische Universität Ilmenau (Germany). His research focuses media management, digital media markets, entrepreneurship and crowdsourcing/crowdfunding. He holds a Dr. rer. Pol. in Business Administration/Information Systems from Augsburg University and a Diploma in Industrial Engineering from Karlsruhe University of Technology. E-mail: andreas.will@tu-ilmenau.de.

Wirtz, Bernd W., Prof. Dr., is full professor (Chair for Information and Communication Management) at the German University of Speyer (Germany). His publications focus on media and internet management, business model management, marketing, electronic business and e-government (approximately 250 publications). He is an editorial board member of the journal Long Range Planning, the Journal of Media Business Studies, The International Journal on Media Management, the International Journal of Business Environment, the International Journal of Public Administration and the International Review on Public and Nonprofit Marketing.