About the Contributors

Kwasi Ansu-Kyeremeh (Ph.D., La Trobe University, Melbourne, Australia) is an associate professor at the School of Communication Studies, University of Ghana, Legon. He was the Director of the School from 2000 to 2005 and also Director of the CODESRIA Institute of Media in African Governance at Dakar, Senegal in 2005. An author/editor of many books, journal articles, and chapters, his works include Communication, Education and Development: Exploring an African Cultural Setting (1997) and Indigenous Communication in Africa: Concept, Practice and Prospects (2005). Currently, he serves as the coeditor of the Africa Media Review.

Saule Barlybaeva, professor of Historical Sciences at the faculty of journalist of Al-Faraby Kazakh National University and chair of Mass Media and Advertising Management, has worked as a journalist, editor, and sport commentator on Kazakh television. Former head of the UNESCO Chair on Journalism and Communication, Dr. Barlybaeva has organized regional and international conferences, won grants, coordinated programs, and authored a number of monographs.

Nico Carpentier, Ph.D., is a media sociologist working at the Free (VUB) and Catholic (KUB) Universities of Brussels, Belgium. Codirector of CEMESO and an Executive Board member of the European Communication Research and Education Association (ECREA), his publications include Médias et citoyens sur la même longueur d’onde (coauthor, 2002); BBC’s Video Nation as a Participatory Media Practice (2003); Media in Movement, 22 Journalistic Experiments to Enhance Citizen participation (coauthor, 2004); The Ungraspable Audience (coeditor, 2004); Identity, Contingency and Rigidity (2005); Towards a Sustainable Information Society (coeditor, 2005); Discourse Theory and Cultural Analysis (coeditor, in press), and Reclaiming the Media: Communication Rights and Democratic Media Roles (coeditor, in press).

Miguel Angel Casado has been a researcher at the University of the Basque Country since 2003. He is in receipt of a research grant from the Basque government in order to do a Ph.D. on policies to increase the audiovisual industry in the Spanish Autonomous Communities. He has published articles in the principal Spanish communication journals and international reviews, his latest being “EU Media Programmes: Little Investment, Few Results,” published in Northern Lights, edited by the University of Copenhagen in 2006.

Tomas Coppens, who worked as a teaching and research assistant at the Department of Communication Studies at Ghent University, in Belgium between 1996 and 2006, has specialized in the study on broadcasting systems and published extensively on local and national broadcasting issues. In 2004, he obtained a Ph.D. with a thesis on the future of public service broadcasting in Europe and later advised the government on changes in its media policy. He currently resides in Argentina.

Alfonso Gumucio Dagron is a development communication specialist, filmmaker, and writer from Bolivia, with working experiences in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Caribbean. He is the author of various studies on film and communication, such as the well received Making Waves: Stories of Participatory Communication for Social Change (2001) and the Anthology: Communication for Social Change Historic and Contemporary Readings (2006). He is currently the Managing Director for Programmes at the Communication for Social Change Consortium.

Dogu Ergil is a professor with the Political Science Faculty of Ankara University, Turkey who has been involved with Radio Democracy at the Center for the Research of Societal Problems.

Eric Freedman is associate professor in the School of Communication and Multimedia Studies at Florida Atlantic University. An independent video artist and public access producer, his experimental video work has been shown at such venues as the Long Beach Museum of Art, the American Film Institute, and Ars Electronica in Linz, Austria. His forthcoming book Transient Images (University of Minnesota) examines the assumptions that underpin the exhibition of personal images, occasional photographs, and amateur video in public domains.

University since 2003, Dr. Fuller serves as chair of her local (Wilbraham, MA) public access cable television station.

Carmelo Garitaonandia, a professor of Journalism at the University of the Basque Country, graduated in Law from the University of Madrid, and was awarded a masters degree in Audiovisual Communication by the University of Paris VII, and a Ph.D. in Political Sciences. He was a member of the founding Board of Directors of the Basque Public Service Radio and Television Corporation and a visiting scholar at the School of Communication and Theatre at Temple University. Professor Garitaonandia is the author, coauthor/editor of over 20 books and numerous articles published in scientific journals, including Decentralisation in the Global Era (1996) and Television on Your Doorstep (1999). He was the first editor of ZER, the Spanish Journal of Communication, available at <http://www.ehu.es/zer>.

John W. Higgins has been involved with community-based radio and video since 1974. An associate professor of Mass Communication at Menlo College, his research interests include grassroots alternative media, critical pedagogies, media technologies, and digital storytelling. He serves as president of the board of the San Francisco Community Television Corporation, the nonprofit organization managing (public access) station.

Yesudhasan Thomas Jayaprakash (Ph.D., Edith Cowan) is a senior lecturer at the Department of Mass Communication, Curtin University of Technology, Sarawak, Malaysia. The 2000 joint winner of Asian Radio Write Award, instituted by the Radio Corporation of Singapore (RCS) and Asian Media Information Centre (AMIC), Singapore, he recently co-convened an international conference in Malaysia titled “Media and Identity in Asia.” He has presented numerous international conference papers in the context of radio and television consumption in Asia.

M. Abul Kashem (Ph.D., The University of Reading, UK), a professor of Technology Transfer and Sustainable Agricultural Development in the Department of Agricultural Extension Education, Bangladesh Agricultural University, Mymensingh, is the (co)author of two books and numerous professional reports and journal articles. In 1997, he was awarded the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS) Invitational Fellowship to conduct research in Japan.

Ritva Levo-Henriksson (Dr. Social Sciences, University of Helsinki, Finland), is senior lecturer at the Department of Communication at the University of Helsinki, Finland. Interested in cross-cultural and intercultural communication, her publications include Eyes upon Wings: Culture in Finnish and U.S. Television News and Arkkityyppi ja versiot. Working with media and ethnic minority issues in the context of Native Americans, she has visited many American Indian reservations, interviewing Hopis and Navajos about media-related issues.

Rogério Santana Lourenco is an independent researcher with a background in anthropology and a master’s in Visual Communication at Federal Fluminense University. He works as manager for educational multimedia in Research and Documentation at Multira and has volunteered as Web master for the Brazilian Association of Popular Video (ABVP), where he now serves on the board.

Hillel Nossek is academic director of the College of Management and professor of Communication at the New School of Media Studies in Tel Aviv, Israel. His publications have appeared in Journal of Narrative and Life History, International Journal of Public Opinion Research, Kesher, and Communications: The European Journal of Communication Research.

Mairi Innes Pileggi (Ph.D., Temple) teaches in the Communications Department at Dominican University. She has presented numerous papers and published articles on topics related to communication, technology, and culture.

Elinor Rennie, a Research Fellow at the Institute for Social Research, Swinburne University of Technology, Australia, is currently working on “Youthworx: Youth Media and Social Enterprise,” which forms part of the program of the ARC Centre of Excellence for Creative Industries and Innovation. The author of Community Media: A Global Introduction (2006), she serves as co–vice chair of the Community Communication section of IAMCR.

Lorna Roth is associate professor in the Department of Communication Studies at Concordia University, Montreal, Canada. Involved in broadcasting policy analysis, minority communication/cultural rights lobbying and consulting with First Peoples and multicultural/multiracial groups since the late 1970s, she is the author of Something New in the Air: The Story of First Peoples Television Broadcasting in Canada (2005).

Alma Rusetmova, a senior teacher of English, Russian, and Kazakh at Kazakh National University, has worked as a translator and written about communication and mass media.

Frieda Saeys is a professor at the Department of Communication Studies at Ghent University, Belgium. Her main focus is on broadcasting systems and policy, representation of women and minorities in the media, and evolutions in media use and reception. She has published extensively on these issues and participates in several national and international organizations, networks, and initiatives (Global Media Monitoring Project, E-Clipse, Xeno-Clipse, and so on). Together with L. d’Haenens she edited the reader Western Broadcasting at the Dawn of the 21st Century (2001).

Jan Servaes, Ph.D., is professor and head of the School of Journalism and Communication, University of Queensland, Australia. Past president of the European Consortium for Communications Research (ECCR), vice president of IAMCR, and director of the research center—Communication for Social Change at the KUBrussels, he has been a professor of International Communication and Development at these universities: Cornell (United States), Nijmegen (the Netherlands), Thammasat (Thailand), Brussels, and Antwerp. His most recent (edited) books in English include Participatory Communication for Social Change (1996); Media and Politics in Transition (1997); Communication for Development (1999); Theoretical Approaches to Participatory Communication (1999); Walking on the Other Side of the Information Highway (2000); The New Communications Landscape (2000); The European Information Society (2003); Approaches to Development (2003); Information Society or Knowledge Societies? (2005); Read the Cultural Other (2005); Towards a Sustainable Information Society (2006); and Intellectual Property Rights and Communications in Asia (2006).

Brian Shoesmith, an adjunct professor at Edith Cowan University, Perth, Australia, is currently a visiting professor of Media Studies and Journalism at the University of Liberal Arts, Bangladesh. He has coedited three books and published numerous articles in journalism on Asian media and film and was a founding editor of Continuum: Journal of Media and Cultural Studies.

Concetta M. Stewart (Ph.D., Rutgers) is dean of the School of Communications and Theater at Temple University. Prior to joining Temple,
Dr. Stewart worked at AT&T for 12 years at its corporate headquarters. She has presented and published on a variety of topics related to the introduction, evaluation, and impact of communication and information technology.

Parichart Sthapitanonda (Ph.D., Ohio University) is associate professor at the faculty of Communication Arts, and the deputy dean of the graduate programs at Chulalongkorn University, Bangkok, Thailand. Her current research focuses on community and communication, communication campaigns, and health communication. For the academic year 2006–2007 she has been a Scholar in Residence at Harvard University.

Chaiwat Thirapantu is currently serving as president of Civicnet Institute and is director of the Bangkok Forum. He is interested in the applicability of chaos and complexity theories in helping the betterment of Thai society.
Index

Aboriginal/Indigenous Experiences 5–7, 19–65
Access 1, 13, 136, 192, 216, 224, 237
Activism 3
Advanced Research Projects Agency Network (ARPNET) 238
Advertising 210
Africa 201, 205, 220
Aidman, Amy xiii
AIDS 177, 200
Alliance for Community Media (ACM) xiii, 189
Alternative media 1, 4, 198, 202, 225–226
AMARC-World Association of Community Radio Broadcasters 211, 220, 223
Ambrosi, Alain xiii
Amnesty International 213
Anderson, Benedict 10
Ansu-Kyeremeh, Kwasi 8–9, 101–109
Arcenas, Sister Elvira xiii
Asian communication 123–126, 201, 205, 220
Atton, Chris xiii, 1
Audiences 117–118, 135
Audiovisual communication 124
Aufderheide, Pat xiii, 3
Australia 6, 21–29

Bangalore, India 4
Bangladesh 7–8, 69–75
Banks, Karen xiii
Barcelona, Spain 4
Barker, John xiii
Barker-Plummer, Bernadette xiii
Barlybayeva, Saule 9, 123–128

Bansal, Kiron xiii
Barranquilla, Columbia 4
Basque case study 139–150
Belanger, Pierre xiii
Belgium 8, 77–88, 139, 232
Bolivia 12, 185, 199, 201, 202–203
Bosshart, Louis xiii
Brazil 8, 12, 89–99, 200
Britain 21, 111, 139
Brombart, Sara xiii
Buckley, Steve xiii
Budge-Reid, Heather xiii
Burma 125
Burundi 198
Buske, Sue xiii

Cable television 112–113
Calabrese, Andrew xiii
Canada 3, 6, 31–41, 185
Carlsson, Ulla xiii
Carpentier, Nico 12, 219–235
Casado, Miguel Angel 9–10, 139–150
Catholic Church 203–204
Censorship 209
Centre for Communication and Human Rights 211
Cevallos, Maria del Carmen xiii
Chan, Joseph xiii
Chaudhary, Soharvir S. xiii
Cheung, Amy xiii
Chile 12, 199–200
China 125, 127
Civil society 227–228, 229
Cole, Charlotte F. xiii
Colle, Royal D. xiii
Columbia 12, 200
Commercial media 206, 209
Sherwood, Chuck xiv
Shinar, Dov xiv, 2
Shoesmith, Brian 6–7, 43–53
Shobowale, Abiodun xv
Sinclair, John xv
Singapore 9, 124, 125, 129–138
Snow, Deborah P. xv
South Korea 125
Spain 9–10, 139–150
Stein, Laura xv
Stereotyping 209
Stewart, Concetta M. 13, 237–248
Stewart, Gavin xv
Sthapitanonda, Parichart 10, 151–159
Stoney, George xv
Street television 91–95
Sudweeks, Fay xv, 11
Switzerland 139

Taiwan, Taipei 4, 124
Tanzania 198
Telecommunications 126, 213, 237
Television 3, 21, 24–27, 70, 82–85, 111–113, 130–131, 139–146
Thailand 10, 124, 125, 151–159
Theories of community media 12, 119–120, 153, 201–203, 219–235
Thirapantu, Chaiwat 10, 151–159
Third World Network 211
Thorne, Karen xv
Turkey 10, 161–171

UNESCO 212
Union for Democratic Communication (UDC) xiii
United States 3, 21, 185–186, 188
Uruguay 211
USSR 228

Video 89–90, 95–97, 185
Vietnam 125
Virtual communities 12–13
Virtual Community Visions 10–13, 173–248
Voices 21, 215
Volunteers 85, 116–117

Wales 139
Washington, D.C. 4
Wete, Francis N. xv
White, Aidan xv
Wilbraham Public Access v, xiii
Wilson, Tony xv
World Association of Christian Communication (WACC) xiii, 211
World Association of Community Radio Broadcasters 211, 220
World Communication Association xiii
World Trade Organization (WTO) 214

Zurita, Pedro xv