Notes on Contributors

Ellen Brinks is Associate Professor of English at Colorado State University. She has a number of publications, including essays on gothic representation and traumatic history, gendered cartography, the intersection of economics and sexuality in contemporary film, as well as a book entitled Gothic Masculinity: Effeminacy and the Supernatural in English and German Romanticism (Bucknell University Press, 2003).

Naomi Cahn is professor of law at George Washington University. She writes in the areas of feminist jurisprudence, family law, and international women's rights, and has recently co-edited Families by Law: An Adoption Reader (with Joan Heifetz Hollinger), published by NYU Press.

Fiona Carson teaches Media Studies and Art History at the University of East London, England. Her research and teaching interests are in feminist theory and practice in different cultural contexts, and in textile art. She co-edited the book Feminist Visual Culture in 2000 and is currently working on a book about sculpture and the female body for I. B. Tauris. She is also a textile artist.

Isabel Dyck is a Professor in the School of Rehabilitation Sciences, and Faculty Associate at the Centre for Research in Women's Studies and Gender Relations, University of British Columbia, and is a social geographer. Her research focuses on gender, identity, body, and space in a variety of contexts of women's mothering work and paid labour. She is co-author of Women, Body, Illness: Space and Identity in the Everyday Lives of Women With Chronic Illness, with Pamela Moss (Rowman and Littlefield, 2002); and is co-editor of Geographies of Women's Health (International Studies of Women and Place), with Nancy Davis Lewis and Sara McLafferty (Routledge, 2001).

Jacqui Gabb is a lecturer in sociology, and staff tutor at the Open University, England. Her research interests include intimacy, sexuality, and parenting. She has published in Gender Place Culture as well as Sexualities, Sex Education, European Journal of Women's Studies and Sociology (forthcoming).
Sara Gerend is a Visiting Assistant Professor of English at DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana, where she teaches composition and twentieth-century British and American literature. She has published an essay on Beryl Markham and is currently writing about paternalist discourse and early twentieth-century American imperialism in Haiti in William Faulkner’s Absalom, Absalom!

Sarah Hardy is Associate Professor and Chair of English at Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia. She has published on family structures in the fiction of Maryse Condé, short story theory, electronic spaces, and popular culture. Her essays have appeared in journals including Style, Narrative, and Journal of Aesthetics and Art Criticism. She is currently at work on a book manuscript entitled “Narrative Avatars: the Episode in Modern Story.”

Rebecca Kukla is a Greenwall Fellow in Bioethics and Health Policy at Johns Hopkins University and Associate Professor of Philosophy at Carleton University. Her publications include Mass Hysteria: Fixing the Boundaries of Mothers’ Bodies (Rowman and Littlefield, 2005), as well as articles in media studies, bioethics, feminist philosophy, eighteenth-century philosophy, and epistemology.

Marsha Marotta, a former journalist, is Associate Professor of Political Science at Westfield State College in Massachusetts, where she teaches political theory and courses in the Women’s Studies Program. She is the author of several book chapters and papers that focus on mothers and space.

Helena Michie is the Agnes C. Arnold Professor in Humanities and Professor of English at Rice University where she teaches Victorian studies and feminist theory. Her published books include The Flesh Made Word: Female Figures, Women’s Bodies and Sorophobia: Differences Among Women in Literature and Culture. She has also co-edited, with Ronald R. Thomas, a collection of essays called Nineteenth-Century Geographies. She has just finished a book on Victorian honeymoons and the invention of heterosexuality.

Amy Mullin is an Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Toronto. She is co-editor (with Donald Ainslie) of the book series Toronto Studies in Philosophy at the University of Toronto Press, and the author of Reconceiving Pregnancy and Childcare (2005). Her research focuses on feminist philosophy, aesthetics, and conceptions of the self. Her articles have appeared in journals including Hypatia, Journal of Aesthetics and Art Criticism, History of Philosophy Quarterly, and Feminist Theory.
Gillian Rose is Professor of Cultural Geography at the Open University, England. She is the author of Feminism and Geography (1993) and Visual Methodologies (2001), as well as several papers on the spatialities of various kinds of photographic display. She has also taught feminist and cultural geographies at the universities of London and Edinburgh, and is currently about two years behind putting photos of her children into her family album.

Barbara Katz Rothman is Professor of Sociology at the City University of New York. Her books include The Book of Life, The Tentative Pregnancy, Recreating Motherhood, and she is currently working on Laboring On with Wendy Simonds.

Wendy Simonds is Associate Professor of Sociology at Georgia State University. She is author of Women and Self-Help Culture: Reading between the Lines, Abortion at Work: Ideology and Practice in a Feminist Clinic, co-author of Centuries of Solace: Expressions of Maternal Grief in Popular Literature, and co-editor of Sex Matters: The Sexuality and Society Reader. She is currently working on a book about birth in the United States with Barbara Katz Rothman and Bari Meltzer.

Leslie Kanes Weisman is Professor Emerita and past Associate Dean of the School of Architecture at New Jersey Institute of Technology. She is the author of Discrimination by Design: A Feminist Critique of the Man-Made Environment (Illinois, 1994) and co-editor of The Sex of Architecture (Harry N. Abrams, 1996).

Caroline Wiedmer is Associate Scholar at the Collegium Helveticum at the ETH in Zurich. She is co-editor of Inventing the Past: Essays on Memory, Trauma and Culture (2004), editor of Sound Changes: An International Survey of Women’s Strategies in Higher Education (2001) and author of The Claims of Memory: Representations of the Holocaust in Contemporary Germany and France (Cornell University Press, 1999).

Iris Marion Young is a professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Chicago. Her books include Inclusion and Democracy (Oxford) and Throwing Like a Girl and Other Essays in Feminist Philosophy and Social Theory (Indiana, 1990), and she is co-editor of A Companion to Feminist Philosophy with Alison M. Jaggar (Blackwell Companions to Philosophy, 1999) and of Feminist Ethics and Social Policy, with Patrice DiQuinzio (Indiana, 1997).
