Reginald Dumas, a Cambridge graduate and an honorary Doctor of Laws of the University of the West Indies, has had a distinguished career as a public servant, diplomat, and consultant. He was head of the Trinidad and Tobago Public Service and also served as his country’s ambassador in Africa, Asia, North America, and the Caribbean. In 2004 he was special adviser on Haiti of the then United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan. He is the author of An Encounter with Haiti: Notes of a Special Adviser (2008) and is chairman of the Medianet Haiti Relief Fund. He continues to work on Haitian development issues.

Alex Dupuy is John E. Andrus Professor of Sociology at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut. He is the author of Haiti in the World Economy: Class, Race, and Underdevelopment Since 1700 (1987); Haiti in the New World Order: The Limits of the Democratic Revolution (1997); *The Prophet and Power: Jean-Bertrand Aristide, the International Community, and Haiti (2007); and more than 30 articles in professional journals and edited anthologies.

Charles Forsdick is James Barrow Professor of French at the University of Liverpool. A specialist in the fields of travel writing, slavery, postcolonial literature, and French colonial history, he is the author of Victor Segalen and the Aesthetics of Diversity (2000) and Travel in Twentieth-Century French and Francophone Cultures (2005).

Anthony P. Maingot is professor emeritus of Sociology and founding professor at Florida International University in Miami. He was director of the Cuba-Haiti Research Project at Yale University from 1969 to 1971. His books include The United States and the Caribbean (1994) and, most recently, edited with Ralph S. Clem, Venezuelan Petro-Diplomacy: Hugo Chavez’ Foreign Policy (2011). Born in Trinidad, Maingot has made 18 research trips to Haiti since 1970.

Kate Quinn is lecturer in Caribbean History at University College London. She is editor of Black Power in the Caribbean (2013) and has published chapters and articles on the postindependence Anglophone Caribbean and on revolutionary Cuba. She is a member of the Haiti Support Group and is currently chair of the Society for Caribbean Studies.

Paul Sutton is emeritus reader in Politics at the University of Hull and a consultant on the political economy of the Caribbean and the development problems of small states. His books include, with Anthony Payne, Modern Caribbean Politics (1993) and Charting Caribbean Development (2001); Europe and the Caribbean (1991); and Modernizing the State: Public Sector Reform in the Commonwealth Caribbean (2006).

Patrick Sylvain is lecturer in Anthropology at the University of Massachusetts, Boston, and Haitian language and culture instructor at Brown and Harvard Universities. He is published in several anthologies, academic journals, and magazines including Callaloo, Caribbean Writers, and Haiti Noir, and has chapters in several books including Fixing Haiti and Beyond (2011), edited by Jorge Heine and Andrew Thompson; The Idea of Haiti: History, Development & the Creation of New Narratives (2012), edited by Millery Polyné; and Tectonic Shifts: Haiti Since the Earthquake (2012), edited by Mark Schuller and Pablo Morales.
