Contributors

Robbie Duschinsky is Reader in Psychology and Society at Northumbria University. He is currently the recipient of a Wellcome Trust New Investigator Award, for research on the role of psychology in clinical and social welfare interventions. With Leon Rocha, he edited Foucault, The Family and Politics (Palgrave 2012) and has published in journals such as the Sociological Review, the Journal of Social Policy, and the European Journal of Social Work.

Gillian Harkins is Associate Professor of English and Adjunct Associate Professor of Gender, Women and Sexuality Studies at the University of Washington, Seattle. Harkins is the author of Everybody’s Family Romance: Reading Incest in Neoliberal America (University of Minnesota Press, 2009) and coeditor of Special Issues of Social Text on “Genres of Neoliberalism” with Jane Elliott (Summer 2013) and Radical Teacher on “Teaching Inside Carceral Institutions” with Kate Drabinski (Winter 2012). She has also published articles on twentieth and twenty-first century literature, film and visual culture, higher education and the prison industrial complex, and feminist, queer, and critical race studies. Her new book-in-progress, Screening Pedophilia: Virtuality and Other Crimes Against Nature, examines the emergence of the “pedophile” as virtual image in twentieth and twenty-first century literature, forensics, and film.

Daru Huppert is a candidate at the Viennese Psychoanalytical Society. He was head psychologist at a large care in the community centre in Vienna. His Ph.D. on psychic traumatization of child survivors of Nazi persecution was supervised by Juliet Mitchell. His research interests are on Freudian psychoanalysis and the unconscious. He has taught at Cambridge University and the Sigmund Freud University in Vienna.

Rachel Leigh teaches at the Cambridge Lehrhaus Centre for Jewish Thought. Her research interests have focused on human psychology and identity.

Mignon Nixon is Professor of History of Art at the Courtauld Institute of Art, University of London, and an editor of October magazine (New York). She has published widely on intersections of art, feminism, and psychoanalysis. Her current book project is Sperm Bomb: Art, Feminism, and the American War in Vietnam. In 2011–12, she and Juliet Mitchell co-taught a seminar on art and psychoanalysis at the Courtauld.

Jacqueline Rose is Professor of English at Queen Mary University, London. Her research focuses on modern subjectivity at the interface of literature, psychoanalysis, and politics, as well as on the history and culture of South Africa and of Israel–Palestine. Her most recent publications include Proust among the Nations (Chicago University Press, 2012); The Last Resistance (Verso, 2007) and Conversations with Jacqueline Rose (Seagull Press, 2010).

Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak is University Professor at Columbia University. She is the author of several books including Other Asias (2005) and An Aesthetic Education in An Era of Globalization (2012); a new work, Readings, was published in October 2014 by Seagull Books. In 2012, Spivak was the Kyoto laureate in Art and Philosophy, and in 2013 she was awarded the Padma Bhushan. She is also a Member of the Council on Values of the World Economic Forum. She is an activist in rural education and ecological social movements, and is involved in training teachers and guiding ecological agriculture in the western Birbhum district in West Bengal, India. Additionally, some of her current projects include consortial initiatives in continental Africa, Himalayan Studies initiatives in Kathmandu-Kolkata-Kunming, and thinking globality together in French India and Senegambia. As well as these activities, she is presently re-translating Derrida’s Of Grammatology, and Preti Taneja is Leverhulme Postdoctoral Research Associate to Professor Juliet Mitchell, working on siblings, Shakespeare, and psychoanalysis. She is Visiting Lecturer in English Literature, at Royal Holloway, University of London, UK and Jesus College Cambridge, UK. Prior to academia, she worked for over a decade as a human rights filmmaker, researcher, and writer specializing in minority rights. She has published extensively on the plight of religious, ethnic and linguistic minorities in Iraq since 2003, and on arts and rights in The Guardian, Open Democracy, and Reuters Alertnet.

Eline Trenson has a Masters in Clinical Psychology and works as an assistant at the Department for Psychoanalysis and Counselling Psychology. She also organizes and organizes the training in psychoanalytical therapy.

Paul Verhaeghe is Senior Professor at Ghent University and holds the chair of the Department for Psychoanalysis and Counselling Psychology. He teaches clinical psychodiagnostics, psychoanalytic therapy, and gender studies. He has published eight books and more than 200 papers. His two most recent books present a critique of contemporary psychotherapy, and address the link between contemporary society and new forms of mental disorder. His personal website contains material available to download: http://paulverhaeghe.psychoanalysis.be/

Susan Walker is a Senior Lecturer in Sexual Health, in the Faculty of Health, Social Care and Education at Anglia Ruskin University, UK. She originally trained and worked as a GP during which time she developed an interest in the gendered social and psychological factors underlying health related behavior. She pursued her interests in gender and psychoanalytical theory by undertaking a Ph.D. in the University of Cambridge. Her thesis addressed the effects of gendered body image upon contraceptive outcomes, using psychoanalytical theory, and was supervised by Professor Juliet Mitchell. Her present research interests focus on the intersection of gender, sociology, and medicine. She is a co-recipient of an ESRC Research seminar grant, on the topic of Understanding the Young Sexual Body.
