Acne lesions assessment. See also Impure, acne-like skin
- facial sites, 161–162
- instrumental assessment, 164–165
- lesion types, 161
- nonfacial sites, 162
- quality of life assessment, 165
- sensorial assessment
  - disease-specific instrument, 163
  - investigator (physician) assessment, 162–164
  - user-self assessment, 162

Anatomical skin sites, sweat glands, 218

Antiaging and antiwrinkle products non-invasive biophysical methods
- SC hydration, electrical methods, 147
- skin mechanical properties, 149
- skin microcirculation, 148
- skin pigmentation and color, 148
- skin surface acidity (pH), 148
- skin surface lipid, photometric assessment, 148–149
- skin surface topography, 146–147
- TEWL values, epidermal barrier function, 147

study design
- anatomical test site, 151
- data management and evaluation, 152
- efficacy assessment, 152
- product application, 151–152
- study duration, 151
- study population, 150–151
- study schedule, 149–150

Antiperspirants
- axillary sweat, gravimetric evaluation, 220–221
- conditioning period, 221
- data evaluation, 222
- randomization, 222
- study population, 221
- sweat collection, 221–222

biophysical methods, 220
- casting methods, 220
- gravimetric methods, 220
- multiple product test design, 223–224
- visual techniques, 219–220

Barrier permeability assessment. See
Transepidermal water loss (TEWL)
Bricks model, 253–254, 257–258

Carotenoids, 180

Case report form (CRF), 8, 30–31, 106
Central drugs standard control organization (CDSCO), 8

Claim support, 43–44
- borderline claims, 45

challenges, 59
claim creation
- communication style and medium, 47–48
- consumer factors, 48
- factors involved, 45–47
- global/regional, 47

classification, CTPA/ASA approach, 49–50 definition, 44
documentation, 58–59
level of evidence
- established and widely available evidence, 50, 52
- science/technology, 53
- specific evidence, 52–53 quality of evidence consumer perception assessment, 57 consumer studies, 54 expert grading, 54, 58
instrumental evaluation, 54, 58 sensory properties, 54
in vitro/ex vivo studies, 58 Combination claims, 50
Common Rule, 17
Comparison claims, 50
Conditioners. See also Hair; Shampoos cationic surfactants, formulation, 204 characteristics, 204
depositing variants, 204–205 product rheology, 205
Confocal laser scanning microscopy (CLSM), 240 Contrast-enhanced phototrichogram (CE-PTG), 235, 242–243
Corneometer Mobile Data Collector DC 3000, 263–264
Cosmetic testing report good clinical research practice (GCRP), 107–108 result publication, 112–113 abstract, 113–114
acknowledgments, 115
background information, 114 discussion and conclusions, 115
keywords, 114
manuscript submission, 115–117 material and methods, 114 references, 115
tables and figures, 115
title page, 113
structure and contents abbreviations and definition, 109 appendices, 112
discussion and conclusions, 111–112
ethical considerations, 109 introduction, 110
investigational plan, 110–111 investigators and study administrative structure, 109–110 reference list, 112
results, 111
signatures, 112
synopsis, 109
table of contents, 109
test objectives, 110
title page, 108–109
Council for International Organizations of Medical Sciences (CIOMS) guidelines, 17–18
Cutaneous aging, 144. See also Antiaging and antiwrinkle products

D
Daily hair count, 230–231
Declaration of Helsinki, 17
Deodorants
Sniff test
conditioning period, 225
data evaluation, 225
procedure, 225
study population, 224
test methods, 224
Dermal irritation patch tests, 8
DermaSpectrometer, 182
Dermometry, 33–34, 39–40 evidence-based guidelines, 38–39 good biometrological practice, 36, 38 skin bioengineering, 34–35 standardization and quality controls, 35 validation, methods and instrumentations, 35–37

E
Emollients, 118. See also Moisturizers
Epidermal barrier status and repair, TEWL industrial vs. legislation needs, 254 lotions and creams, barrier permeability barrier recovery, 255
emollient formulation, 256 external factors, 254–255
TEWL measuring steps and recommendations, 255
Time–zero-TEWL (TEWL₀), 256 Ethical aspects, 15–16
cosmetic testing, 19
history
Belmont Report, 17
CIOMS guidelines, 17–18
Common Rule, 17
Declaration of Helsinki, 17
Good Clinical Practice (GCP), 18
medical ethics, 16
Nuremberg code, 16–17
research ethics, 16
noninvasive skin measurements, 19
principles
conduct, 20
Institutional Review Board/Independent Ethics Committee (IRB/IEC), 22 investigational products, 21
investigator, 20–21
subjects/participants, 21 techniques/devices, measurement, 22
Extrinsic aging, 144–145

F
Fitzpatrick classification scale, 181

G
Glogau scoring, 146
Good Clinical Practice (GCP), 18 case record form (CRF), 30–31 conduct standards, 30
principles, 27–29
protocol standards, 30
standard operating procedures (SOPs), 29
study design, 30

H
Haemoglobin, 180
Hair, 200. See also Conditioners; Shampoos color, 199
growth, 198
hair type, 199–200
influence of water, 200 internal structure, 199 medulla, 199
outer structure, 198–199 shampoos and conditioners, 214 color fade, 212–213
consumer evaluation approaches, 205–206 hair shine, 211–212
lubrication, 208, 210
moisturization, 213
static electricity retardation, 211 strength, 210–211
technical evaluation approaches, 206–208 technical functionality and consumer opinion, 205 surface damage assessment, SEM, 208, 209 Hair growth assessment clinical appearance, 229–230 clinical grading systems, 230 confocal laser scanning microscopy, 240 contrast-enhanced phototrichogram, 235
daily hair count, 230–231
electron microscopy, 240 epiluminescence microscopy (see TrichoScan) global photographs, 238, 239, 241
hair pull-test, 231
hair wash test (HWT), 231
hair weighing, 232
optical coherence tomography (OCT), 238–239 phototrichogram, 234
physiological factors, 228
study design, 229
trichogram, 232–233
Unit Area Trichogram, 234
Hair morphology assessment atomic force microscope (AFM), 172 cuticle characterization, 171 dynamic experiments, 173–177, optical interferometry (see also Optical interferometry, hair morphology) roughness modification, 173
vertical scanning interferometry mode, 173
white light source, 173 scanning electron microscope (SEM), 172 static experiments, 173–175
Hair pull-test, 231
Hair wash test (HWT), 231, 241
Human repeat insult patch test, 9
Hyperkeratosis, 188

I Impure, acne-like skin acne lesions (see Acne lesions assessment) oily skin (see Oily skin assessment) product acceptance, 165–166 study background, 156
study design, 158
study objectives, 156
study products, 156–157 study subjects, 157
unwanted effect assessment ethical principles, 167 statistical analysis, 167
study protocol, 166
Ingredient claims, 49
Institutional Review Board/Independent Ethics Committee (IRB/IEC), 22
Instrumental assessment
acne lesions assessment, 164–165
oily skin assessment, 160
Intrinsic aging, 144–145
In-use irritation tests, 125
Investigator global assessment (IGA) score, 164

J
Japan Cosmetic Industry Association (JCIA), 7 Laboratory testing accommodation and arrangement data base/subject file room, 67 general volunteer information sessions, 68 investigator’s office/examination room, 68 lab room, 68–69
reception/volunteer recruitment office, 67 rest rooms and waiting area, volunteers, 69 room types, 66
staff office, 69
test product/sample storage room, 69 ambient conditions, 70 quality management system measurement devices, 71–72
standard operating procedures (SOPs), 70–71
Leeds Acne Grading Scale, 163

Measurement devices and methods cost issues, 87
laboratory, 86–87
manufacturers and software packages, 87 practical use, 86 quality and quick service, 87 technical assessment skin parameters, 84–85
standards and directives, 85–86
Melanin, 180
Mild acne, 163
Ministry of Health, Labour, and Welfare (MHLW), 7
Minolta Spectrophometer, 175
Moderate acne, 163
Moisturizers. See also Skin hydration characteristics, 124 investigative method selection, 131 legislation and marketplace, 125–126
non-invasive biophysical methods mechanical/visco-elastic properties, skin, 130 outermost skin layers, electrical properties, 128 skin surface topography examination, 129 spectroscopic and optical properties, skin, 130 techniques, 127
transdermal water loss assessment, 128–129 study designs
multiple application tests, 132 preliminary skin irritation test, 132–133 regression tests, 132 single application tests, 131–132
study population
general considerations, 133–134 number of subjects, 134 subject and environment-related variables, 134, 135 test site, 134–135
study procedure
data management and evaluation, 139–140
instructions, panelist, 136 measurement procedure, 139
product application, 138–139
washout phase, 136
Mortar model, 253–254, 257–258

Noninvasive skin measurements, 19
Nuremberg code, 16–17

Oily skin assessment
image analysis techniques, 161
instrumental assessment, 160
lipid absorbent tapes, 160–161 photometric techniques, 160
quality of life assessment, 161
sensorial assessment, 159
skin glossymetry, 161
Optical coherence tomography (OCT), 238–239
Optical interferometry, hair morphology dynamic experiment cuticle evolution, tensile stress, 176, 177 fibres used, 173
roughness modification, 173
static experiment
moisturizing, topographical modifications, 176 roughness reduction, 174, 176 sampling, 173
scratch evolution, 174–176 topographical representations, cuticle, 174–175
vertical scanning interferometry mode, 173
white light source, 173

P
Performance claims, 49
Permeability assessment. See Transepidermal water loss (TEWL) Photoaged skin. See also Antiaging and antiwrinkle products clinical, histological, and functional characteristics, 144–145
Glogau scoring, 146
Phototrichogram (PTG), 234, 242
Physical Global Improvement score, 164 Product testing classical laboratory test location, 262
noncontrollable factors, 262 product performance, 262 protocol information, 261 stratum corneum hydration, 263
Corneometer® Mobile Data Collector DC 3000, 263–264
field studies, 262–263

S
Sensorial assessment, 158–159
acne lesions assessment
disease-specific instrument, 163
investigator (physician) assessment, 162–164
user-self assessment, 162
oily skin assessment, 159
Sensory/aesthetic claims, 49 Sensory perception sensitive skin contralateral comparison design, 251 eye characteristics, 247–248 large group approach, 250 mechanisms, 248
neurological tests, 249 prevalence, 248
reactivity tests, 250
screening tests, 251
sensory tests, 249
sex-discrepancy, 248
very well-defined groups, 251 skin irritation, 247
Severe acne, 163
Shampoos. See also Hair anionic surfactants, 201 conditioning and styling products, 201 cosurfactants, 201
2-in-1 shampoo+conditioners aesthetics factors, 203 formulation stability, 202–203 manner of usage, 203
silicone oil, 202 stability and formulation, 201–202 surfactant concentration, 201
viscosity, 201
Singapore Health Sciences Authority (HSA), 5 Skin colour and pigmentation aged skin, 181
carotenoids, 180
constitutional skin colour, 181
factors influencing, 184
grading system, 181
haemoglobin, 180
melanin, 180
reflectance spectrophotometric evaluation cromameter, 183

USA, 6–7
Research staff
investigator, 75–76
study nurse, 77

R
Regulatory aspects
ASEAN countries, 7
Canada, 7
China, 8
cosmetic legislation
broad definitions, 4
Canadian system, 5
China, 5
Europe, 4–6
India, 5
Japanese system, 5
narrow definitions, 4 universal similarities, market economies, 4 cosmetics efficacy testing, 11–12 labeling and packaging, 12–13 safety study, 8–11
European Union, 6
India, 8
Japan, 7
Mercosur countries, 7
South Africa, 8
DermaSpectrometer, 182
Minolta Spectrophometer, 183
skin reflectance spectroscopy, 182
study procedure, 183–184
Skin hydration. See also Moisturizers complex formation, 125, 126
environment-related variables air flow, air-conditioning system, 138 air humidity, 138
biorhythms, 138
direct light exposure, 138 panelists acclimatization period, 138 room temperature, 136
epidermal barrier
external stressors, 124
mechanisms, 124–125
stratum corneum (SC), 124, 125 water distribution, 125, 127 Skin testing and measurements, 85
environment-related variables air convections, 91
ambient air humidity, 92 ambient air temperature, 92 light sources, 92
skin cleansing, 92–93
individual-related variables age, 93
anatomical sites, 93–94 circadian rhythm, 95
intra and interindividual variation, 95 race and sex, 93
skin damage and diseases, 95 skin surface temperature, 94–95
sweating, 94
instrument-related variables contact time, 91
surface area, 91
variability, start-up, and use, 90
Sniff test. See Deodorants
Sodium lauryl sulphate (SLS) test, 250
Standard operating procedures (SOPs), 29
State food and drug administration (SFDA), 8
Study design
blinding, 102
data entry and processing, 106 ethical review and scientific validity, 104 inclusion/exclusion criteria, 105 measurement variables and endpoints, 103 randomized controlled study, 102 statistics
sample size calculation, 103 statistical methods, 104 study documents
case report form (CRF), 106
study protocol, 105
subject diary, 106
subject information sheet, 105–106
study objectives, 102
test products, 104
Sunscreens
hyperkeratosis, 188
sun protection factor (SPF), 188–189 classification, 192
factors influencing, 189
international methods, 191 MED determination, 189
sunscreen application, 190–191 UVB protection, 188–189, 193
in vitro determination, 193
UVA protection factor, 191–192
Sweating, 218

T
Testing population recruitment, 79–80 acquisition criteria and screening, 81–82 advertisements, 80
product-related information and compliance, 82 telephone recruitment, 81 third parties/intermediaries, 81
Transepidermal water loss (TEWL)
Bricks and Mortar model, 253–254 closed chamber method, 257 epidermal barrier status and repair (see Epidermal barrier status and repair, TEWL) limits and pitfalls, 257–258 open chamber method, 256–257 validity, 256
Trichogram, 232–233, 241
TrichoScan
black hair dye, 236–237 digital image and algorithmic analysis, 236 disadvantage, 237 hair growth parameters, 235–236 landmarks, red tattoo ink, 236 software validation, 237

U
Unit Area Trichogram (UATG), 234, 241