Index

A
Access to higher education
access as an external instrument of policy, 403
in the 1976 Constitution, 22, 403 defining the Student Estate (see below) growth rates in, 140
and the Bologna process, 269
as lever to ‘steer’ national policy, 320
and the Lisbon Agenda, 271 policy, three phases in, 404
role of private sector HE and economic progress, 392
and equity, 392
social class disparities in Portugal, 25, 389, 391
and age differences, 389–390
compared with Europe, 392
and institutional differences, 389
Accountability, 345
an Anglo American construct, 375 balanced by autonomy, 367, 375
and the Bologna process, 408
and ‘institutional worth’, 370
reinforced, 408
and rise of the Administrative Estate, 353, 367 Accreditation, 36
as political ‘fashion’, 257
set up under Law 1/2003, 241, 251
ADISPOR (Association of Portuguese Public Polytechnics), 255 Agency for the Evaluation and Accreditation of Higher Education (A3ES) its creation in 2007, 251, 258, 408
its mandate, structure and programme, 82, 259, 271
Altbach, P.A., 355, 357
Amaral, A., 132, 255, 335, 339, 372, 387, 404
APESP (Portuguese Association of Private Higher Education)
its role in evaluation, 70, 255
Associated Laboratories
regular evaluation of, 213
strengthening academic research, 213 Autonomy
latitude granted to Public Universities, 237
and reaction of HE to 1988 reforms, 236
Aveiro University founded 1973, 69

B
Backwardness
in economic development, 110
in educational development, 60, 63
Barro, R.J., 129, 130
Basic education
and regional disparities, 97–98
and quality of life, 101
Becher, T., 19
Binary HE
its creation, 31, 233, 406
its origins under Estado Novo, 63
its re-affirmation through Decree Law 74/2006, 270
Bologna (Italy)
University of, 2
Bologna Follow Up Group, 271
Lourtie, Pedro, President of, 78
Bologna process, 11, 36, 265–283
exceptionalism re-defined, 13
the future of, 78
its critics, 77–78, 392
its impact in Portugal, 276–283
form or substance, 266
and ‘over-teaching’, 77
its scope as a multi-level policy process, 267
‘Soft Law’, 265
its historical significance, 16
implications for academic staff training, 281, 387
and the logic of neo-liberalism, 78
Portugal’s performance, 274
Portuguese HE’s perceptions of Bologna priorities, 279
professionalisation vs. employability, 269
rise in post-graduate numbers, 143, 261
role of Bologna Process in rise of managerialism, 295
‘Stocktaking Reports’ and monitoring progress, 271–276
‘Bologna type’ degree structures Decree
Law 74/2006, 276
and doctoral level registration, 387
Bleiklie, I., 280, 354, 359, 370
Bourdieu, P., 51, 83
Bureaucratisation in HE, 359
an ends/means reversal, 359 Business Expenditure on Research and Development (BERD)
compared to other EU States, 197
in Portugal 181, 191
Business Sector
universities ‘buying in’ management techniques from, 368

C
Caetano, M., 63
Catholic University, 233, 253, 313, 353 Carvalho, Rómulo de, (Portuguese historian of Education) 15, 52, 55, 57, 59–61
Charle, Christophe and Soulié, Charles (French historians)
and modernisation of the university, 79
Christie, H., 392
‘Civic service for students’, 138, 400
Clark, B.R. and the ‘system’ perspective, 17, 374
Class structure and educational change, 385
Conselho Nacional de Avaliação do Ensino Superior (CNAVES) National Council for Evaluating higher Education, 253
internal tensions in, 254
mandate, 253
Constituent Orders of Higher Education,
17, 37, 39
Academic Estate, 329–347 (see also Professions) academic career and Humboldtian values, 337 condition of Academia under the dictatorship, 39, 333
its powers of resistance, 292, 334
democratic revolution and stratification of status, 338
emergence of managerial ‘counter
hegemony’, 344, 346
emergence of private sector HE, 339
dependency on public sector staff, 339 different working conditions, 339
feminisation of, 341–342
and disciplinary differences, 341
human resource policy and researcher expansion, 344
of ‘managerial autonomy’, 367
new normative identities, 345
the role of ‘organic intellectuals’, 39, 333
Administrative Estate 353–379
the ‘centrality’ of new managerialism, 292, 354, 356
controlled by law and regulations, 368, 369
its ‘counter hegemonism’, 39
feminisation in, 363, 374
women in senior management, 341 formal Status of, and 2007 Higher Education Guideline Law, 362
as the handmaiden of evaluation and performance, 367
massification of HE and growth in, 354, 358
multiplication of administrative functions, 355, 363
its growth compared to the national civil service, 357
in public sector universities and polytechnics, 361–362
and new managerialism, 40 seven factors in the dynamics of the Administrative Estate, 372–374
Student Estate, 383–413
changing student identity, 401
cultural change and demobilisation, 41, 392, 401 dissolving ties between subject ‘culture’, solidarity and political socialisation, 401 drop out rates in, 396–397
on the eve of revolution, 397–399 family financing and its consequences, 151
feminisation of, 137, 153–154, 340, 387
at doctoral level, 387
its growth, 20, 40, 383, 408
relationship with Armed Forces Movement, 399 socialisation, family, friends and mobility, 394–396
student ‘experience’ mutating, 402
as subset of ‘Youth Culture’, 408
the Third Estate, 9, 383 shaped by the polity, 402
work experience in, 385
compared to other EU States, 151
and mature students, 390
Constitution of 1822 and Portuguese Liberalism, 58
higher education reform, 59
state sovereignty redefined, 58
Constitution of 1976, 29, 69
and curriculum reform, 69
and principle of participant democracy, 22,
and principle of quality assessment, 250
and principle of University Autonomy, 171
Corporative State, 67. See also Estado Novo
Corporative University, 287
Council of Rectors of the Portuguese Universities (CRUP), 236
in piloting quality evaluation, 238, 252
and role in creating self-regulatory model of governance, 236, 293
Crespo, V., 184
Critical Mass in S&T policy, 34, 180, 192, 200, 208
in associated laboratories, 213 ‘Cultural University’ 82–85
ideas of Antonio Lobo Vilela, 83
Democratisation of HE, 38. See also Massification Demography
challenge of fecundity rates, 157 changed notions of childhood, 145
fertility rates, 93, 319
its impact on private HE, 319
Portugal: a lagged response, 42, 150
Derrida, J., 78
Dubar, C., 331
Economic liberalisation, 109
and accession to EU, 113 Economic perspective, 109–132
transition from agrarian economy since 1950, 110–113
Economy in Portugal, 109–132
convergence towards European income levels, 113 decline explained, 115–120
decline in capital accumulation, 118, 122–124
economic convergence, 109
inequalities economic and poverty, 100 loss of competitiveness, 120–121
Portugal GDP trends, 112
return to democracy, 131
role of human capital as driver of growth, 117
and social vulnerability, 100
total factor productivity as source of growth, 115–118 transition to knowledge economy, 125
and World War I, 113
and World War II, 113
Elite university participation rates, 139, 304
Entrepreneurial University as symbol of paradigm shift, 81
Estado Novo (1933–1974)
cultural concept of science as expression of opposition to, 84 “democratising higher education”, reforms of Veiga Simão, 63 ideology of development, 63
I Plano do Fomento 1953 (First Development Plan), 185 its ideological impact on HE, 62–63
its role in science policy, 35, 184–186
Ministry of Public Instruction and dimensions of control, 335 nationalism during the, 63–64
D
Dale, R., 7
de Almeida, A.J., 83
de Boer, H. 299
Democratic management
its introduction in 1976, 291
in 1988 University Autonomy Law, 293 Estado Novo (1933–1974) (cont.)
public administration during the, 230 stabilisation plan of 1930’s, 113
strong state, Authoritarian State, 66, 159, 230, 334
views on education, 184
Estonque, E., 391
Euro, adjustment to, 115, 120–122
European Commission, 2 and ‘creeping competence’, 267
pilot project on evaluation methods 1991, 251
European Council
and press for convergence, 268
European credit transfer system (ECTS),
37, 270
European dimension in higher education, 3
its legal basis, 12
a critique of, 78–80
redefining exceptionalism, 12–13
European Diploma Supplement
its token usage in Portugal, 37, 280
European Economic Community, 111, 113
European Free Trade Area (EFTA), 109
European Higher Education Area, 2
ERASMS Programme, 72
ERASMS MUNDUS, 275
Lisbon Agenda, 267–268
Lisbon Scorecard Reports, 275–276
Portugal’s ‘villainous’ status, 276
Rise of ‘managerialism’
and construction of, 295
European Network of Quality Assurance Agencies (ENQA), 11, 32, 241, 250, 257
European Quality Agency Register
(EQUAR), 11
European Research Area, 2
EU Framework Programmes, Portuguese
participation in, 218
European Standards and Guidelines, 257
European Union
and impact on economy, 113
and impact on rise of managerialism, 295, 371
and impact on S&T policy, 188
Portugal’s accession to, 161, 201
and shift in policy paradigm, 71 European University
in the middle ages, 2
Evaluation
attempt to define (1997), 70
extended to polytechnics 1990, 250
of higher education, 238, 250, 254
and Law 38/94, 239
of research units and output (1993), 190
resistance to, 238
Role in S&T, 239
in University Autonomy Act 1988, 250
Evaluative State, 36, 243, 370
Évora University, 406
Exceptionalism
its ‘European’ construct, 8, 11
four dimensions in, 21–22
its historic dimension, 36
in Portuguese higher education, 15, 31
External Stakeholders, 243, 344
and demands for information and accountability, 355
F Faculties and Schools and democratic governance, 232 Family networks
and attendance patterns in HE, 396 Financial autonomy
and 1973 Decree Law, 230
Basic Law for the Financing
of Higher Education
(Law 113/97), 73
Financial Crisis in Seventies, Eighties, 110
2008–2009, 72, 79
First Republic (1910–1926)
and access to higher education, 62
First Constitutional Government 1976 and political normalisation, 291
higher education reform, 61, 83,
183, 228
University Constitution 1911, 228
Foundation University, 75, 170, 288, 300–301
and autonomy, 173
balance of power between Academic and Administrative Estates, 374 and changed status of Administrative Estate, 359
viewed from S&T perspective, 214 Freedom to teach and to learn confirmed in 1988 University
Autonomy Act, 366
in 1976 Constitution, 366
Fundação Luso-Americana para o
Desenvolvimento (FLAD), 200
Fundação para a Ciência e a Tecnologia (FCT), Foundation for Science and Technology, 75, 189, 200
competitive funding for doctoral and post doctoral fellowships, 201–203
and reform of State Laboratories 1998, 211
Funding higher education, 172

G
Gago, José Mariano, (Minister MCTES 2005–2011), 78, 180
General Assembly of University role and composition under 1911
University Constitution, 229
General Council
powers under 2007 Higher Education
Guideline Law, 241
Generational Perspective generation of Reform in Portugal, 23–24
as a unit of analysis, 24
Giddens, A., 49, 50
Globalisation, 20
and drive of governments to improve national economic performance, 311
and internationalisation of the academic career, 144
and the ‘new governance paradigm’, 244 shaping the Administrative Estate, 372 Golden Age in Portugal (1530–1640), 53–55 and ‘national image’ 53 (see also National Identity)
Governance
from autocracy to revolutionary change, 288
in polytechnics, 233
post revolutionary normalisation, 232–233
in private sector HE, 236
and 1974 Revolution, 232
and 1988 University
Autonomy Act, 235
as a ‘competitive market’, 298
and 2007 Higher Education
Guideline Law, 34, 241
and links with quality, 240
new patterns of, 301–302
tensions between collegial and managerial
governance, 295
University Constitution 1911, 228
under the dictatorship, 334
Government and higher education relationships, 34
the legal perspective on the 2007 Higher Education Guideline Law, 288
Gramsci, Antoni and concept of ‘organic intellectuals’, 332

Grand Narrative, 17
Grosby, S., 49
Gross Expenditure on Research and Development, (GERD), 195
Gulbenkian Institute of Science 1961, 185, 200

H
Hegemonic discourse
and academic professionalism, 342
Higher education
driven by institutional considerations, 407
dual system, 137
and geographical location, 156
expansion of provision, 139–141, 397–398
and privatization, 307–326
provision in Portugal, 386
and the regions 138, 385
as a ‘system’, 18
Higher Education Guideline Law 2007 (RJIES) (Law 62/2007), 73, 164
and institutional management, 38, 74, 299, 360, 371
university autonomy re-defined, 171–173, 296–297
and reinforcement of evaluation and quality, 408
‘Higher Educationism’, 7, 21
Higher Education Policy
and balance of power between Nation State and Europe, 11
from demand driven to supply driven, 405–407
as ‘lagged response’ to modernisation, 25 rise of private sector HE, 406 viewed de longue durée, 16
Higher Institute of Work and Entrepreneurial Sciences (ISCTE) Lisbon, founded 1972, 69
Historical Attention Span Deficit Disorder,
21, 32
Huisman, J., 372
Human capital in Portugal, 110
Human resources
compared to other research systems, 207
government action to improve qualification levels, 311, 343
growth of ‘researcher pool’, 205–207
impact on private sector industry, 344
key to viability in S&T development, 222 management, and state oversight, 368
Hybridisation in HE, 303
I
Illiteracy rates, 95–98, 128, 315
Images of organisation, 288
Implications for the Administrative Estate, 371–372 Incentive programmes for R&D, 219
tax breaks for firms investing in R&D, 219
Industrialisation, 111
Industry-science links, 218
Institutional autonomy, 38, 234, 288
and human resources management, 368
instrumental/operational interpretation of, 296
and modernisation, 292–294
and move to ‘remote control’ relationship, 239
and quality oversight, 241
Institutional management, 38 importance of collegial model up to mid 90’s, 295 patterns of, 288
Institutional performance linked to funding, 250
Instituto de Cooperação Científica e Tecnológica (Institute of International Cooperation in S&T), 190
Instituto Superior Técnico Lisbon, 182
Instrumentalities of change, 35 Integrated Masters degrees 269, 278
and gender distribution, 389
International Iberian Nanotechnology Laboratory, 215 close ties with public policy, 216
consortia-based research, 219
creating “thematic networks, 214
international partnerships and national research capacity, 214
International Monetary Fund (IMF) 18, 102
Investment in S&T, 222
Invisible Campus rise of, 385

J
Jorgensen, M.W., 12
Junta Nacional de Investigação Científica et Tecnológica (JNICT) National Board for Scientific and Technological Research, 75, 186, 200
Plano Integrado de Desenvolvimento, 188
Programa Mobilizador de Ciência e Tecnologia, 1987, 189, 218

K
Kant, I., 83
Knowledge Economy, 1, 34
and change in organisation of academic work, 343 difficulties in transition to, 125, 131
improvements in technological content of Portuguese exports, 125–127 knowledge integrated communities, 179 and Portugal’s shortcomings in human capital formation, 130 rise in public expenditure on education, 128
and rise of student numbers, 383, 386
in services sector, 390
and role of education in, 127–131 transition of the Administrative Estate to the public sphere, 366 transition to, 125, 132
Knowledge Society, 1, 282, 366
and EU role, 343
Kogan, M., 242

L
Labour market for undergraduates, 155
Lane, J.E., 357
Laslett, P., 25
Leadership principle and tight articulation between governance and management, 298
Learning economy, 1, 35, 179
Learning society, 24
vulgarisation of S&T to general population, 199
Lee, J.W., 129, 130
Legal codification
Legal Framework for Research Laboratories Decree 125/99, 213
Legal homogeneity model of state control, 230, 309, 360
Implications of Foundation Universities, 360
Legal perspective in Portuguese HE, 34, 162–165 change in University’s legal status, 162
as means to pursue policy goals, 162
Lima, L., 239
Lisbon agenda, 36
and consequences for access to HE, 280
Loosely coupled systems, 288, 294, 295
M
Maassen, P., 385
Magalhães, A., 371, 373, 404
Management. See University management ‘Management Revolution’ in Portugal, 287
management and governance democratised, 289
reassertion of central regulation, 295
Managerialism in Higher Education, 38
as driver for modernising HE, 298, 370
as a ‘lagged response’, 375
its consequences for the Administrative Estate, 371
its operational dimensions, 296, 298 hegemonic shift from the Academic to the Administrative Estate, 344
The Managerial University, 303 shifts in student attitude towards
participation in, 403
rise from 1996 to 2009, 228, 239–242
Marçal Grilo, E., 77
Marshall Plan for European Reconstruction Training Portuguese Engineers
in USA, 185
Massification of HE, 3
and democratisation, 403–405
driven by quantity, not quality, 407
and feminisation, 39, 340
growth of the polytechnic sector, 235, 406
imbalance of supply and demand, 139
and its significance for S&T policy, 223
new patterns of hierarchisation, 143–144, 280
pressure on public expenditure, 309, 311
and the rise of private HE, 310–313
and second cycle studies, 261
and state supervisory relationship, 236, 317
Trowian model of, 397
Mass University
and social reproduction, 143, 144
and student culture, 385
working class students, 150, 389
Migration patterns between Portugal and Europe, 93
inside Portugal, 92
Ministry of Finance
Control over quotas of posts in Administrative Estate, 361
Ministry of Science and Technology, 34, 189
hived off from Ministry of Education, 76
Ministry of Science, Technology and Higher Education Created 2005, 76, 268, 269, 367
centralised control over Administrative Estate, 367
micro interventionism of, 296
Modernity
and Idealism in Portuguese Higher Education Policy, 150
as lead up to 2007 Higher Education
Guideline Law, 241
Moreira, V., 303
Moscati, R., 335
N
National identity, 32–33
and higher education, 62
and nationalism, 58–60
redefined by the 1974 Revolution of the Carnations, 63
and religion, 63
and the state, 50–51
Nation as legitimacy for political power, 50
National Council on Education
(Conselho Nacional de Educação),
164, 170
Nationalism and HE reform, 58–60
Nation State
its historical origins in Portugal, 50
its weakening from above, 372
in the world economic order, 4 Neo liberalism
in East and Central Europe, 22 and the emergence of a ‘political university’, 33
as expression of new Economic Orthodoxy, 26–27
and the 2007 Higher Education Guideline Law, 26
its role in shifting policy discourse, 30–31, 303
and its critique, 78, 80
as new hegemony in Academia, 344
in Portugal, 26
Portuguese perspectives on Neo Liberalism, 27–28, 31
as driver changing the relationship between government, higher education and society, 26 possible impact on women in academic profession, 341–342
Netherlands, 151
  evaluation model and influence on Portuguese HE Policy, 252
New elites
  in Portuguese HE, 409
New Public Management, 21, 24, 169, 239
  and ‘governance’, 240
  and Higher Education Guideline Law of 2007, 32, 241
  its institutional impact, 241
Numerus clausus, 70, 139, 261, 315, 317
Nunes, J.A., 391

O
Open method of coordination, 265
Open University, 69, 393
Organised anarchy model of organisation, 288
  its prevalence in HE during the 70’s, 294, 336
Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), 18, 234, 271, 288
  as “Great Spectacle”, 82
  its influence in shaping ‘Managerialism’ in Portugal, 299
  and national review of Portuguese HE (2006), 32, 82, 241, 279
notion of ‘managerial autonomy’, 367
OECD economies, 122, 131
Pilot Teams in Sciences and Technology
  1963, 187
Programme for International School
  Assessment (PISA), 128
Ortega y Gasset, Misión de la Universidad (1930), 75, 83

P
Pais, S. and national vision of education, 61
Paradigm economic and the Entrepreneurial University, 5
  implications for culture, 82–85
  and neo liberalism, 4, 5
Paradigm political, 4–5
Paradigm shift, 69, 71–75, 236
  as aim of the Bologna process, 271 implications for the vision and values of the University, 80–81, 85
  as vehicle of ‘New Values’, 80–81
Parity of representation and its abolition in 2007
  HE Guideline Law, 241
  and University Autonomy Act 1988, 369 Participation
  in basic education, 98
  in the labour force
    by gender, 98
    regional disparities, 98
      by social class, 98–100
Participant democracy, 22, 26, 29, 31
  and 1976 Constitution, 69, 165, 169, 250
  enacted in 1988 University Autonomy
  Law, 29, 163, 293
  in foundation universities at base unit level, 300–301
University as public service vs. university
  as market-driven, 173
Pedagogical rates and S&T policy, 223
Peripheral purpose, 8
Peripheral economies
  Portugal, 89, 109, 110, 112, 114
Perkin, H., 338
PhD. output in 2008, 193
  in science and technology, 193
Philips, L.J., 12
Political model of organisation, 290
  and outcomes of 1988 University
  Autonomy Act, 293
Political normalisation
  and approval of 1976 Constitution, 291 Political University, 33 revolutionary intent, 68
  and subordination to political power, 164
  a vision resuscitated by Neo Liberalism, 74–75
Polytechnics
  academic career structure in, 343
  expansion of, 301
    groundwork laid during Estado Novo, 63 (see also Veiga Simão) purpose, 63, 188
  and Higher Education Guideline Law 2007, 74
  and Law 54/90 granting limited Autonomy, 234
  social class background of students, 138
Portugal:
  and convergence, 13–14
  and European policy dynamics, 14
  and exceptionalism, 12
Portugal: 1976 Constitution
  Marxism, 28
  and political values, 27
  Social Catholicism, 28
Portugal: revolutionary inheritance, 10, 22
  and drive towards New Public Management, 302
  as political ‘value set’, 23
Index

Portugal: Revolution of the Carnations 1974, 161, 196

and administration, 227–246
and governance, 227–246, 384
and ’normative unfaithfulness’, 290

Reassertion of State power, 334

Universities as political arena, 289

Post-Weberian model of organisation, 288

Private higher education, 34, 307–326
additional cost of, 374
at regional level, 98, 103, 104, 208
subject provision in, 128, 307, 313, 317
and ’take up’ of, 270
and competition, 312
in 1976 Constitution, 317
decline in applicants, 139, 389
and demography, 319
as gauge of democratic pluralism, 313, 317
geographical concentration, 320, 322
to improve efficiency, 307
its creation and relevance, 253, 268, 288, 297, 299
its role in ’demand absorption’, 38, 320, limited capacity to face competition, 320
limited research capacity, 325
move to market mechanisms
in HE policy, 261
political expectations for, 324
rapid growth rates in, 110, 113, 207, 407
role of public regulatory bodies on, 309

Privatisation of HE, 5, 22
as ideological justification, 32
Productivity, slow-down in, 115

Professional segmentation, 338

Professions
The Academic ‘Profession’ in Portugal, 39
in the Anglo American literature, 39
their definition, powers, and scope, 309
in the French literature, 39
Gramsci’s concept of ‘organic intellectuals’, 39
and relationship with the State, 162

Public administration and its ‘normalisation, 232–234
’Conditional permission’ and the ‘Parallel State’, 233

Public expenditure on R&D, 1986–1995, 128, 189

Public funding of human resources, 190
Public infrastructures, 122

Public sector HE geographical concentration, 156
and governance structures, 233

Q
Quality as political discourse, 234
as state responsibility, 241

Quality assurance and scientific quality, 241
CNAVES and erosion of trust, 253 quality control, 22
impact on private HE, 321
and Law 38/94, 238
pilot projects, 251
quality control and ‘massification’, 311
quality culture within HEIs, 363

Quality of life, 33, 89–105
and welfare provision, 102

Queiró, J.F., 236

R Rational bureaucratic model of organisation, 288

Readings, B., 72, 78

Rectors as institutional leaders, 36 appointment procedure under 1911
University Constitution, 228
disciplinary background of, 82
powers redefined by 2007 HE Guideline Law (RJES), 26, 32, 342
election and participant democracy, 231, 291
under Estado Novo, 229, 334
powers under 1988
University Autonomy Act, 29 responsible for quality assurance, 241
role in Foundation Universities, 274

Regionalisation
and ‘mismatch’ of study fields and region, 393
and student attendance patterns, 95, 96 weakening the national community
from below, 313

Report on Portuguese quality assurance system 2006, 257, 271

Research funding
competition between HEIs, 243

Return to democracy, 131

Revolution of the Carnations (1974), 10, 33, 63, 180
and its interpretation, 23
leading role of students in, 199
and role of General Assembly of Students, 229

Rhoades, G., 332, 338

Robertson, S. L., 7
Rosa, M.J., 70, 132, 255, 368
Rothblatt, S., 385
Royal School of Surgery of Lisbon, 59
Royal School of Surgery of Porto, 59

S Salamon, L., 244, 246
Salazar, Antonio de Oliveira, 335
and stabilisation plan of 1930’s, 113
Santos, S.M., 253, 255
Santiago, R., 373
School drop-out rates, 319
Schooling
average years in secondary, 128, 130
Science and technology policy, 34, 188, 223
drive towards internationalisation, 194
and higher education guideline
law 2007, 241
international exchange/partnerships, 194, 211
and regional development, 163
late awakening of scientific base 1986–1995, 188–189
links between graduate education and research, 199
quality and standing, 34
reorganisation of research units. Its dynamic, 191
Scientific competitiveness and impact on institutional autonomy, 289
Portugal and other EU member states, 218
Scott, P., 409
Senate
axed under 2007 HE guideline law, 230
composition under 1911 university
constitution, 228
and role under 1988 university
autonomy act, 162, 165
Sergio, António (Minister of Public Education during First Republic), 61
Serrão, J., 180
Soares, M., 72
Sobral, J.M., 49
Social Asymmetries in Portuguese Society, 105
Social demand for higher education, 22
and role of private sector HE, 310–312
Socialisation of students
role of HE, 373
Social mobilisation in Portuguese Society, 25
‘parental mobilisation’, 146
portugal as a ‘semi peripheral’ society, 89
Social structure, 33
agrarian society, 109–132
transition from, 92, 110
female employment
in education, 339
in health sector, 92, 339
in service sector, 340
female research staff in academia, 192, 341
social selectivity in HE, 151
Social values and changing attitudes towards higher education
decline in student participation and ‘political privatisation’, 400
towards schooling, 143
Socrates, José Prime Minister, 78
State. See also Estado Novo dictatorship surveillance of personnel, 223
in the middle ages, 52–53, 308
responsibility for HE under 1976
constitution, 165
role in constructing national identities, 51
state laboratories in S&T policy, 77, 203 ‘state supervisory’ relationship, 236
new forms of state regulation, 295
the governmentalised university, 304
State professionalism reframed, 345 emergence of new ‘organic
intellectuals’, 345
Structural change in the economy, 125
Structural weaknesses in economy, 115
Student fees, 73, 268, 393
and cost sharing, 392
and mobility, 394–396
Student support and finance, 151
Student unions and associations and collegial governance, 242
their ‘demobilisation’, 401–403
role in 1974 revolution, 228, 355–359
and links with armed forces
movement, 399
role as Third estate in Portuguese
revolution, 400
Subject differentiation, 397
Subject parturition, 18
System perspective
in the study of HE in Portugal, 19, 321
T
Teacher training
and decline in numbers, 390
Technological progress, 113
Teixeira, P., 335, 339
The 18th century enlightenment, 55–58, 83
pombalian reforms, 56
Torgal, L.R., 67–85
Trow, M., 20

U
Undergraduate degrees rates of return in Portugal, 316
their value on labour market, 155, 313, 331, 389
Unemployment, 120
Unit labour costs, 121
United Kingdom, 192
pioneer in the managerialist
canon, 287
United States of America
as a reform model, 286
University Autonomy
1988 act on university autonomy, 29, 162, 234, 293, 369, 400
as belated result of the 1974
Revolution, 168
and internal decentralisation, 294
governing bodies, 162
University Management and authoritarianism, 230
and university as ‘service agency,’ 231
University Nova de Lisboa, 69
University of Beira Interior, 69, 406
University of Coimbra, 228
University of Lisbon, Founding, 186
University of Madeira, 69 University of Porto, Founding of creation of faculty of arts, 83
social class origins of students at, 396
University of the Algarve, 69
University of the Azores, 69, 406
University Constitution, 228
University of Trás os Montes e Alto Douro, found as polytechnics, 406
Urbanisation, 94, 95, 99, 105
Value allocating bodies, 6
Value Systems and Cultural Dynamics, 103–104
high culture, 104
ideological pluralism, 104
secularisation, 103
Veiga Simão and higher education reform, 63, 85, 230
its reception in universities, 63
Veiga, A., 353–355
Vertical Power Structures in Portuguese HE, 38, 303
Vilela, A.L., 84

W
Wages, 97
Welfare provision in Portugal
and 1976 Constitution, 102
and specific features of, 100–102
current constraints upon, 102
as symbol of droits acquis, 23
Whitchurch, C., 366
World Bank, 18, 234
Wrede, S., 332