Following on the sustained success of the acclaimed European Union Series, which essentially publishes research-based textbooks, Palgrave Studies in European Union Politics publishes cutting edge research-driven monographs.

The remit of the series is broadly defined, both in terms of subject and academic discipline. All topics of significance concerning the nature and operation of the European Union potentially fall within the scope of the series. The series is multidisciplinary to reflect the growing importance of the EU as a political, economic and social phenomenon.

Chris J. Bickerton is Assistant Professor in International Relations at the University of Amsterdam. He was previously a departmental lecturer at the University of Oxford. He is the author of Foreign Policy, Legitimacy and European Integration: Saving the Union? (2010) and is currently working on a book manuscript entitled 'Europe's Compromising Union'. He is co-editor of the 2011 special issue of the Journal of Common Market Studies on the EU's security and defence policy. He has published articles in Political Studies, Journal of European Integration, International Politics and the Revue Française de Science Politique.

Vicki L. Birchfield is Associate Professor in The Sam Nunn School of International Affairs at Georgia Tech and Director of the European Union Center of Excellence. She is the author of Income Inequality in Capitalist Democracies: The Interplay of Values and Institutions (2008) and has published articles in International Studies Quarterly, the European Journal of Political Research, the Review of International Studies, Globalizations and the Review of International Political Economy.

Annika Björkdahl is Associate Professor at the Department of Political Science, Lund University. She has published on issues relating to the role of international organizations in conflict prevention, peacekeeping and peacebuilding in the Western Balkans, in particular focusing on the role of the EU as an exporter of norms in European Foreign Affairs Review, Journal of European Public Policy and Cambridge Review of International Affairs. Among her recent publications are War and Peace in Transition (edited with Karin Aggestam, 2009). She is currently engaged in an EUFP7 project on Just and Durable Peace by Piece (<http://www.justpeace.eu>).

Thomas Diez is Professor of Political Science and International Relations at the University of Tübingen, Germany. Among his recent publications are An Introduction to International Relations Theory: Perspectives and Themes (with Jill Steans, Lloyd Pettiford and Imad El-Anis, third edition 2010), Cyprus: A Conflict at the Crossroads (edited with Nathalie Tocci, 2009), European Integration Theory (edited with Antje Wiener, second edition 2009) and The European Union and Border Conflicts (edited with Mathias Albert and Stephan Stetter, 2008). He has also published articles in many major journals, including International Organization, Millennium, Journal of Common Market Studies and Cooperation and Conflict.

Hiski Haukkala is a Senior Lecturer in International Relations at the University of Tampere. Prior to arrival at the University he has held positions at the Finnish Ministry for Foreign Affairs and the Finnish Institute of International Affairs as well as several visiting positions in Europe.

Ana E. Juncos is Lecturer in European Politics in the Department of Politics at the University of Bristol. Previously, she was Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the University of Bath, working on a project on the 'EU's Global Role', in cooperation with the Federal Trust and funded by the James Madison Trust. She holds a PhD in Politics, International Relations and European Studies from Loughborough University. Her research interests include EU foreign and security policy in Bosnia, the Europeanization of the Western Balkans and security sector reform. In other projects, she has explored international socialization and learning processes within EU institutions, with particular reference to European foreign policy. She is co-editor of EU Conflict Prevention and Crisis Management (with Eva Gross, Routledge, 2011) and has published articles in the Journal of Common Market Studies, Journal of European Integration, European Foreign Affairs Review and European Integration Online Papers among others.

Ian Manners is Professor at the Institute for Society and Globalisation, Roskilde University. He was previously at the Danish Institute for International Studies, Malmö University, and the University of Kent at Canterbury. He works at the nexus of critical social theory, normative political theory, European integration and the EU in world politics. He has published on 'Global Europa: Mythology of the European Union in World Politics' (Journal of Common Market Studies, 2010); The Danish Opt Outs from the EU (2008); 'Another Europe is Possible: Critical Perspectives on EU Politics' (2007); Values and Principles in EU Foreign Policy (with Sonia Lucarelli, 2006); 'Normative Power Europe: A Contradiction in Terms?' (Journal of Common Market Studies, 2002); The Foreign Policies of European Union Member States (with Richard G. Whitman, 2000); and Substance and Symbolism: An Anatomy of Cooperation in the New Europe (Journal of Common Market Studies, 2000).

Mary Martin is Research Fellow on the Global Security Programme at LSE Global Governance at the London School of Economics. Since 2006, she has been Co-ordinator of the Human Security Study Group, which reported to Javier Solana, former High Representative of the European Union. Among her recent publications are The European Union and Human Security (with Mary Kaldor, 2009) and 'Second Generation Human Security. Lessons from the EU and UN Experiences' with Taylor Owen (International Affairs, January 2010). She was previously the European Business Editor of the Daily Telegraph and Guardian newspapers.

Jan Orbie is Professor in the rank of lecturer at the Centre for EU Studies, Ghent University, Belgium. His research and teaching focus on the 'soft' (trade, development, social) dimensions of EU external relations and on the EU's role as a civilian/normative power. He has published articles on these topics in various journals and has recently edited books on EU trade and development policies (with Gerrit Faber, 2007 and 2009), on European external policies (2008), on Europe's global social policies (with Lisa Tortell, 2008) and co-edited a special issue of the European Foreign Affairs Review on the social dimension of EU trade policies' (2009: 5). He has been involved in an international research project about the EU and the social dimension of globalization (<http://www.eu-sdg.ugent.be>).

Michelle Pace is Senior Lecturer at the Department of Political Science and International Studies, University of Birmingham. From April 2007 until March 2009, she was Principal Investigator (PI) on a two-year British Academy large research project on Arab Mediterranean perceptions on democratization, and since February 2008 she has been PI on a three-year ESRC First Grant Scheme large research project on Paradoxes and Contradictions in EU Democracy Promotion Efforts in the Middle East (<http://www.eumena.bham.ac.uk>). She is the founder and convenor of the BISA working group on International Mediterranean Studies as well as the research group on EU democracy promotion efforts in the Middle East. Her publications include The Politics of Regional Identity. Meddling with the Mediterranean (monograph, 2006); Conceptualizing Cultural and Social Dialogue in the Euro-Mediterranean Area. A European Perspective (co-editor, 2007); The European Union's Democratization Agenda in the Mediterranean: A Critical Inside-Out Approach (main editor, 2009); 'The Construction of EU Normative Power' (Journal of Common Market Studies, December 2007); 'Norm Shifting from EMP to ENP: The EU as a Norm Entrepreneur in the South?' (Cambridge Review of International Affairs, December 2007); and 'Paradoxes and Contradictions in EU Democracy Promotion in the Mediterranean: The Limits on EU Normative Power' (Democratization, February 2009).

Michael Smith is Professor of European Politics and Jean Monnet Chair in the Department of Politics, History and International Relations at Loughborough University since 1994. His principal areas of research are transatlantic relations, relations between the EU, the US and Asia, the making of EU external policies and the role of the EU in post-Cold War Europe and global governance, as well as more general issues of foreign policy and international political economy. Professor Smith's recent publications include The European Union and the United States: Competition and Convergence in the Global Arena (co-written with Steve McGuire, 2008), The European Union's Roles in International Politics: Concepts and Analysis (co-editor, 2006) and International Relations and the EU (co-editor, second edition 2005).

Emma J. Stewart was most recently Postdoctoral Researcher at the University of Bath. She holds a PhD from Loughborough University, and is the author of The European Union and Conflict Prevention: Policy Evolution and Outcome (Münster: Lit Verlag/Kiel Peace Research Series, 2006). She is currently based in North Yorkshire.

Richard G. Whitman is Professor of Politics and International Relations at the University of Kent and Associate Fellow at Chatham House. His current research interests include the external relations and foreign and security and defence policies of the EU, and the governance and future priorities of the EU. He has published in a variety of academic journals including International Affairs, European Foreign Affairs Review, Contemporary Security Policy, Journal of European Public Policy and Journal of Common Market Studies. He is the author of From Civilian Power to Superpower? The International Identity of the European Union (1998), and co-editor with Ian Manners of The Foreign Policies of European Union Member States (2000). His most recent book is The European Neighbourhood Policy in Perspective: Context, Implementation and Impact (2010), co-edited with Stefan Wolff.
