

Sexual Subjects

By the same author

THE LIFE OF BRIAN: Masculinities, Sexualities and Health in New Zealand
(with H. Worth and A. Paris)

Sexual Subjects

Young people, sexuality and education

Louisa Allen

palgrave
macmillan

© Louisa Allen 2005

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2005 978-1-4039-1283-1

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, 90 Tottenham Court Road, London W1T 4LP.

Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The author has asserted her right to be identified as the author of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2005 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS and
175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10010

Companies and representatives throughout the world

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN is the global academic imprint of the Palgrave Macmillan division of St. Martin's Press, LLC and of Palgrave Macmillan Ltd. Macmillan® is a registered trademark in the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. Palgrave is a registered trademark in the European Union and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-51145-7 ISBN 978-0-230-50098-3 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9780230500983

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
Allen, Louisa

Sexual subjects : young people, sexuality, and education / Louisa Allen.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Sex instruction for youth. 2. Youth–Sexual behaviour.
3. Sex instruction for youth–New Zealand. I. Title.

HQ35.A615 2005

613.9'071'293–dc22

2005042903

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
14 13 12 11 10 09 08 07 06 05

For Andrew, with love

This page intentionally left blank

Contents

List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgements	x
1 Introduction	1
Locating the research	1
Conceptual frameworks	7
Structure of the book	12
2 Researching Sexuality: Methodological Complexities	15
Locating the researcher	15
Methodological framework	16
Accessing a sample for research on sexuality	20
Designing the methods and analysing data	24
Through my 'I' : The researcher/researched relationship	29
3 Sperm Meets Egg? Young People's Conceptualisations of Sexual Knowledge	35
The constitution of sexual knowledge within sexuality education programmes	36
Young people's constitution of sexual knowledge	39
What young people say they know about sexual knowledge	50
Sources of sexual knowledge	52
The relationship between knowledge and practice: young people's perceptions	56
So what does this mean for sexuality education?	60
4 Sexual Subjects: Young People's Sexual Subjectivities	62
Recognising the sexual self	63
Describing the sexual self	66
Discourses and sexual subject positions	71
Discursive manoeuvres: performing sexuality in the research context	86
Concluding comments	91
5 'Like I'm floating somewhere ten feet in the air': Experiencing the Sexual Body	94
Bodies of theory	95
Young women's narratives of sexual embodiment	98

Young men's narratives of sexual embodiment	101
Sexual disembodiment and dysembodiment	104
Implications of a continuum of embodiment for the 'gap' equation	112
Conclusion	114
6 Desire, Pleasure, Power: Understanding Young People's Sexual Relationships	116
The couple context: young people's (hetero)sexual practices	117
Pleasure and desire in relationships	123
Negotiating sexual activity in relationships	129
Knowledge 'in' practice	136
Knowledge 'in' practice: negative consequences	141
Conclusion	143
7 Constituting a Discourse of Erotics in Sexuality Education	145
Conceptualising a discourse of erotics	146
Findings which support the inclusion of a discourse of erotics in sexuality education	148
Implications of a discourse of erotics for particular sectors of the youth population	153
A final note	163
8 Closing Thoughts and Future Directions	165
Main research findings	165
Implications for sexuality education	168
Directions for future research	172
Appendix	175
Notes	177
References	181
Copyright Acknowledgements	193
Index	194

List of Tables

Table 3.1	What Young People Think They Are Knowledgeable About	50
Table 3.2	Preferred Sources of Sexual Knowledge	53
Table 3.3	Does Sexual Knowledge Affect Young People's Relationships?	57

Acknowledgements

The research upon which this book is based was made possible by the financial support of the Health Research Council of New Zealand to whom I am eternally grateful. Thanks also to the Foundation for Research Science and Technology for granting me a post-doctoral fellowship and subsequently the literal and temporal space to write this book.

My development as a researcher has been expertly supported and cultivated by a handful of cherished mentors. Thank you Madeleine Arnot and Sue Middleton for lighting the way during my doctoral studies with astute analyses and infinite energy. Kay Morris Matthews and Roger Dale for sagacious advice and unflinching support always, and Alison Jones for inspiring a passion for feminist theories of education and providing me with more opportunities than I can name.

Through the tunnels and turns of this research I have encountered people whose dedication to sexuality education and professionalism has greatly impressed me, Sally Hughes you are one of these people whose wisdom has been invaluable.

Although I would like to name them individually ethical regulations dictate I cannot. Collectively then, I wish to thank all those energetic teachers and community training facilitators whose interest in my work enabled me to recruit a sample and engendered many a happy day in the field.

This research could not have been undertaken without the participation of the young people with whom I came into contact. For those who took part in the individual and couple interviews I would like to extend a special thank you for your candid responses, your time and your humour.

Thank you also to Connie Chai who helped prepare the draft manuscript and whose attention to details and type-setting skills I really appreciate.

It always seems that in acknowledgements those who have provided the most prolonged and often complex sustenance to a project are left to the last. I would like to thank my two treasured parents who have been instrumental in my lifelong education; My mother for instilling in me a belief in the power of women, the importance of social justice and teaching me that sexuality could/should be beautiful; My father for always being a pillar of strength, with an unfaltering belief in anything I do and ability to provide exactly the right sort of emotional/practical support and injection of humour that rights my world.

And to Andrew who knows me best, and brings light and joy into my everyday life. Thank you for making me laugh, and for the warmth of your love that lifts me out of daily struggles. It is these things that make my life a pleasure.