

'Unfortunate Objects'

This page intentionally left blank

'Unfortunate Objects'

Lone Mothers in Eighteenth-Century London

Tanya Evans

palgrave
macmillan

© Tanya Evans 2005
Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2005 978-1-4039-3923-4

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, 90 Tottenham Court Road, London W1T 4LP.

Any person who does any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The author has asserted her right to be identified as the author of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2005 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN
Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS and 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010
Companies and representatives throughout the world

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN is the global academic imprint of the Palgrave Macmillan division of St. Martin's Press, LLC and of Palgrave Macmillan Ltd. Macmillan® is a registered trademark in the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. Palgrave is a registered trademark in the European Union and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-51968-2 ISBN 978-0-230-50985-6 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/9780230509856

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Evans, Tanya, 1972–

“Unfortunate objects” : lone mothers in eighteenth-century
London / Tanya Evans.

p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Unmarried mothers—England—London—History—18th century.
2. Poor women—England—London—Social conditions.
3. Unmarried mothers—Services for—England—London—History—18th century.
4. Charities—England—London—History—18th century. I. Title.

HQ759.45.E93 2005

306.874'32'09421209033—dc22

2005043364

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
14 13 12 11 10 09 08 07 06 05

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	viii
Acknowledgements	ix
1 Introduction	1
Sources and structure	6
2 ‘The Insecurities of Life and Trade’: Work, Community and Personal Life in Eighteenth-Century London	17
Migration and households	18
East and West London	19
The parish	24
Work	28
The lone mothers of Aldgate, Islington and Lambeth	32
The fathers of bastard children in Aldgate, Islington and Lambeth	35
Conclusion	45
3 Courtship, Sex and Marriage in Eighteenth-Century Popular Literature	47
Popular literature	48
Courtship	51
Vengeful ghosts	59
Conclusion	65
4 ‘Craving Charity’: Poor Mothers and the Public Philanthropic Imagination	67
Establishment and management	71
Fashion and the Foundling Hospital	75
The ballot	85
General Reception, 1756–1760	89
Who were ‘proper objects of charity’?	94
Conclusion	96

5 'Unfortunate Objects': Petitioners to the Foundling Hospital	98
Rejected petitions	103
Accepted petitions	107
Misfortune	109
Fathers	117
The language of sex	122
Conclusion	125
6 The Duty of Poor Mothers in Eighteenth-Century London	127
Abandonment	129
Fatherhood	137
The tokens	139
Conclusion	143
7 Childbirth	145
Admission	150
The General Lying-in Hospital, the Store Street Lying-in Hospital and the Westminster Lying-in Hospital	154
The mothers	156
Master/servant relationships	160
The life cycle and poverty	164
Conclusion	169
8 'Be so Good as to Remember Where This Child Goes to': Poor but not Hopeless	173
Abandoned and alone?	175
Employers	177
Family	188
Friends, neighbours and acquaintances	190
Reclamation	193
Conclusion	200
Conclusion	203
Notes	210
Bibliography	260
Index	277

List of Figures

4.1	The Finding of the Infant Moses in the Bullrushes , 1749, Francis Hayman	78
4.2	Moses Brought before Pharoah's Daughter , 1746, William Hogarth	79
4.3	A Perspective view of the Foundling Hospital with Emblematic Figures , Samuel Wade	80
4.4	The March of the Guards to Finchley , 1750, William Hogarth	83
4.5	The Admission of Children by Ballot , 1749, Samuel Wade	86

List of Tables

2.1	Father's occupations in Aldgate's Bastardy Examinations, 1744–1798	36
2.2	Father's occupations in Islington's Bastardy Examinations, 1758–1801	40
7.1	Occupational and marital status of the women delivered in the Quebec Street Lying-in Hospital, 1752–1768	157
7.2	Father's occupations of women delivered in the Westminster Lying-in Hospital, 1767–1773	158
7.3	Ages of women admitted into the Westminster Lying-in Hospital, 1767–1773	164
7.4	Ages of women admitted into the General Lying-in Hospital, 1791–1797	165

Acknowledgements

Sally Alexander supervised the PhD on which this book is based and remained inspirational throughout the project, forcing me to battle with questions and issues I would rather ignore. I can only aspire to read as closely and write as carefully as she does. Anna Davin provided important initial support and Tim Hitchcock gave me much needed encouragement and information in the early stages of my project. For helping the thesis take shape at the start I need to thank Louise Falcini especially amongst the other wonderful staff at the London Metropolitan Archives as well as Guildhall Library and Westminster City Archives.

My father, Patrick Evans, provided the financial support that enabled me to undertake the thesis. The Department of Historical and Cultural Studies at Goldsmiths College provided me with donations from the Financial Committee and gave me much appreciated remuneration through teaching. The Institute of Historical Research was vital in providing a forum for exchanging ideas and learning from others as well as funding. I must thank them and the Economic History Society for the Postan Fellowship that I held from 1999 to 2000 and the IHR for my Scouloudi Fellowship from 2000 to 2001 as well as the Past and Present Society for my Postdoctoral Fellowship from 2001 to 2002. I must also thank the British Academy for funding a research trip on popular literature to the US.

For reading early drafts of chapters I thank John Shaw, Jane Desmarais, Lyndal Roper and Karen Harvey. For their suggestions and criticism I thank my PhD examiners Laura Gowing and Julian Hoppit. For conversation and advice on all sorts of issues I thank Seth Denbo, Karen Harvey, Hannah Greig, Cathy McClive and Jonathan White as well as my other fellow convenors of the Postgraduate and Gender Seminars at the IHR. Thanks also to Palgrave's anonymous readers for their suggestions. For everything else and much, much more I thank my sisters Cara and Tara, and most of all my husband Michael. The book is dedicated to the memory of my mother and was finished in the early months of my son William's life. It is now that I can truly appreciate the difficulties lone mothers must face when combining work and childcare and also the sheer joy and exhilaration that motherhood can bring.

The publishers are grateful to the following for permission to reproduce material: Blackwells for 'Unfortunate Objects: London's Unmarried Mothers in the Eighteenth Century', Gender and History, 17, 1, 2005 and the second section of Chapter 3 will also appear in A. Levene, T. Nutt and S. Williams (eds), Illegitimacy in Britain, 1700–1920 (Palgrave Macmillan, 2005), also to the Coram Family for permission to reproduce the images from the Foundling Museum.