

The New Governance of the English Regions

The New Governance of the English Regions

Mark Sandford

Research Fellow, Constitution Unit, University College, London

palgrave
macmillan

© Mark Sandford 2005

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2005 978-1-4039-9282-6

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No paragraph of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, 90 Tottenham Court Road, London W1T 4LP.

Any person who does any unauthorized act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The author has asserted his right to be identified as the author of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2005 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS and
175 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. 10010

Companies and representatives throughout the world

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN is the global academic imprint of the Palgrave Macmillan division of St. Martin's Press, LLC and of Palgrave Macmillan Ltd. Macmillan® is a registered trademark in the United States, United Kingdom and other countries. Palgrave is a registered trademark in the European Union and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-54376-2 ISBN 978-0-230-51322-8 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9780230513228

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
Sandford, Mark, 1975–

The new governance of the English regions / Mark Sandford.
p. cm.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Regionalism—Political aspects—Great Britain. 2. Decentralization in government—Great Britain. 3. Great Britain—Politics and government—1997–
I. Title.

JN297.R44536 2005

320.54'0942'09051—dc22

2005049998

10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1
14 13 12 11 10 09 08 07 06 05

Contents

List of Tables	vi
Foreword	vii
Chapter 1	The Death and Life of English Regions	1
Chapter 2	The Roots of the English Regions	13
Chapter 3	Institutional Developments in the English Regions	37
Chapter 4	The Rise of Governance in the English Regions	69
Chapter 5	New Labour and Regionalisation: Chalk and Cheese or Slow New Dawn?	94
Chapter 6	Devolution is a Process Not a Policy: The Three Pillars of English Regional Governance	121
Chapter 7	Strategic Co-ordination: Hidden Hand or Talking Shop?	144
Chapter 8	Regional Scrutiny: Accountability in Network Governance	164
Chapter 9	Civic Engagement in the English Regions	184
Chapter 10	The Ninth, or First, English Region? New Governance and Democratic Politics in London	207
Conclusion:	Network Governance and the Westminster State	230
Appendix		240
Appendix 1		240
Appendix 2		241
Appendix 3		242
Notes		246
Bibliography		253
Index		272

List of Tables

Table 3.1	Government Office spending	43
Table 3.2	Executive agencies in the English regions	46
Table 3.3	RDA budgets at establishment and for 2003–4	48
Table 3.4	Functions of Regional Chambers proposed before 1997	52
Table 3.5	Regional Chambers/Assemblies : vital statistics	56
Table 3.6	Regional Chamber committees, commissions and key groups	59
Table 3.7	Executive functions of elected assemblies	63
Table 3.8	‘Influencing’ functions of regional assemblies	64
Table 4.1	Rhodes’s network typology (1997:38)	76
Table 7.1	Final round of Regional Planning Guidance	148
Table 7.2	Planning grant in the English regions, 2003–4	151
Table 7.3	Comparison of regional strategies	154
Table 8.1	Scrutiny structures in the Regional Chambers	173
Table 8.2	Scrutiny in the London Assembly, 2005	174
Table 9.1	Social and economic partner groups on Regional Chambers – membership by category	191
Table 9.2	Policy forums and similar organisations in the English regions	196
Table 10.1	Labour Assembly members: the London ‘Cabinet’	213
Table 10.2	GLA strategies and their publication dates	215
Table A1	Regional government structures before the introduction of an elected assembly	242
Table A2	Regional government structures after the introduction of an elected assembly	244

Foreword

This book has been four years in the making, and thanks are therefore due to a large number of people. Funding bodies which have supported my research projects during that time, and which allowed me to develop my interest and to obtain many fascinating contacts and data, were the Joseph Rowntree Foundation, the Esmée Fairbairn Foundation, the Yorkshire & Humber Assembly, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, the Royal Society for the Arts, the Campaign for the English Regions, the ESRC and the King's Fund: my thanks to all of them. Thanks are also due to the many individuals, some very busy, who gave up their time to be interviewed (many more than once) for those research projects. Naturally, the arguments contained in the book are mine and do not reflect the views of these institutions.

Thanks are also due to the following people who agreed to read chapters of the book and provided very helpful comments: Jo Dungey, Michael Keating, Paul McQuail, Matthew Flinders, Anna Batchelor, Keith Shaw, Stephen Syrett, Andy Pike, Mark Tewdwr-Jones, Tony Travers and Jane Martin. I also acknowledge permission from Professor Charlie Jeffery to use Chapter 9, which is a heavily-edited version of a paper which appeared in Regional and Federal Studies in 2005. I must also thank my colleagues and ex-colleagues at the Constitution Unit, University College London: in particular, Lucinda Maer, for her research work on effective scrutiny; Meg Russell, for advice on writing and planning books; Scott Greer, for advice on publishing, comments on the final text and intellectual inspiration; Corinna Matthews for information-gathering; and Professor Robert Hazell, for general encouragement and support. Responsibility for the final content, and the argument, remains my own. I should also like to thank Alison Howson at Palgrave for agreeing to publish the book and for her support throughout the editing process, plus also two anonymous reviewers, whose comments were particularly useful in sharpening up the chapter structure and the overall framework of the book. Finally, many, many thanks and love to Clare, who has put up with evening after evening of my being present in body but not in mind during the completion of this work, and to Stephen for smiles and cuddles.

Mark Sandford
2005