The Early Frankfurt School and Religion
The Early Frankfurt School and Religion

Edited by

Margarete Kohlenbach

and

Raymond Geuss
Contents

Acknowledgements vii
Abbreviations and Translations viii
Notes on the Contributors ix

Introduction: The Frankfurt School and the Problem of Religion 1
Margarete Kohlenbach and Raymond Geuss

Part I Students, Theologians, Critical Theorists

1 Max Horkheimer’s Supposed ‘Religious Conversion’: A Semantic Analysis 15
Pascal Eitler

2 On the Usefulness and Uselessness of Religious Illusions 29
Raymond Geuss

Part II Constructions of Religious Experience

3 Emerging ‘Orders’: The Contemporary Relevance of Religion and Teaching in Walter Benjamin’s Early Thought 45
Pierfrancesco Fiorato

4 Religion, Experience, Politics: On Erich Unger and Walter Benjamin 64
Margarete Kohlenbach

5 Allegory, Metonymy and Creatureliness: Walter Benjamin and the Religious Roots of Modern Art 85
Barnaba Maj

Part III Legal Philosophy and Jewish Tradition

6 Law and Religion in Early Critical Theory 103
Chris Thornhill
7 Jewish Law and Tradition in the Early Work of Erich Fromm 128
   David Groiser

8 Critical Theory and the New Thinking: A Preliminary Approach 145
   Howard Caygill

Part IV  Dialectic of Enlightenment Reconsidered

9 Does Dialectic of Enlightenment Rest on Religious Foundations? 157
   Rüdiger Bittner

10 Secularisation, Myth, Anti-Semitism: Adorno and Horkheimer's Dialectic of Enlightenment and Cassirer's Philosophy of Symbolic Forms 171
   Gérard Raulet

Notes 190

Bibliography 218

Index 234
Acknowledgements

This book is the result of a working conference held at the Centre for Interdisciplinary Research (ZiF) at the University of Bielefeld in September 2003. The editors thank the Centre for its generous financial support, and for the professional and friendly assistance they received both before and during the conference.

Thanks are also due to the Deutsches Literaturarchiv (Marbach) and the Max Horkheimer Archiv (Frankfurt/M.) for opening their collections to several contributors to this volume, and to Esther J. Ehrman (Jerusalem) for granting us permission to quote from unpublished sources in Erich Unger’s estate.

The University of Sussex and the University of Sassari supported the completion of this book by shouldering most of the translation costs. We are particularly grateful to Ladislaus Løb (Brighton) for the great skill and care with which he undertook the translation into English of three of the ten chapters, and for his general advice and bibliographical support.

Our discussions at Bielefeld benefited a great deal from contributions by participants other than the authors assembled here. We thank especially Martin Bauer of the Hamburg Institute of Social Research and Michael Gormann-Thelen (Hanover) of the Eugen Rosenstock-Huessy Society. We are also grateful to Wolfgang Braungart, Jürgen Frese and Michael Wolff of Bielefeld University, and to Martin Bonacker (Hamburg), Martina Herrmann (Dortmund), Joachim Koch (Bad Oeynhausen), Christoph Lienkamp (Bremen), Timo Ogrzal (Hamburg), Johannes Sabel (Wipperfurth), Ingo Stucke (Bielefeld) and Andreas Seiverth (Frankfurt/M.).
Abbreviations and Translations

Primary and secondary sources are first cited by their complete title, then frequently with a characteristic abbreviation. Except for translations acknowledged in the bibliography or the notes, all quotations from non-English sources were translated either by the authors or, in the case of Chapters 1, 3 and 10, by the translator Ladislaus Löb.

The following abbreviations are used throughout the volume:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Abbreviation</th>
<th>Source</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
Notes on the Contributors

Rüdiger Bittner is Professor of Philosophy at the University of Bielefeld. He is the author of What Reason Demands (1989), Doing Things for Reasons (2001), and the editor of Nietzsche’s Writings from the Late Notebooks (2003).

Pascal Eitler works as a historian at the Research Centre ‘The Political as a Space of Communication’ at the University of Bielefeld. He is completing a doctoral thesis on the relationship between politics and religion in West German society during the 1960s and 1970s.

Pierfrancesco Fiorato is Professor of Moral Philosophy at the University of Sassari. He is the author of Geschichtliche Ewigkeit: Ursprung und Zeitlichkeit in der Philosophie Hermann Cohens (1993) and has widely published on neo-Kantianism and German-Jewish thought in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. He is also the Italian editor and translator of several of Hermann Cohen’s works.

David Groiser is Lecturer in German at the University of Oxford and Fellow of Brasenose College. He works on nineteenth- and twentieth-century German intellectual history and literature, with a particular focus on the German-Jewish tradition. His Tradition and Revelation in the Works of Franz Rosenzweig will soon be published. He is also the editor of the forthcoming volume II of the Martin Buber Werkausgabe, Mythos und Mystik: Frühe Schriften 1900–1928.

Margarete Kohlenbach is Reader in German at the University of Sussex. She is the author of Das Ende der Vollkommenheit: Zum Verständnis von
Notes on the Contributors

Thomas Bernhards ‘Korrektur’ (1986) and Walter Benjamin: Self-Reference and Religiosity (2002). She works on German Romanticism and twentieth-century German literature and culture.

Barnaba Maj is Professor of Philosophy of History at the University of Bologna. He is the author of Walter Benjamin: sul concetto della storia (1994), L'unità di senso della storia nell’orizzonte contemporaneo (2000), and Heimat: La cultura tedesca contemporanea (2001). He is also co-editor of Walter Benjamin tra critica romantica e critica del romanticismo (2000).

Gérard Raulet is Professor of German Intellectual History at the Université Paris-Sorbonne. Between 1982 and 1999 he was Director of the Research Programme ‘Weimar Culture’ at the Maison des Sciences de l’Homme; since 1999 he has been Director of the Research Programme ‘Contemporary Political Philosophy’ at the CNRS. His main publications include Natur und Ornament (1987), Herbert Marcuse (1992) and Le caractère destructeur: Esthétique, théologie et politique chez Walter Benjamin (1997).