

THE EVOLVING AMERICAN PRESIDENCY SERIES

Series Foreword:

The American Presidency touches virtually every aspect of American and world politics. And the presidency has become, for better or worse, the vital center of the American and global political systems. The Framers of the American government would be dismayed at such a result. As invented at the Philadelphia Constitutional Convention in 1787, the presidency was to have been a part of a government with shared and overlapping powers, embedded within a separation-of-powers system. If there was a vital center, it was the Congress; the presidency was to be a part, but by no means, the centerpiece of that system.

Over time, the presidency has evolved and grown in power, expectations, responsibilities, and authority. Wars, crises, depressions, industrialization, all served to add to the power of the presidency. And as the United States grew into a world power, presidential power also grew. As the United States became the world's leading superpower, the presidency rose in prominence and power, not only in the United States, but on the world stage.

It is the clash between the presidency as invented and the presidency as it has developed that inspired this series. And it is the importance and power of the modern American presidency that makes understanding the office so vital. Like it or not, the American presidency stands at the vortex of power both within the United States and across the globe.

This Palgrave series recognizes that the presidency is and has been an evolving institution, going from the original constitutional design as a Chief Clerk, to today where the president is the center of the American political constellation. This has caused several key dilemmas in our political system, not the least of which is that presidents face high expectations with limited constitutional resources. This causes presidents to find extra-constitutional means of governing. Thus, presidents must find ways to bridge the expectations/power gap while operating within the confines of a separation-of-powers system designed to limit presidential authority. How presidents resolve these challenges and paradoxes is the central issue in modern governance. It is also the central theme of this book series.

Michael A. Genovese
Loyola Chair of Leadership
Loyola Marymount University
Palgrave's The Evolving American Presidency, Series Editor

The Second Term of George W. Bush

edited by Robert Maranto, Douglas M. Brattebo, and Tom Lansford

The Presidency and the Challenge of Democracy

edited by Michael A. Genovese and Lori Cox Han

Religion and the American Presidency

edited by Mark J. Rozell and Gleaves Whitney

Religion and the Bush Presidency

edited by Mark J. Rozell and Gleaves Whitney

Test by Fire: The War Presidency of George W. Bush

by Robert Swansbrough

American Royalty: The Bush and Clinton Families and the Danger to the American Presidency

by Matthew T. Corrigan

Accidental Presidents: Death, Assassination, Resignation, and Democratic Succession

by Philip Abbott

Presidential Power in Action: Implementing Supreme Court Detainee Decisions

by Darren A. Wheeler

President George W. Bush's Influence over Bureaucracy and Policy: Extraordinary Times, Extraordinary Powers

edited by Colin Provost and Paul Teske

*President George W. Bush's Influence over
Bureaucracy and Policy*

Extraordinary Times, Extraordinary Powers

Edited by Colin Provost and Paul Teske

palgrave
macmillan

PRESIDENT GEORGE W. BUSH'S INFLUENCE OVER BUREAUCRACY AND POLICY

Copyright © Colin Provost and Paul Teske, 2009.

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2009 978-0-230-60954-9

All rights reserved.

First published in 2009 by

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN®

in the United States—a division of St. Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Where this book is distributed in the UK, Europe and the rest of the world, this is by Palgrave Macmillan, a division of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-37609-4 ISBN 978-0-230-62016-2 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9780230620162

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

President George W. Bush's influence over bureaucracy and policy:
extraordinary times, extraordinary powers / [edited by] Colin Provost and Paul Teske.

p. cm.—(Evolving American presidency)

Based on a conference entitled "Politics and policy making in the Bush administration federal bureaucracy" held at Oxford University, June 21–23, 2007.

Includes bibliographical references and index.

1. Bush, George W. (George Walker), 1946—Influence—Congresses.
2. Bush, George W. (George Walker), 1946—Political and social views—
Congresses.
3. United States—Politics and government—2001—
Congresses.
4. Presidents—United States—Congresses.
5. Executive power—United States—Congresses.
6. Control (Psychology)—Political aspects—United States—Congresses.
7. Bureaucracy—United States—
Congresses.
8. Administrative agencies—United States—Congresses.
9. Political culture—United States—Congresses. I. Provost, Colin.
II. Teske, Paul (Paul Eric)

E903.3.P74 2009

973.931092—dc22

2008035081

A catalogue record of the book is available from the British Library.

Design by Newgen Imaging Systems (P) Ltd., Chennai, India.

First edition: April 2009

Contents

List of Figures	vii
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Notes on Contributors	xiii
One	Extraordinary Powers, Extraordinary Policies? Colin Provost and Paul Teske	1
Part I An Overview of the Bush Bureaucracy
Two	Personnel Is Policy: George W. Bush's Managerial Presidency David E. Lewis	19
Three	Is the Bush Bureaucracy Any Different? A Macro-Empirical Examination of Notice and Comment Rulemaking under "43" Jason Webb Yackee and Susan Webb Yackee	41
Four	Presidential Attention to Independent Regulators in the Bush Era Andrew B. Whitford	61
Five	Coordinated Action and the Limits of Presidential Control over the Bureaucracy: Lessons from the Bush Presidency George A. Krause and Brent M. Dupay	81
Part II Control and Constraints in Cabinet Agencies
Six	President Bush and the U.S. Department of Education: The Texas Mafia, Scientific Education Policy, and No State Left Behind Paul Teske	105

Seven	The Paradox of Agency Issue Attention: The Bush Administration and Homeland Security Peter J. May and Samuel Workman	123
Eight	Policy Dominance versus Policy Success: Homeland Security and the Limits of Presidential Policy Control Brian J. Gerber	147
Part III Regulation of Business in the MBA Presidency
Nine	Flying under the Radar? Political Control and Bureaucratic Resistance in the Bush Environmental Protection Agency Colin Provost, Brian J. Gerber, and Mark Pickup	169
Ten	Efficiency, Enforcement, and Political Control: The Case of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Sean Nicholson-Crotty and Jill Nicholson-Crotty	187
Eleven	Maintaining Political Control: George W. Bush and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission Richard W. Waterman	203
Part IV An Assessment of George W. Bush's Policy Management
Twelve	Evaluating Policy in the Bush II Presidency Colin Provost	221
	References	233
	Index	255

Figures

2.1	Civil Service Systems	22
2.2	Federal Civilian Personnel System Appointment Authorities	24
2.3	Total Number of Federal Government Appointees and Percentage Appointed, 1960–2004	30
2.4	Change in Percentage of Appointees by Agency Ideology, 2000–2004	33
2.5	Percentage of Federal Civilian Jobs in the Traditional Merit System, 1883–2004	34
3.1	Rulemaking Activities by Presidential Year in Office	47
4.1	Distribution of Presidential Attention, 2000–2006	68
4.2	Presidential Attention Cycles, 2000–2006	68
4.3	Longitudinal Distribution of Presidential Attention	70
4.4	Presidential Attention Distributions	70
4.5	Composition of Presidential Attention	72
4.6	Composition of Presidential Attention: SEC Focus	74
4.7	Composition of Presidential Attention: FCC Focus	75
4.8	Presidential Attention, 2001 Quarter Two	76
4.9	Presidential Attention, 2002 Quarter Two–2003 Quarter One	77
7.1	Presidential Attention to Preparedness Issues	126
7.2	Domestic Security and Disaster Preparedness Agenda Change	129
9.1	EPA Stationary Source Air Quality Enforcement and Inspections Series, January 2001–December 2005	181
10.1	Disaggregated Budget Series for the EEOC, 2001–2006	191
11.1	Total Number of NRC Civil Penalties Assessed, 1981–2006	214
11.2	Total Number of NRC Notices of Violation Issued, 1981–2006	216

Tables

2.1	Changes in Politicization by Selected Agency, 2000–2004	31
3.1	Rulemaking Activities by President: Annual Averages	45
3.2	Notices of Proposed Rulemakings by President and Department or Agency	49
3.3	Rule Review by the Office of Management and Budget, Annual Averages	52
3.4	Rulemaking Activities in Two Departments: Comparing the Annual Averages of Clinton and Bush II	55
3.5	Time to Finalization for Notice and Comment Rulemaking	56
7.1	Agency Agenda Composition	132
8.1	Reported Policy Commitment, 2004 and 2006	157
8.2	Reported Policy Commitment by Occupation, 2006	158
8.3	Local Comprehension of the NRP	159
8.4	Comparison of Federal and State Ratings on Coordination	161
8.5	Rating of City-County Coordination	163
8.6	Rating of Interjurisdictional City-County Coordination	164
9.1	Effects of Appointments and Rule Changes on EPA Stationary Source Air Quality Enforcement and Inspection Activities, 2001–2005	183
10.1	The Impact of George W. Bush’s Administration on Staff and Budgets at the EEOC, 1981–2005	190
10.2	The Impact of George W. Bush’s Administration on Enforcement Outcomes at the EEOC, 1981–2005	191
10.3	The Impact of the Priority Charge Handling System on Charge Resolution Percentages at the EEOC, 1981–2005	194
10.4	The Impact of the Priority Charge Handling System on the Administrative Closure Rate at the EEOC, 1981–2005	196

10.5	Priority Charge Handling System and Bush Administration Influence on Enforcement Outcomes at the EEOC, 1981–2005	197
11.1	Analysis of the Total Number of NRC Civil Penalties Assessed, 1981–2006	214

Acknowledgments

This book came together largely as a result of the “Politics and Policy Making in the Bush Administration Federal Bureaucracy” conference held at Oxford University, 21–23 June 2007. Without the conference, the book would not have been possible, so we would like to thank those who made the conference possible. First, Desmond King used his considerable clout at Oxford to help secure funding for the conference and organizational details. His assistance was invaluable. Also, we would very much like to thank Lindsay Earnhardt, Esther Byrom, and Bridget Taylor in the Department of Politics and International Relations at Oxford. Without their contributions, conference participants would have been deprived of minor things like food to eat and places to stay. In addition, conference participants who also played the role of paper discussants helped to make the chapters in this volume stronger. Thus, we would especially like to thank the paper discussants who do not appear in this volume: Joel Aberbach, Nigel Bowles, Fabio Franchino, and Desmond King. At Palgrave, we would like to thank Toby Wahl and Emily Hue for their assistance in the editing process and to the anonymous Palgrave reviewers who provided the authors in this book with further ideas for their chapters. Finally, we would also like to thank Kristin Schumacher for her excellent work on the book’s index.

Paul Teske would like to add additional thanks to Colin Provost, who put the Oxford conference together, laboring long and hard before and after, to help shape the papers into this volume. Colin’s careful selection of conference participants and paper topics made the task of editing this volume far easier than is sometimes the case with a group of conference papers.

Contributors

Brent M. Dupay is a graduate student in Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh. His research focuses on American electoral behavior, public opinion, and elite behavior. He has presented his research at the Southern Political Science Association Annual Conference.

Brian J. Gerber is Associate Professor of Research at the Stephenson Disaster Management Institute at Louisiana State University (LSU), and is also a faculty member in the Public Administration Institute at LSU. His research areas include homeland security policy, disaster management, and American environmental and regulatory policy. His research has appeared in various journals, including the Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory, Public Administration Review, Political Research Quarterly, Policy Studies Journal, State Politics and Policy Quarterly, and Urban Affairs Review.

George A. Krause is Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Pittsburgh. His primary research activities focus on U.S. executive branch politics, bureaucracy and political organizations, political economics, and quantitative methods. He has published his work in many journals, including American Journal of Political Science, American Political Science Review, British Journal of Political Science, and Journal of Politics. He is the author of A Two-Way Street: The Institutional Dynamics of the Modern Administrative State (1999) and is the coeditor of Politics, Policy and Organization: Frontiers in the Scientific Study of Bureaucracy (2003).

David E. Lewis is Professor of Political Science at Vanderbilt University. His research focuses on presidential management of the bureaucracy and on characteristics of the American civil service system. He has published articles in numerous journals, including American Journal of Political Science, British Journal of Political Science, Journal of Politics, Political Analysis, and Presidential Studies Quarterly. He is also the author of Presidents and the Politics of Agency Design: Political Insulation in the United States Government Bureaucracy, 1946–1997 (2003), and The Politics of Presidential Appointments: Political Control and Bureaucratic Performance (2008).

Peter J. May is Professor of Political Science at the University of Washington. May's research deals with processes of policymaking with a particular focus on policy design and implementation. His research has appeared in leading public administration, policy, and regulatory journals. He has also coauthored four books, including Making Governments Plan: State Experiments in Managing Land Use (1997) and Environmental Management and Governance (1996). He is the recipient of the American Society for Public Administration's William E. Mosher and Fredrick C. Mosher award for best article by an academic in the 2005 volume of Public Administration Review.

Jill Nicholson-Crotty is Assistant Professor in the Harry S. Truman School of Public Affairs at the University of Missouri, Columbia. Her research examines bureaucratic policymaking and the interaction of public and third-sector organizations. She has published articles in Educational Policy, Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory, Public Administration Review, and Social Science Quarterly.

Sean Nicholson-Crotty is Assistant Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Missouri, Columbia. His research examines bureaucratic performance, American criminal justice policy, and American state politics. His research has appeared in, among other journals, American Journal of Political Science, American Politics Research, Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory, Policy Studies Journal, Public Administration Review, and Social Science Quarterly.

Mark Pickup is Assistant Professor in the Political Science Department at Simon Fraser University and Research Fellow in the Center for Research Methods in the Social Sciences at the University of Oxford. His research interests are electoral politics, public opinion, and research methods. He has published articles in Canadian Journal of Political Science, International Journal of Forecasting, and Electoral Studies.

Colin Provost is Lecturer in the School of Public Policy at University College, London. His research focuses on law and regulation in American state politics, as well as environmental policymaking. He has published articles in Political Research Quarterly, Publius: The Journal of Federalism, and Political Psychology.

Paul Teske is Distinguished Professor and Dean of the School of Public Affairs at the University of Colorado Denver. His current research focuses primarily on education policy, but he has also extensively studied transportation and telecommunications regulation and American state politics. His research has appeared in numerous journals and he has also solely written or coauthored seven books, including Regulation in the States (2004), Choosing Schools: Consumer Choice and the Quality of American Schools (2000), and After Divestiture: the Political Economy of State Telecommunications Regulation (1990). For Choosing Schools, Professor Teske and his coauthors received the Aaron Wildavsky Award for Best Public Policy Book in 2000–2001. In 2005, he received the Distinguished Research Award from the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Public Administration.

Richard W. Waterman is Professor in the Department of Political Science at the University of Kentucky. His research focuses on political control of the bureaucracy, with special attention paid to presidential influence. He has published articles in many journals and he is the sole author or coauthor of several books, including Bureaucrats, Politics and the Environment (2004), The Changing American Presidency: New Perspectives Presidential Power (2003, 2007), Bureaucratic Dynamics: The Role of Bureaucracy in a Democracy (1994), and Presidential Influence and the Administrative State (1989). He has also coedited Presidential Leadership: The Vortex of Power (2008).

Andrew B. Whitford is Associate Professor in the Department of Public Administration and Policy at the University of Georgia. His research focuses on American and comparative public policy, bureaucratic politics, political economy, and research methodology. He has published articles in many journals including Administrative Science Quarterly, American Politics Research, British Journal of Political Science, Journal of Politics, Journal of Theoretical Politics, and Political Research Quarterly. His forthcoming book, coauthored with Jeffrey Yates, is entitled Presidential Rhetoric and the War on Drugs: Shaping the Policy Agenda.

Samuel Workman is Graduate Fellow at the Center for American Politics and Policy at the University of Washington. His research focuses on bureaucratic politics and policy processes and he has published in Policy Studies Journal.

Jason Webb Yackee is Assistant Professor of Law at the University of Wisconsin, Madison Law School. His research examines international investment law, international economic relations, and foreign arbitration. He has published in Duke Law Journal, International Litigation Quarterly, Journal of Politics, UCLA Journal of International Law and Foreign Affairs, and UC Davis Journal of International Law and Policy.

Susan Webb Yackee is Assistant Professor at the La Follette School of Public Affairs and the Department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Her research focuses on public management, bureaucratic politics, and the politics of the policymaking process. She has published articles in British Journal of Political Science, Journal of Politics, Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory, Public Management Review, Policy Studies Journal, and Political Research Quarterly. She has won numerous awards including an Emerging Scholar Award from the American Political Science Association in 2007.