

Classical Liberalism and International Relations Theory

The Palgrave Macmillan History of International Thought Series seeks to publish the best work in this growing and increasingly important field of academic inquiry. Its scholarly monographs cover three types of work: (i) exploration of the intellectual impact of individual thinkers, from key disciplinary figures to neglected ones; (ii) examination of the origin, evolution, and contemporary relevance of specific schools or traditions of international thought; and (iii) analysis of the evolution of particular ideas and concepts in the field. Both classical (pre 1919) and modern (post 1919) thought are covered. Its books are written to be accessible to audiences in International Relations, International History, Political Theory, and Sociology.

Acknowledgments

It is with great pleasure that I thank the many people who have helped me during the research and writing of this book. Most gratitude goes to my wife Anita, for her constant, enthusiastic support and patience. Therefore the book is dedicated to her. Until now our household has been an example of the seemingly unbridgeable divide between a theorist and a practitioner of international relations, but I still entertain the hope that some of the thoughts brought forward in this book will make their way into Dutch or EU foreign policy!

This work started out as my PhD thesis and it owes a lot to my supervisors. Professor Nico Roos and Dr. Frank van Dun were critical yet constructive in their comments, worked incredibly fast and both of them were always available for additional advice or assistance. Above all, they are very kind and genial men to spend time with!

Dr. Razeen Sally of the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) has been a strong and friendly support for all of my academic endeavors. His work on classical liberalism and international economic relations provided an important source of intellectual inspiration.

Over the past years, I have been fortunate enough to enjoy the continual support of the Institute for Humane Studies (IHS) at George Mason University in Arlington, Virginia, USA. I would like to express my deep gratitude to Dr. Nigel Ashford for his interest, enthusiasm, and criticism.

I am also obliged to the Ludwig von Mises Institute in Auburn, Alabama, USA, in particular Dr. Mark Thornton for his advice and Pat Barnett, who did everything possible to make my research visit productive and stimulating.

The Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs has been a source of financial support through the “Partners Study Fund” of the Spouses and Children Bureau. Thank you Marisa Witte, Monica Vermeulen, and Wilma de Haan!

A large number of people have also helped me in numerous ways, for which I am grateful: Professors Albert Kersten, Paul Cliteur, and Andreas Kinneging at Leiden University; Professor Christopher Hill, my tutor at the LSE, now Director of the Centre of International Studies at Cambridge University; Professor Nick Rengger at St. Andrews; Professor Robert Jackson at Boston University; Professor Bruce Caldwell at the University of North Carolina; Dr. Aad van Mourik, now at Maastricht Hotel Management School and Catholic University Leuven; Dr. Mark Stout, Dr. Erik Knippenberg and Professors Jaap Hage and Fred Grünfeld at Maastricht University; Elaine Hawley, Chris Nelson, my fellow Summer Graduate Research Fellows, Dr. Colin Dueck, Henrik Rasmussen, Magnus Nordenman, and other people in the IHS network; Mrs. Bettina Greaves, Professor Jeffrey Herbener, and the staff at the Ludwig von Mises Institute; Janet Picken; the library staff at the Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs; Carol Leadenham and her colleagues at the Hoover Institution Archives at Stanford University; Farideh Koochi-Kamali and her colleagues at Palgrave Macmillan; Toby Wahl and Peter Wilson; the anonymous reviewer for the endorsement and the helpful comments; Ambassador Rosario Manalo, Director of the European Studies Program at Ateneo de Manila University; Hans van den Broek, Christward Dieterman, my mother, and last but not least, our beloved son Timothy, for bringing so much joy and laughter in our lives.

Mrs. Bettina Greaves granted permission to use her unpublished interviews with Mises' wife and friends. Professor Jeffrey Herbener granted permission to use some of Mises' correspondence that is part of the Ludwig von Mises Archive at Grove City College. Permission to quote from F.A. Hayek's correspondence and papers was granted by the estate of F.A. Hayek. The British International Studies Association is the copyright holder of my article entitled "David Hume and International Political Theory: a Reappraisal," published in the Review of International Studies, volume 34, number 2, April 2008, which is partially reprinted with permission in chapter 3. I thank them all.
