

---

But follow, now, as I would fain go on,
For quivering are the Fishes on the horizon,
And the Wain wholly over Caurus lies,
And far beyond there we descend the crag.

—Dante Alighieri, Inferno, XI 112–115,
(translated by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow)