

THE NEW MIDDLE AGES

BONNIE WHEELER, Series Editor

The New Middle Ages is a series dedicated to pluridisciplinary studies of medieval cultures, with particular emphasis on recuperating women's history and on feminist and gender analyses. This peer-reviewed series includes both scholarly monographs and essay collections.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

In the years I have been working on this book, originally my DPhil thesis at the University of Oxford, I have been fortunate enough to receive support, advice, and encouragement from many people who I feel have contributed in some way to my work. To my tutors, fellow students, friends, and housemates at Oxford, I owe so much for their support, and so too do I owe gratitude to my friends in the Dorsteins saga editing group, who have been incredibly supportive, and our discussions about the project helped me think about my own work. I am exceedingly grateful to my colleagues and friends at the Árni Magnússon Institute in Reykjavík, where I have been for the last four years; each and every one of you has been so helpful and engaging, and I feel privileged to be included in such a constructive and congenial community.

Through the years, many people read components of my work or discussed it with me, and gave me invaluable feedback for which I am extremely grateful. I would particularly like to thank Hugh Atkinson, Daniel Brielmaier, Giselle Gos, Emily Lethbridge, Stephen A. Mitchell, and Andrew Wawn for reading in detail some of the material in this book and being so generous with their knowledge and insights, which were indispensable for revising the arguments and style. The same applies to the many helpful suggestions and references I have been given by many people through the years, as well as assistance with locating and acquiring sources that were difficult to get hold of or unpublished at the time. In this matter, I should specifically like to thank Alikí-Anastasia Arkomani, Helen Brookman, Shaun F. D. Hughes, Marianne E. Kalinke, Merrill Kaplan, Annette Lassen, Heather O'Donoghue, Judy Quinn, Elizabeth Ashman Rowe, and Daniel Sävborg. The anonymous peer reviewer made a number of helpful suggestions to improve this book, which I gratefully acknowledge. It goes without saying, however, that any omissions or errors in this book are entirely my own responsibility.

In addition to the people mentioned above, I am especially indebted to John Davis, Viðar Pálsson, Raffaele Renella, Freya van Kesteren, Will Sweet, and Jenny L. Cox for their friendship and kindness. I am moreover grateful to my extended family for their support. To my parents, Kristín Björnsdóttir and Friðrik Már Baldursson, I owe nearly everything. For their unconditional love, patience, unflagging support, and good example, I will never be able to thank them fully. The rest, I owe to Carlyne Larrington. When I walked into St John's College one November day in 2005 to meet with her for the first time, I did not know on what a happy journey I was embarking. To have worked with Carlyne, who is stórgjöfuf, vitr, and spakráðug both as a scholar and as a person, is one of the great fortunes of my life, and this book would never have been completed without her.

I gratefully acknowledge the financial support of RANNÍS—The Icelandic Research Council—which helped me complete this book. Material from chapter 1 appeared in a previous version in 2010 in Making History: Essays on the fornaldarsögur. Chapter 2 was published in longer form as “Women’s Weapons: A Re-evaluation of Magic in the Íslendingasögur” in Scandinavian Studies in 2009. I thank the Viking Society for Northern Research, and Scandinavian Studies, for giving me permission to draw on this material.
