Cult Film Stardom
This page intentionally left blank
Cult Film Stardom
Offbeat Attractions and Processes of Cultification

Edited by
Kate Egan
Aberystwyth University, UK

and

Sarah Thomas
Aberystwyth University, UK

palgrave
macmillan
Contents

List of Illustrations vii
Acknowledgements viii
Notes on Contributors ix

Introduction: Star-Making, Cult-Making and Forms of Authenticity
Kate Egan and Sarah Thomas 1

Part I Connecting ‘Cult’ and ‘Stardom’

1 Cult Movies With and Without Cult Stars: Differentiating Discourses of Stardom
Matt Hills 21

2 ‘Marginal moments of spectacle’: Character Actors, Cult Stardom and Hollywood Cinema
Sarah Thomas 37

Part II Cult Stardom and the Mainstream: Management, Mediation and Negotiation

3 ‘You’re Bill Groundhog-Day-Ghostbusting-Ass Murray’: ‘Mainstream’ Success, Star Agency and Cult Reinvention
Jim Whalley 57

4 Prisoner of Cool: Chloë Sevigny, Alternative Stardom and Image Management
Jamie Sexton 73

5 From Behind the Masks to Inside: Acting, Authenticity and the Star Wars Co-Stars
Jason Scott 90

Part III Directors, Reputations and Cult Acting

6 Vincent Price and Cult Performance: The Case of Witchfinder General
Justin Smith 109
Steven Rawle
126

8 Cronenberg Connected: Cameo Acting, Cult Stardom and Supertexts
Ernest Mathijs
144

9 Low-Flying Stars: Cult Stardom in Mumblecore
James Lyons
163

Part IV Cult Identities: Gender, Bodies and Otherness

10 Damaged Beauty: Montgomery Clift, Tragedy and the Redefinition of a Star Image
Karen McNally
181

11 Forever Emmanuelle: Sylvia Kristel and Soft-Core Cult Stardom
Leila Wimmer
197

12 A Real Horror Star: Articulating the Extreme Authenticity of Ingrid Pitt
Kate Egan
212

13 ‘You’re Really a Miniature Bond’: Weng Weng and the Transnational Dimensions of Cult Film Stardom
Iain Robert Smith
226

Part V Cult Stardom in Context: Connoisseurship and Film Criticism

14 ‘The Screen’s Number One and Number Two Bogeymen’: The Critical Reception of Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi in the 1930s and 1940s
Mark Jancovich and Shane Brown
243

15 Cult Connoisseurship and American Female Stars in the Sixties: Valuing a Few Withered Tits in the Midst of a ‘Mammary Renaissance’
Cynthia Baron and Mark Bernard
259

Index
276
List of Illustrations

2.1 Steve Buscemi in Con Air (1997) 42
2.2 Elisha Cook Jr. in The Big Sleep (1946) 51
3.2 The Life Aquatic (2004) 66
3.3 Broken Flowers (2005) 66
4.1 Chloë Sevigny (courtesy of The Independent) 80
6.1 Vincent Price in Witchfinder General (1968) 119
7.1 Trust (1990) 133
7.2 When Trumpets Fade (1998) 135
7.3 Unthinkable (2010) 135
8.1 David Cronenberg in The Fly (1986) (courtesy of Fangoria) 150
8.2 David Cronenberg and his polysemous expression 157
10.1 A Place in the Sun (1951) 186
10.2 Judgment at Nuremberg (1961) 194
13.1 For Y’ur Height Only (1981) 228
13.2 For Y’ur Height Only (1981) 235
15.1 Ursula Andress in Dr. No (1962) (courtesy of MGM/UA/Photofest) 265
Acknowledgements

We would like to thank Felicity Plester and Catherine Mitchell at Palgrave Macmillan for being so encouraging and supportive of the project and for all their help and advice. In addition, we would also like to thank our contributors for all their hard work and commitment, Martin Barker, Steph Jones, Kim Knowles, Kerstin Leder, Paul Newland, Emma Pett, Jamie Sexton and Kate Woodward for their support, friendship and encouragement. Individually, we would like to thank our co-editors for being an absolute pleasure to work with and insightful, patient and supportive co-workers. Kate would like to thank Tim Noble and Sue Ellis for their love and support. Sarah would like to thank Adam Qureshi for all his advice and his immense support, and her parents for their continuing support.
Notes on Contributors

Cynthia Baron is Associate Professor in the Department of Theatre and Film and an affiliated faculty member in the American Culture Studies Program at Bowling Green State University. She is co-editor of More Than a Method (2004) and co-author of Reframing Screen Performance (2008). Her essays on stardom have been published in The Velvet Light Trap (Spring 2002) and Contemporary Hollywood Stardom (2003). Essays that consider counterculture taste include ‘Subversive Fictions: A Patina of Radicalism in Corporate Media Society’ in The Projector (Fall 2009) and ‘Peter Sellers: A Figure of the Impasse’ in New Constellations: Movie Stars of the 1960s (2012).

Mark Bernard is an Instructor in the Department of Theatre and Film at Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio. His research interests include the horror film, food in film, and media industry studies. His work has appeared in the journal Food, Culture & Society, and he has a piece in a forthcoming anthology on representations of the serial killer in popular culture. He is co-author, with Cynthia Baron and Diane Carson, of a forthcoming book titled The Politics of Food and Film and is currently working on a monograph about DVDs and the American horror film in the early 2000s.

Shane Brown is currently working on his PhD at the University of East Anglia in Norwich. His thesis is centred around cinematic representations of queerness and masculinity in Europe and America during the years 1894–1934.

Kate Egan is Lecturer in Film Studies at Aberystwyth University. She is the author of Trash or Treasure? Censorship and the Changing Meanings of the Video Nasties (2007) and The Evil Dead (2011), and is currently researching the local British censorship of Monty Python’s The Life of Brian.

Matt Hills is Professor in Film and TV Studies at Aberystwyth University. He is the author of five books including Fan Cultures (2002), The Pleasures of Horror (2005) and Triumph of a Time Lord (2010). He has published widely on cult media and fandom, and is currently co-editing a collection on Doctor Who and completing a book on Torchwood.
Mark Jancovich is Professor of Film and Television Studies at the University of East Anglia. He is the author of several books including Rational Fears: American Horror in the 1950s (1996) and The Place of the Audience: Cultural Geographies of Film Consumption (with Lucy Faire and Sarah Stubbings, 2003), and is the editor of several collections including The Film Studies Reader (with Joanne Hollows and Peter Hutchings, 2000); Quality Popular Television: Cult TV, the Industry and Fans (with James Lyons, 2003); Defining Cult Movies: The Cultural Politics of Oppositional Taste (with Antonio Lazaro-Reboll, Julian Stringer and Andrew Willis, 2003) and Film and Comic Books (with Ian Gordon and Matt McAllister, 2007). He is currently writing a history of horror in the 1940s.

James Lyons is Senior Lecturer in Film Studies at the University of Exeter. He is the author of Selling Seattle (2004) and Miami Vice (2010), and co-editor of Quality Popular Television (2003), Multimedia Histories: From the Magic Lantern to the Internet (2007) and The Rise of the American Comics Artist: Creators and Contexts (2010).

Ernest Mathijs is Associate Professor of Film Studies at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver. He researches the reception of alternative cinema, digital media and screen performance. His essays have been published in, amongst others, Screen, Cinema Journal, Literature/Film Quarterly and History of Political Economy. He has published a few dozen book chapters and numerous columns, and has edited and co-edited books on, amongst others, The Lord of the Rings (2006, 2006, 2007), Cinema in the Low Countries, Big Brother International, and Alternative European Cinema (all 2004). He has also written a monograph on The Cinema of David Cronenberg (2008). A single-authored study of Ginger Snaps is forthcoming. On the topic of cult cinema, he has co-edited The Cult Film Reader (2008), and co-authored Cult Cinema (2011) and 100 Cult Films (2011). Much of his current research can be found on www.cultmovieresearch.com and www.cultsurvey.org.

Karen McNally is Senior Lecturer in Film Studies and Course Leader for the BA Film and Television Studies at London Metropolitan University. She has published a variety of essays on post-war Hollywood cinema, and is the author of When Frankie Went to Hollywood: Frank Sinatra and American Male Identity (2008) and editor of Billy Wilder, Movie-Maker: Critical Essays on the Films (2011).

Steven Rawle is Lecturer in Film Studies at York St John University, and the author of Performance in the Cinema of Hal Hartley (2011). His previously published work has appeared in the Journal of Japanese and Korean Cinema and Asian Cinema; he has also published in Film Criticism on repetition in Hartley's work. In addition, he has published book chapters about The Ring films, Battlestar Galactica, Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind, and several articles on the films of Takashi Miike. He is also one of the co-authors of Basics – Filmmaking: The Language of Film.

Jason Scott is Senior Lecturer in Film Studies at Leeds Trinity University College. His current research focuses on the historical development of the character-oriented franchise in film and related media. This is introduced in ‘The Character-Oriented Franchise: Promotion and Exploitation of Pre-Sold Characters in American Film, 1913–1950’. Continuing research on Star Wars as a character-oriented franchise informs his chapters in Fan Phenomena: Star Wars (forthcoming).

Jamie Sexton is Senior Lecturer in Film and Television Studies at Northumbria University. His most recent publications include Cult Cinema: An Introduction (co-authored with Ernest Mathijs, 2011) and No Known Cure: The Comedy of Chris Morris (co-edited with James Leggott, 2013).

Iain Robert Smith is Lecturer in Film Studies at the University of Roehampton, London. He is the author of The Hollywood Meme: Global Adaptations of American Film and Television (2013) and editor of Cultural Borrowings: Appropriation, Reworking, Transformation (2009). He has published articles in a range of international journals including Velvet Light Trap and he is currently a co-investigator on the AHRC funded research network ‘Media Across Borders’.

Justin Smith is Principal Lecturer in Film Studies at the University of Portsmouth. He is the author of Withnail and Us: Cult Films and Film Cults in British Cinema (2010) and, with Sue Harper, British Film Culture in the 1970s: The Boundaries of Pleasure (2011). He was a Co-Investigator on the AHRC-funded project ‘1970s British Cinema, Film and Video: Mainstream and Counter-Culture’ (2006–2009), www.1970sproject.co.uk; he is Principal Investigator on the AHRC-funded project ‘Channel 4 Television and British Film Culture’ (2010–14), www.c4film.co.uk.

Sarah Thomas is Lecturer in Film Studies at Aberystwyth University. She is the author of the monograph in Berghahn Books’ Film Europa series entitled Peter Lorre – Face Maker: Constructing Stardom and Performance in Hollywood and Europe (2012).

Jim Whalley is the full-time researcher on the Leverhulme Trust funded project ‘Hollywood and the Baby Boom: A Social History’ at the Cinema and Television History Research Centre at De Montfort University. He is the author of Saturday Night Live, Hollywood Comedy, and American Culture and has written articles on blockbusters, stardom and production culture.

Leila Wimmer is Senior Lecturer in Film Studies at London Metropolitan University. She is the author of a monograph on Cross-Channel Perspectives: The French Reception of British Cinema (2009).