

Masculinity and Irish Popular Culture

This page intentionally left blank

Masculinity and Irish Popular Culture

Tiger's Tales

Edited by

Conn Holohan and Tony Tracy

NUI Galway, Ireland

palgrave
macmillan

Introduction, selection and editorial matter © Conn Holohan and Tony Tracy 2014

Individual chapters © Contributors 2014

Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 2014 978-1-137-30023-2

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No portion of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, Saffron House, 6–10 Kirby Street, London EC1N 8TS.

Any person who does any unauthorized act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The authors have asserted their rights to be identified as the authors of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2014 by
PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Palgrave Macmillan in the UK is an imprint of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan in the US is a division of St Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978-1-349-45307-8 ISBN 978-1-137-30024-9 (eBook)

DOI 10.1057/9781137300249

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources. Logging, pulping and manufacturing processes are expected to conform to the environmental regulations of the country of origin.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

A catalog record for this book is available from the Library of Congress.

Typeset by MPS Limited, Chennai, India.

Transferred to Digital Printing in 2014

Contents

List of Figures	vii
Notes on Contributors	viii
Introduction Tony Tracy and Conn Holohan	1
Part I Queering Irish Masculinity
1 Clubs, Closets and Catwalks: GAA Stars and the Politics of Contemporary Irish Masculinity Michael G. Cronin	13
2 Trans-formations of Gendered Identities in Ireland Jeanmine Woods	27
3 Compartmentalized Cosmopolitans: Constructions of Urban Space in Queer Irish Cinema Allison Macleod	42
Part II Musical Masculinities
4 From Men to Boys: Masculinity, Politics and the Irish Boy Band Noel McLaughlin and Martin McLoone	61
5 'Irish Lads' and English Rock: Musical Masculinities in the 1990s Sean Campbell	75
6 'Oh Me, Oh My': Masculinity, Popular Music and Reviving Joe Dolan Méabh Ní Fhuartháin	88
Part III Masculinity in Drama and Literature
7 A Postmodern Crisis of Irish Masculinity – Patrick McCabe's Winterwood (2006) Annabel Sheehan	103
8 From Violent Masculinities to Gynandricity? Sean O'Reilly's Watermark (2005) Fiona McCann	114

9	Sons of the Tiger: Performing Neoliberalism, Post-Feminism, and Masculinity in 'Crisis' in Contemporary Irish Theatre Cormac O'Brien	126
10	Mirror Mirror on the Wall: Unwanted Reflections in The Boys of Foley Street (2012) Miriam Haughton	142
Part IV Onscreen Masculinity
11	Body of Evidence: Performing Hunger Emilie Pine	159
12	Othering Masculinity in the Multicultural Irish Thriller Zélie Asava	171
13	From Symbol to Symptom – Changing Representations of Fatherhood in Recent Irish Cinema Ruth Barton	183
14	'He's a Good Soldier, He Cares About the Future': Post-Feminist Masculinities, the IRA Man and 'Peace' in Northern Ireland Sarah Edge	195
15	Pure Male: Masculine Spaces and Stasis in Eugene O'Brien's Pure Mule (2005) Barry Monahan	207
Part V After the Tiger: Gender and Economic Crisis
16	Adjusting Men and Abiding Mammies: Gendering the Recession in Ireland Diane Negra	223
	Further Reading	238
	Index	242

List of Figures

1.1	Paul Galvin in a promotional image for Galvinised	20
2.1	Panti-Fem-Bot rebuilds the cityscape	35
3.1	Vincent (Allen Leech) in the middle of the dance floor, in Cowboys and Angels (David Gleeson, 2003)	44
3.2	Clara (Flora O'Shaughnessy) and Isolde (Fiona Glascott) publicly kiss while watched by Tom (Sean Campion), in a scene from Goldfish Memory (Liz Gill, 2002)	50
4.1	Boyzone: pop masculinity, boys on display	62
10.1	Catriona Ennis, Lloyd Cooney and Úna Kavanagh (background) in The Boys of Foley Street (2012)	142
10.2	Boys of Foley Street , rotation sheet	150
11.1	Fassbender's abject body in Hunger (Steve McQueen, 2008)	162
12.1	Paul's monstrous masculinity in Savage (Brendan Muldowney, 2009)	176
13.1	Richard Harris as The Bull McCabe in The Field (Jim Sheridan, 1990)	185
13.2	Colin Farrell and Alicja Bachleda in Ondine (Neil Jordan, 2010)	190
15.1	The incomplete domestic space in Pure Mule (2005)	213
16.1	A 2010 ad publicizing the debut of Terminal 2 at Dublin Airport communicates 'business confidence' in a gendered fashion	230
16.2	An ad for Kerrygold butter showcases the export of both food products and human capital amidst the altered economic and social relations of the post-Celtic-Tiger period	233

Notes on Contributors

Zélie Asava is Programme Director of Video and Film at Dundalk Institute of Technology, where she teaches courses on film and media theory, and national cinemas. Her monograph The Black Irish Onscreen: Representing Black and Mixed-Race Irish Identities on Film (2013), considers the relationship between representation and identity in Irish cinema and television, exploring racial representations in screen culture from the 1980s to the present day. In 2011, she was awarded Young Irish Studies Scholar of the Year by Peter Lang. She has published journal articles and book essays on questions of race, gender and representation in Irish, French, American and African cinema.

Ruth Barton is Head of Film Studies at Trinity College Dublin. She has written several books on Irish cinema, including Jim Sheridan: Framing the Nation (2002), Irish National Cinema (2004) and Acting Irish in Hollywood (2006) as well as Hedy Lamarr: the Most Beautiful Woman in Film (2011) and a forthcoming biography of Rex Ingram (University of Kentucky Press).

Sean Campbell is Reader in Media and Culture at Anglia Ruskin University in Cambridge. He is the author of 'Irish Blood, English Heart': Second-Generation Irish Musicians in England (2011), which was named Music Book of the Year in the Sunday Times. He is co-editor (with Colin Coulter) of Why Pamper Life's Complexities? Essays on The Smiths (2010), and is co-author (with Gerry Smyth) of Beautiful Day: Forty Years of Irish Rock (2005). Sean is co-editor of a special issue of Popular Music History (forthcoming 2014), and is co-convenor of the Modern Irish History Seminar at Cambridge University.

Michael G. Cronin is Lecturer in English at NUI Maynooth. His publications include Impure Thoughts: Sexuality, Catholicism and Literature in Twentieth-century Ireland (2012), along with essays on Kate O'Brien and contemporary Irish gay fiction.

Sarah Edge is Professor of Photography and Cultural Studies at the University of Ulster, UK. She has an interest in Irishness, cultural identity and photography. Her published works include: 'The Great Famine: absence, memory and photography' in Cultural Studies 24 (6), with Gail Baylis, and 'Photographic history and the visual appearance of an Irish nationalist discourse 1840–1870', in Victorian Literature and Culture 23 (1). She has also published on more contemporary representations which include, 'Gender, nationalism and Northern Ireland: contemporary renegotiations in popular culture', in Nation and Gender in Contemporary Europe: Exploring the East-West Divide (eds V. Tolz and S. Booth, 2005) and "'Women are trouble, did you know that Fergus?'" – Neil Jordan's The Crying Game', Feminist Review 50 (1995). She is currently writing The Extraordinary Archive of Arthur J. Munby: Photographing Class and Gender in the 19th Century for publication in 2014. She is also an art photographer and regularly exhibits her work.

Miriam Haughton lectures in the School of English at the National University of Ireland, Galway. Her research focuses on contemporary Irish and British theatre, the body in performance, and the relationship between performance, politics and culture. Miriam's research has appeared in journals New Theatre Quarterly, Mortality and Focus. Miriam reviews plays for Irish Theatre Magazine and is co-editing the forthcoming collection Feminist Theatre Practices in Ireland.

Conn Holohan is Lecturer in Film Studies at NUI Galway. His publications include Cinema on the Periphery (2010), a monograph on space in contemporary Irish and Spanish cinema as well as a number of chapters and journal articles on gender and sexuality in cinema and cinematic space. His current research focuses on utopian space in narrative cinema.

Allison Macleod is a final year PhD candidate in Film Studies at the University of Glasgow. Within the context of Irish film studies she has presented on the influence of Hollywood, the role of the national in shaping indigenous cinema, and shifting representations of masculinity and male sexuality. More specifically, her doctoral research examines homosocial spaces and male homoerotic desire in Irish cinema.

Fiona McCann is a lecturer at Université de Lille 3 where she teaches courses on feminism and postcolonial and Irish women's literature. She has published several peer-reviewed articles on South African, Zimbabwean and Irish writers and her current research focuses on gender and violence in contemporary Irish literature.

Martin McLoone is Professor of Media Studies (Film, Television, and Photography) and Director of the Centre for Media Research at the University of Ulster. He has published extensively on the media in Britain and Ireland and is author of four monographs – most recently including Rock and Popular Music in Ireland: Before and After U2 (2012), co-written with Noel McLaughlin – and editor of six collections of essays.

Noel McLaughlin is a lecturer in Film and Television Studies at Northumbria University. His research focuses on rock and popular music and he has published extensively on the relationship between music and Irish identity. His most recent publication is entitled Rock and Popular Music in Ireland: Before and After U2 (2012), which was co-written with Martin McLoone.

Barry Monahan obtained his PhD in the field of Irish Theatre on Screen at Trinity College Dublin in 2004. His monograph Ireland's Theatre on Film (2009) covers an area of his research that concentrates on the period from 1930 to 1960. He has subsequently published chapters and articles on contemporary Irish film and theory in the edited collections: Cinema and Genre (ed. Brian McIlroy, 2007), Keeping it Real (eds Harvey O'Brien and Ruth Barton, 2004), and The Quiet Man ... and beyond (eds Sean Crosson and Rod Stoneman, 2009), among others. At present, he lectures at University College Cork in the fields of Irish Film, European Film and Critical Theory and Film.

Méabh Ní Fhuartháin is currently the University Fellow (Teaching and Research) in Irish Studies and Co-ordinator of the BA Irish Studies at the Centre for Irish Studies, NUI Galway. She is also co-director of the research network Comhrá Ceoil: Irish Music and Dance Studies. She is co-editor, with David Doyle, of Ordinary Irish Life: Music, Sport and Culture (2013) and subject editor on the forthcoming Encyclopedia of Music in Ireland (2013).

Diane Negra is Professor of Film Studies and Screen Culture and Head of Film Studies at University College Dublin. She is the author, editor or co-editor of eight books including The Irish in Us: Irishness, Performativity and Popular Culture (2006) and Gendering the Recession (forthcoming, 2013).

Cormac O'Brien is an Irish Research Council funded Doctoral Scholar in the School of English, Drama, and Film at University College Dublin, where he is completing his PhD, entitled 'Acting the man: performing masculinities in contemporary Irish theatre.' Cormac has published several peer-reviewed essays, interrogating performances of masculinity in the work of playwrights such as Marina Carr, Caryl Churchill, Rosemary Jenkinson, John B. Keane, Tom Murphy, Frank McGuinness, Neil Watkins, and Nancy Harris. Cormac gratefully acknowledges the support of the Graduate Research Education Programme in Gender, Culture, and Identity at UCD.

Emilie Pine is Lecturer in Modern Drama at University College Dublin. Her first book is The Politics of Irish Memory: Performing Remembrance in Contemporary Irish Culture (2010). She is Assistant Editor of the Irish University Review, on the Board of the Durrell School of Corfu, and reviews for Irish Theatre Magazine. She is currently writing a cultural history of 1930s Ireland.

Annabel Sheehan is a PhD candidate at NUI Maynooth. Her research centres on masculinity in the fiction and film of twenty-first-century Ireland.

Tony Tracy is Director of the BA with Film Studies programme at NUI Galway and teaches courses in film history and theory with concentrations in Irish, Hollywood and silent cinema. He has published on all those areas and since 2006 has been the editor of the annual review of Irish Film and TV in Estudios Irlandeses. He produced the documentary film Blazing the Trail for BIFF Productions and co-produced the IFI DVD, The O'Kalem Collection, and has been a long-time contributor on film to RTÉ arts programmes on radio and TV. His current research centres on Irish-American masculinity in classical Hollywood.

Jeannine Woods lectures in the Irish Department at the National University of Ireland, Galway, where she teaches Irish literature, drama and film. She is the author of Visions of Empire and Other Imaginings: Cinema, Ireland and India 1910–1962 (2011), shortlisted for an ESSE award in 2012. Her research interests include the construction and representation of genders, sexualities and local/national/extra-national identities in literature, film and popular cultural discourse and practice.