ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am extremely grateful to Joanna Page and Geoffrey Kantaris for their guidance and encouragement over the course of my research. The project would not have been possible without their stimulating discussions and detailed feedback on early drafts. I would also like to thank the many people who helped me during my project with their advice, enthusiasm, and patience, including Laura Kaye, Aristóteles Predebon, Cecilia Sosa, Paula Porróni, Jordana Blejmar, Celia Dunne, and, of course, my family. The staff and students at the Centre of Latin American Studies in the University of Cambridge provided essential support and friendship during the conception and drafting of this book. I am also indebted to the Arts and Humanities Research Council, which provided funding throughout the project, including a travel grant for a research trip to Brazil and Argentina in June and July 2010.

A previous version of chapter 5 appeared in Latin American Popular Culture: Politics, Media, Affect, edited by Geoffrey Kantaris and Rory O'Bryen.
