

Debates of Corruption and Integrity

Political Corruption and Governance

Series editors

Paul M. Heywood is Dean of the Faculty of Social Sciences and Sir Francis Hill Professor of European Politics, University of Nottingham, UK.

Dan Hough is Reader in Politics and Director of the Sussex Centre for the Study of Corruption (SCSC), University of Sussex, UK.

This series aims to analyze the nature and scope of, as well as possible remedies for, political corruption. The rise to prominence over the past 15 years of corruption-related problems and of the 'good governance' agenda as the principal means to tackle them has led to the development of a plethora of national and international policy proposals, international agreements, and anti-corruption programs and initiatives. National governments, international organizations, and NGOs all now claim to take very seriously the need to tackle issues of corruption. It is thus unsurprising that over the past decade and a half, a significant body of work with a wide and varied focus has been published in academic journals and in international discussion papers.

This series seeks to provide a forum through which to address this growing body of literature. It will invite not just in-depth, single-country analyses of corruption and attempts to combat it, but also comparative studies that explore the experiences of different states (or regions) in dealing with different types of corruption. We also invite monographs that take an overtly thematic focus, analyzing trends and developments in one type of corruption across either time or space, as well as theoretically informed analysis of discrete events.
