Acknowledgments

This volume began as an experiment – a conference titled ‘The Nation and its Repatriates: Pieds-Noirs and Vertriebene in Comparative Perspective’, held at the German Historical Institute in Paris (DHIP) in March 2012. This conference brought, for the very first time, two academic communities into dialogue that had hitherto remained separated; those working on the German expellees and those specializing in the French repatriates from Algeria. Most of the chapters published here were first presented at this conference. Others were written specifically for this book, which also is the result of many conversations between the editors and the contributors from Finland, France, Germany, Israel, the United Kingdom, and the United States.

We want to express our gratitude to our co-organiser Raphaëlle Branche and to the DHIP for providing the venue and funding for the conference, especially its deputy director Stefan Martens, Luna Hoppe, and Dunja Houelleu for their invaluable support in organizing it. We also wish to thank the Research Group ‘Global Processes’ and the Cluster of Excellence ‘Cultural Foundations of Social Integration’, both at the University of Konstanz, for their generous funding of the conference. Further thanks go to the ‘Centre d’histoire sociale du XXe siècle’ at Université Paris-I Panthéon; the Direction de la mémoire, du patrimoine et des archives du Ministère de la Défense et des Anciens Combattants; the Institut Universitaire de France; and the Center for Mediterranean Studies at the Ruhr-University Bochum, for their financial support.

We are grateful to those who gave papers, comments, and chaired sessions at the conference: Omar Carlier, Fanny Colonna (1934–2014), Sebastian Conrad, Fabrice d’Almeida, Béatrice Fleury, Jacques Frémeaux, Jean-Jacques Jordi, Piotr Madajczyk, Jürgen Osterhammel, Steffen Prauser, Hassan Remaoun, Maren Röger, Andrea L. Smith, Philipp Ther, Gregor Thum, and Jakob Vogel, and to all the conference attendees for their comments and suggestions.

We would like to thank the anonymous Palgrave Macmillan reviewers, as well as Pertti Ahonen, Mathias Beer, Christopher Clark, Mihran Dabag, Constantin Goschler, Volker Heins, Mischa Honeck, Jean-Jacques Jordi, David Lazar, Fabian Lemmes, Till van Rahden, Andrea L. Smith, and Nina Verheyen for their valuable advice on the project and on drafts of several contributions. Moreover, we wish to thank

John Tittensor for translating the chapters written by Michèle Baussant, Etienne François, Eric Savarese, and Yann Scioldo-Zürcher, and the DHIP for providing funding for this. Working with Palgrave Macmillan, in particular Peter Cary, Lynda Cooper, Jenny McCall, and Jade Moulds, has been a pleasure. Special thanks go to Kevin Hall, Irina Kiauka, Till Knobloch, Ulrike Koppermann, Lennart Lein, Brian North, Sebastian Peters, Dorothea Römer, Cora Schmitt-Ott, Patricia Sutcliff, and Lara Track for their crucial help in preparing the manuscript for publication.

Pertti Ahonen is Professor of History at the University of Jyväskylä in Finland. He is primarily interested in the history of post-1945 Europe in general and Germany in particular. His main publications include the monographs After the Expulsion: West Germany and Eastern Europe, 1945–1990 (2004) and Death at the Berlin Wall (2010).

Shelley Baranowski is Distinguished Professor of History Emerita at the University of Akron, Ohio. As a specialist in Modern Germany, her most recent books are Nazi Empire: German Imperialism and Colonialism from Bismarck to Hitler (2011) and Strength through Joy: Consumerism and Mass Tourism in the Third Reich (2004). She is currently working on a book on Axis empires.

Michèle Baussant is a Senior Researcher at the French National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS). She is currently working at the French Research Center in Jerusalem and is also affiliated to the Center for Ethnology and Comparative Sociology at University Paris X Nanterre. Her current research focuses on the memory dynamics of displaced persons and on the transmission of their experience. Her recent books are La situation des travailleurs migrants dans les prisons libanaises (2012, co-author) and Pieds-Noirs: mémoires d'exils (2002).

Manuel Borutta is Assistant Professor for Mediterranean History at the Ruhr-University Bochum in Germany. He is currently preparing a monograph on colonial and postcolonial entanglements between Southern France and Algeria. His recent publications include Antikatholizismus: Deutschland und Italien im Zeitalter der europäischen Kulturkämpfe (2nd edn, 2011) and A Colonial Sea: The Mediterranean, 1798–1956 (2012, co-editor). He is currently preparing a monograph.

Frank Bösch is the Director of the Centre for Contemporary History in Potsdam, and Professor for German and European History of the Twentieth Century at the University of Potsdam in Germany. He has published on the history of political parties and associations, global changes in the 1970s and 1980s, and the history of the media. His most recent book is Mass Media and Historical Change: Germany in International Perspective, 1400 to the Present (2015).

Claire Eldridge is a Lecturer in Modern European History at the University of Leeds. Her current research focuses on memories of the Algerian War of Independence, particularly in reference to the pied-noir and harki communities. Her monograph, From Empire to Exile: History and Memory within the Pied-Noir and Harki Communities, 1962–2012, is forthcoming with Manchester University Press.

Etienne François is Professor Emeritus of History at the Free University Berlin (Center for French Studies). He is interested in European History and in the relationship between History and Memory in particular. His recent books are Geschichtspolitik in Europa seit 1989: Deutschland, Frankreich und Polen im internationalen Vergleich (2013, co-editor) and Krieg im Museum. Präsentationen des Zweiten Weltkriegs in Museen und Gedenkstätten des östlichen Europa (2015, co-editor).

Jan C. Jansen is a Research Fellow at the German Historical Institute in Washington, DC. He is interested in the comparative history of colonial empires. His books include Erobern und Erinnern: Symbolpolitik, öffentlicher Raum und französischer Kolonialismus in Algerien 1830–1950 (2013) and Decolonization (under contract with Princeton University Press, co-author). He is currently engaged in a project on the role of masonic sociability in the imperial Atlantic World (c.1770–1850).

Eric Savarese is Professor for Political Science and member of the Centre d'Études Politiques de l'Europe Latine at the University of Montpellier in France. He has specialized in colonial and postcolonial issues. His books include L'ordre colonial et sa légitimation en France métropolitaine: oublier l'autre (1998); L'invention des Pieds-Noirs (2002); and La rencontre postcoloniale (2014).

Michael Schwartz is a Research Fellow at the Institute of Contemporary History in Munich and Berlin, and adjunct Professor of Modern History at the University of Münster in Germany. His most recent books are Funktionäre mit Vergangenheit: Das Gründungspräsidium des Bundes der Vertriebenen und das 'Dritte Reich' (2013) and Ethnische 'Säuberungen' in der Moderne. Globale Wechselwirkungen nationalistischer und rassistischer Gewaltpolitik im 19. und 20. Jahrhundert (2013). His current research focuses on the history of sexuality in Germany, 1965–2000.

Yann Scioldo-Zürcher is a Research Fellow at the French Research Center in Jerusalem, CRFJ, UMIFRE 7 (CNRS, MAEDI). He is the author of Devenir métropolitain, parcours et politique d'intégration de rapatriés d'Algérie en métropole (1954–2005) (2010). He is interested in the history of repatriations in the present time, and is currently engaged in a research project on the Jewish migration to the state of Israel.

Todd Shepard is Associate Professor of History and Co-Director of the Program for the Study of Women, Gender, and Sexuality at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. He is interested in the history of Modern France and the French empire. His books include The Invention of Decolonization: The Algerian War and the Remaking of France (2nd edn, 2008) and Voices of Decolonization: A Short History with Documents (2014). His book on 'France, Sex, and "Arab Men", 1962 to 1979' will appear in French in fall 2016.

Stefan Troebst is Professor of East European Cultural History at the University of Leipzig and Deputy Director of the Leipzig Center for the History and Culture of East Central Europe. His current research focuses on cultures of remembrance and politics of history in post-dictatorial Europe. Recent publications are Remembering Communism: Private and Public Recollections of Lived Experience in Southeast Europe (2014, co-editor) and Erinnerungskultur – Kulturgeschichte – Geschichtsregion: Ostmitteleuropa in Europa (2013).
