

Palgrave Studies in Prisons and Penology

Series Editors

Ben Crewe
Institute of Criminology
University of Cambridge
Cambridge, UK

Yvonne Jewkes
Department of Criminology
University of Leicester
Leicester, UK

Thomas Ugelvik
University of Tromsø - The Arctic Univer
Tromsø, Norway

Aim of the Series

This is a unique and innovative series, the first of its kind dedicated entirely to prison scholarship. At a historical point in which the prison population has reached an all-time high, the series seeks to analyse the form, nature and consequences of incarceration and related forms of punishment. Palgrave Studies in Prisons and Penology provides an important forum for burgeoning prison research across the world.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/14596>

Laura S. Abrams • Emma Hughes • Michelle Inderbitzin • Rosie Meek
Editors

The Voluntary Sector in Prisons

Encouraging Institutional and Personal Change

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Laura S. Abrams
Luskin School of Public Affairs
University of California Los Angeles
Culver City, California, USA

Emma Hughes
Department of Criminology
California State University, Fresno
Fresno, California, USA

Michelle Inderbitzin
Sociology, School of Public Policy
Oregon State University
Corvallis, Oregon, USA

Rosie Meek
School of Law
Royal Holloway University of London
Egham, Surrey, UK

Palgrave Studies in Prisons and Penology
ISBN 978-1-137-54214-4      ISBN 978-1-137-54215-1 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/978-1-137-54215-1

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016936734

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2016

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made.

Cover Image © Tetra Images/Alamy Stock Photo

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature

This book is dedicated to prison volunteers around the globe, including those who have never been incarcerated, who are formerly incarcerated, and who are currently incarcerated. We want to acknowledge the important work that you do which often goes unnoticed, and which, as this book shows, can change the lives of individuals and institutions.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

As coeditors we wish to acknowledge our editors at Palgrave Macmillan, Mireille Yanow and Mara Berkoff, for commissioning this volume and guiding us through this process. We could not have asked for a better publishing team. We also wish to extend our thanks to all of the contributors to this volume for their effort, and passion for this topic. We owe a huge debt of gratitude to Charles H. Lea III for his editorial acumen. He became master of formatting, reference checking, and our in-house manual of style. We could not have completed this work without him. Last, we wish to acknowledge the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) for awarding Rosie Meek the funding for the conference that led to this collection.

September 2015

CONTENTS

Part I	Background	1
1	Introduction: The Significance of Voluntary Sector Provision in Correctional Settings Laura S. Abrams, Emma Hughes, Rosie Meek, and Michelle Inderbitzin	3
2	Non-profit and Voluntary Sector Programs in Prisons and Jails: Perspectives from England and the USA Emma Hughes	21
Part II	Prisoners as Volunteers	53
3	Learning and Practicing Citizenship and Democracy Behind Bars Michelle Inderbitzin, Joshua Cain, and Trevor Walraven	55

4	Leading by Example: Ways That Prisoners Give Back to Their Communities	85
	Michelle Inderbitzin, Trevor Walraven, and James Anderson
5	Movements Towards Desistance via Peer-Support Roles in Prison	115
	Christian Perrin and Nicholas Blagden
6	The Development of a Peer-Based Approach for Promoting Prisoner Health in an English Male Young Offender Institution	143
	Anita Mehay and Rosie Meek
Part III	The Non-profit Sector and Prison Culture: Interactions, Boundaries, and Opportunities	171
7	The Involvement of Non-profit Organizations in Prisoner Reentry in the UK: Prisoner Awareness and Engagement	173
	Rosie Meek, Dina Gojkovic, and Alice Mills
8	Carceral Devolution and the Transformation of Urban America	195
	Reuben Jonathan Miller and Gwendolyn Purifoye
9	From Ex-Offender to New Contributor: An Examination of How a Community-Based Reentry Program Addresses Racial Barriers to Employment	215
	Charles H. Lea III and Laura S. Abrams
10	Penal Assemblages: Governing Youth in the Penal Voluntary Sector	245
	Abigail Tsionne Salole

Part IV	Supporting the Supporters: The Voices of Volunteers	275
11	“Volunteers Welcome, That Is, Some Volunteers”: Experiences Teaching College Courses at a Women’s Prison Kristenne M. Robison	277
12	Crossing the Color Line into America’s Prisons: Volunteers of Color Reflect on Race and Identity in a College Service Learning Project Jennifer R. Tilton	301
13	Developing Support and Self-Care Strategies for Volunteers in a Prison Writing Program Tobi Jacobi and Lara Rose Roberts	331
Appendix 13.1	Assessing Compassion Satisfaction and Fatigue	354
Appendix 13.2	Creating A Self-Care Plan	355
Appendix 13.3	Writing-Based Self-Care Technique No. 1	356
Appendix 13.4	Writing-Based Self-Care Technique No. 2	357
Appendix 13.5	Sample Self-Care Writing Exercises	357
	Afterword	363
	Index	365

CONTRIBUTORS

Laura S. Abrams, Ph.D., is a professor of Social Welfare at the Luskin School of Public Affairs at the University of California, Los Angeles. Her research has focused on incarceration, reentry, and desistance from crime among youth and young adults. She is the author (with Ben Anderson-Nathe) of Compassionate Confinement: A Year in the Life of Unit C (2013) and is currently completing another book (with Diane Terry), Life After Juvie: Young Men and Women on Desistance, Survival and Becoming an Adult (forthcoming).

James Anderson is a prisoner at the Oregon State Penitentiary, serving a life sentence for a crime committed at the age of 17. He has been incarcerated for over 19 years straight. During his incarceration he has earned three college degrees, participated in numerous programs within the facility designed to better oneself, and achieved the goal of becoming a leader in both the Lifers' Unlimited Club and the RISE UP! Youth Empowerment Program.

Nicholas Blagden, Ph.D., is a senior lecturer in Forensic Psychology at Nottingham Trent University. Key achievements include delivering keynote presentations for the National Association for the Treatment of Sexual Offenders and the National Offender Management Service. One of his primary focus areas is denial among sexual offenders. Other projects have included explorations of rehabilitative climate sex offender prisons, deviant sexual interest, crime desistance, and the therapeutic climate of secure units.

Joshua Cain currently holds the elected position of Secretary in the Lifers' Unlimited Club at the Oregon State Penitentiary. He has been incarcerated since 1998 for a crime committed at the age of 18. During that time, he has earned an Associate's Degree and is working toward a Bachelor's. He also fulfills other leadership roles in education, peer-based cognitive skills classes, and employment. He is passionate about family, education, and equality.

Dina Gojkovic, Ph.D., is a research and evaluation lead at Associate Development Solutions in the UK. She is a psychologist by training and holds a doctorate in mental health. Dina has dedicated her career to research in challenging and complex settings, including hospitals, prisons, shelters for homeless people, and children's day care centers. She has published widely in international journals and authored a book on comparative offender rehabilitation.

Emma Hughes, Ph.D., is an associate professor in the Criminology Department at California State University, Fresno. She is the author of the book Education in Prison: Studying through Distance Learning published in 2012 and has contributed book chapters on offender rehabilitation to edited volumes. She is on the editorial board of the Howard Journal of Criminal Justice. She previously served as a lecturer at Birmingham City University, UK.

Michelle Inderbitzin, Ph.D., is an associate professor of Sociology in the School of Public Policy at Oregon State University. She primarily studies prison culture, juvenile justice, and transformative education. She is the lead author of the books Deviance and Social Control: A Sociological Perspective (2013) and Perspectives on Deviance and Social Control (2015). She regularly teaches classes and volunteers in Oregon's maximum-security prison for men and in state youth correctional facilities.

Tobi Jacobi, Ph.D., is an associate professor of English at Colorado State University. She specializes in the work of incarcerated women writers and teaches classes on writing and literacy. She also directs the CSU Community Literacy Center and trains student and community volunteers to facilitate writing workshops with incarcerated adults and at-risk youth in Northern Colorado. Her edited collection (with Ann Folwell) Women, Writing, and Prison: Activists, Scholars, and Writers Speak Out was published in 2014.

Charles H. Lea III, M.S.W., Ph.D. (candidate) is pursuing his doctorate in Social Welfare at the UCLA Luskin School of Public Affairs. His primary research areas include juvenile justice, reentry, education, and racial equity. He is specifically interested in contextual and individual influences on crime involvement and criminal desistance among boys and young men of color, particularly African Americans, and the protective processes and mechanisms that facilitate positive development.

Rosie Meek, Ph.D., is head of the School of Law at Royal Holloway University of London and is a chartered psychologist and prison researcher. She is a Fulbright Distinguished Scholar (University of California, San Diego) and her most recent book Sport in Prison: Exploring the Role of Physical Activity in Correctional Settings was published in 2014. She has published widely on the role of voluntary and community organizations in criminal justice, with a particular focus on the transition from custody to community.

Anita Mebay, M.Sc., Ph.D. (candidate) is currently completing her Ph.D. at Royal Holloway University of London. She is primarily interested in Health Literacy and Health Promotion in prison populations. She is funded by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) South-East Doctoral Training Centre under a CASE studentship, which is part funded by the National Health Service in England.

Reuben Jonathan Miller, Ph.D., is an assistant professor in the School of Social Work at the University of Michigan. He is broadly interested in punishment and social welfare policy, race and ethnic relations, and the urban poor. He has recently launched a study of prisoner reentry in Detroit, Michigan, and a study of the reintegration experience in the UK, Serbia, and Sweden.

Alice Mills, Ph.D., is a senior lecturer at the University of Auckland, New Zealand. She has extensive experience of researching voluntary and community sector involvement in criminal justice, including a 2-year project on the role of the third sector in criminal justice as part of the UK Third Sector Research Centre. More recently, she has completed research on the relationship between nongovernmental organizations and the state in criminal justice in New Zealand. She is currently examining the use of Tikanga Māori in indigenous youth courts and community sector housing support for ex-prisoners.

Christian Perrin, M.Sc., Ph.D. (candidate) is currently pursuing his doctorate at Nottingham Trent University in the UK. His research principally explores the application of peer-support schemes in prison, and how incarcerated sexual offenders make sense of meaningful roles while serving time. His varied role encompasses areas such as rehabilitative climates in prisons, resettlement strategies for sexual offenders, desistance, well-being in prisons, and sexual offender treatment.

Gwendolyn Purifoye, Ph.D., is an assistant professor of Sociology at Kent State University at Stark. She received her doctorate from the Loyola University Chicago Department of Sociology in 2014. Her research interests include social interactions, urban public spaces, and the criminalization of place.

Lara Rose Roberts is pursuing her Master's Degree in English Literature at Colorado State University. She is a strong advocate for the idea that mental health should be discussed more often and more openly, especially in academia. Her literary interests include understanding how women have been portrayed as psychologically dysfunctional in Early American Literature.

Kristenne M. Robison, Ph.D., is an associate professor of Sociology and Criminal Justice Studies at Westminster College in Pennsylvania. Her primary research interests include the intersection of gender with areas of the criminal justice system such as police work and prisons, as well as pedagogical issues in the criminal justice studies classroom. Robison is also active within the prison system teaching classes in both men's and women's prisons.

Abigail Salole is a faculty member at Sheridan College, Canada. She is currently completing her Ph.D. in Criminology at Griffith University in Australia.

Jennifer Tilton, Ph.D., is an associate professor of Race and Ethnic Studies at the University of Redlands. She is the author of Dangerous or Endangered? Race and the Politics of Youth in Urban America and a contributor to Childhood, Youth and Social Work in Transformation. She is a founder of REACH, a community-service learning program that brings college students to volunteer with young people in a juvenile hall in Southern California.

Trevor Walraven is the youngest Lifers' Unlimited Club President in the history of the organization at the Oregon State Penitentiary extending back to 1968 when the club was founded. He was waived to adult court at the age of 14 and received a life sentence with the possibility of parole after 30 years. Trevor largely "grew up" inside, actively engaging in programs such as Inside-Out, club-related activities, family-orientated events, and youth-empowerment efforts. After a successful "second look," Trevor, aged 31, was released from prison shortly before this book went to press. He is now getting a chance to practice his leadership skills in the outside community.

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 7.1	Percentage of respondents in each prison that had heard of/engaged with TSOs	181
Fig. 7.2	Reported reasons for not engaging with TSOs	183
Fig. 7.3	Awareness of and engagement with at least one TSO by pathway	184

LIST OF TABLES

Table 5.1	Prison information	124
Table 5.2	Participant information	125
Table 5.3	Superordinate and subordinate themes	127
Table 7.1	Summary of case study sites and survey response rates	178
Table 7.2	Prisoner self-reported awareness of and engagement with TSOs	181
Table 7.3	Number of TSOs operating in the Eight Prison Research Sites, by Resettlement Pathway	184
Table 9.1	Summary of program sessions observed	223
Table 10.1	Text-worker activation conversation: ABC worksheet	263