

Migration, Whiteness, and Cosmopolitanism

Miloš Debnár

Migration, Whiteness, and Cosmopolitanism

Europeans in Japan

palgrave
macmillan

Miloš Debnár
Department of Sociology
Doshisha University
Kyoto, Kyoto, Japan

ISBN 978-1-137-56526-6      ISBN 978-1-137-56149-7 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/978-1-137-56149-7

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016949253

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2016

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made.

Cover image © Stuart Black / Alamy Stock Photo

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature
The registered company is Nature America Inc. New York

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book would not have been completed without the support of many people who shared with me their experiences, provided me with advice and guidance, and supported me in good and bad times. First of all, my thanks go to all interviewees who shared their personal stories and opinions, which formed the essence of this thesis and helped me to understand the topics addressed here. Unfortunately, given the personal character of their narratives and considerably large number of the interviewees and other informants, I can thank them only as anonymous participants here, yet I believe the message would be conveyed to them. Without the willingness to participate in this project and the sincere attitude of each of them, the empirical part of this project would have been significantly harder to accomplish.

I also want to express my deep gratitude to all those who helped me to develop the ideas presented in this book. It is impossible to ‘rank’ all the individuals who helped me on my way, yet I wish to start with my advisor, Prof. Motoji Matsuda, who helped me not only as an academic and tutor with countless hours of discussions and advice, but was also sensitive to my personal situation and would support me when I needed it the most. I also wish to thank Prof. Kimio Itō, Prof. Yasuko Takezawa, and Assoc. Prof. Hiroshi Tarōmaru, who helped me to develop my ideas by being generous with their comments and advice. I greatly appreciate the help of all my former colleagues and friends from the Department of Sociology at Kyoto University, and my present colleagues at Doshisha University. They have not only provided me with valuable comments and advice but also with inspiration and encouragement for my work. Daniel Milne,

Kyle Thompson, and Martin Čieško helped me with corrections in English, for which I am grateful. The insights and advice of all the people listed here and all others whom I cannot thank personally were of great value for this study. Nevertheless, it is necessary to emphasize that all opinions and interpretations of the findings are mine as well as are the possible mistakes or misinterpretations.

And last, but definitely not the least, I wish to thank my wife, son, and other members of the family who provided me with much-needed emotional support, energy, and inspiration, without which I would not have finished this project. They all showed a lot of patience and were of great support on this long journey which I choose to take and wanted to accomplish.

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
	Part I Migration	27
2	European Migration to Japan: Historical Roots and Recent Development	29
3	Between Entertainers and High-Skilled Elites: Skills, Study, and Marriage	65
	Part II Integration and Privilege	109
4	Race and Privilege in Integration: Occupations, White Privilege, and Gender	111
5	White Privilege Revised: White Man's 'Burden' in Japan	143

Part III	Cosmopolitanism	177
6	Integration and Social Relations: Between Ethnicity and Cosmopolitanism	179
7	Conclusions	209
	Index	229

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 1.1	Number of registered Europeans living in Japan and the main countries of origin (1986–2014). Source: Based upon data from the Statistics on the Foreigners Registered in Japan for years 1986–2014 (Ministry of Justice, Immigration Bureau)	14
Fig. 2.1	Number of foreign residents in Japan, 1986–2014. Source: Based upon data from Statistics on the Foreigners Registered in Japan for years 1986–2014 (Ministry of Justice, Immigration Bureau)	31
Fig. 2.2	Number of European residents in Japan, 1986–2014. Source: Based upon data from Statistics on the Foreigners Registered in Japan for years 1986–2014 (Ministry of Justice, Immigration Bureau)	41
Fig. 2.3	Major visa categories of European residents in Japan, 2014. Source: Based upon data from Statistics on the Foreigners Registered in Japan, 2014 (Ministry of Justice, Immigration Bureau)	43
Fig. 2.4	Change in the share of the major visa categories, 1986–2011. Source: Based upon data from Statistics on the Foreigners Registered in Japan for years 1986–2011 (Ministry of Justice, Immigration Bureau)	44
Fig. 6.1	Social network of Vaclav. The figure was created in dedicated software for visualizing and handling ego-centric social networks VennMaker (available at www.vennmaker.com )	184
Fig. 6.2	The social network of Europeans surrounding university. The network was visualized in a dedicated software Gephi in version 0.8.2 (available at www.gephi.org )	187

LIST OF TABLE

Table 2.1	Results of the $k$ -means cluster analysis of the European migration patterns (final cluster centers)	53
-----------	---	----