

Literatures of the Americas

Series Editor

Norma E. Cantú
Kansas City, Missouri, USA

This series seeks to bring forth contemporary critical interventions within a hemispheric perspective, with an emphasis on perspectives from Latin America. Books in the series highlight work that explores concerns in literature in different cultural contexts across historical and geographical boundaries and also include work on the specific Latina/o realities in the United States. Designed to explore key questions confronting contemporary issues of literary and cultural import, Literatures of the Americas is rooted in traditional approaches to literary criticism but seeks to include cutting-edge scholarship using theories from postcolonial, critical race, and ecofeminist approaches.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am grateful to the Society for Study of Gloria Anzaldúa for providing consistent and essential critical and ritualized opportunities to engage and discuss the work and impact of Gloria Anzaldúa. Thanks to Series Editor Norma E. Cantú for her work on and encouragement toward valuing folklore as a fundamental part of the conversation about Chicana fiction. Thanks also to my colleagues in the American Cultures Seminar Series at Miami University for their challenging feedback and thoughtful commentary on early portions of this book. Thanks are also due to the Howe Writing Center at Miami University, under the direction of Kate Ronald, which supported through funding and workshops many unique and extended opportunities over the years for faculty to write together; I could not have completed this work without such sustained, focused, and nourishing time to write. Thanks also to the Office of the Dean at Miami University Regionals for supporting my research efforts by providing similar opportunities for focused writing and for recognition of such effort.

There are those without whose friendship I could not have seen my way through this rite of passage. Thanks to my colleague and sister soror Dr Tammy Kernodle for years of friendship, encouragement, and many hours discussing the intersections of transcendence, history, ritual, and social justice that helped transform this book. Thanks are equally due to my colleague and sister spirit Dr Shawnrece Campbell for her joy, fortitude, and collaboration; it is wonderful to have a friend with whom your academic work and spiritual work align. Thanks to my colleague and dear friend Dr Stefanie K. Dunning, whose balance of intellect, humor, and seeking spirit have so blessed my own. Thanks to Dr Yvonne Keller for her diligent, thoughtful, and patient close reading of the earliest, most convoluted of thoughts that led to this book. Thanks also to Dr Bennyce Hamilton for sharing her home as a place to write about and celebrate healing.

Thanks to the editorial staff at Palgrave Macmillan, including Brigitte Shull and Ryan Jenkins, but particularly to Paloma Yannakakis whose unfailing patience was key to navigating the details of the editorial process. Thanks also to Palgrave Macmillan's anonymous reviewers of the manuscript.

I am indebted to my husband Semion E. Androne for his unfailing support and gritty resolve that never allowed excuse or failure. Thanks also to our children who, as young lovers of books, provided happy bursts of excitement and pride at the thought that their mother could actually write one.
