

Problems of Philosophy

General Editor: D. J. O'CONNOR

Each volume in this series provides a short introductory study of one of the main problems of philosophy. An account is given of the ways in which the given problem has been seen in the history of philosophy, and of the principal solutions which philosophers have advanced.

An important feature of the series is that in each study the language and the treatment are as simple as is compatible with a serious presentation of the philosophical difficulties. A full bibliography is included.
