Introduction

This book provides a comprehensive treatment to the subject of major World Religions. It is aimed primarily at those studying for the GCSE examination, but will also provide an excellent introduction for A Level, higher education and for the general reader who is fascinated by this subject. It will also be suitable for general and liberal studies courses and for those whose studies require them to understand the beliefs of the newer communities in our multicultural society.

The text covers the six religions currently prescribed by the examination boards – Judaism, Christianity, Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism and Sikhism. It conveys clear information about every significant aspect of these religions.

At the time of writing, the number of students on religious studies courses is rising. Added to this, increasing numbers of people are looking for inspiration and guidance in today's secular and materialistic world. This book will help those engaged in such a quest.
