Preface

This book reprints sixteen mainly recent articles on regional economics. The criteria for selection are explained in the introduction, where the reader's attention is drawn to related research. I am grateful to the authors for permission to make minor amendments and to prune the number of notes. I should especially like to thank Professor Joseph Airov for allowing me to make substantial modifications to his paper in order to simplify it into a form suitable for undergraduates. I am indebted to Mrs Sally Maxwell for efficient typing.
