Radical Theologies and Philosophies is a call for transformational theologies that break out of traditional locations and approaches. The rhizomic ethos of radical theologies enable the series to engage with an ever-expanding radical expression and critique of theologies that have entered or seek to enter the public sphere, arising from the continued turn to religion and especially radical theology in politics, social sciences, philosophy, theory, cultural, and literary studies. The post-theistic theology both driving and arising from these intersections is the focus of this series.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Firstly, I would like to deeply thank Bülent Diken for all his academic insights when the main ideas of this book were taking shape. Bülent continues to be a source of intellectual inspiration on my work.

Undoubtedly, this book could not have been finished without the unconditional support of my family, Gabriela, Júlio, Paula and Sofia. I simply cannot be grateful enough to them.

I am also deeply grateful to my friend Diana Stypinska, with whom I had the privilege to lively and enthusiastically discuss every single idea of this book. Her constant encouragement throughout the entire writing process was, and remains, an unforgettable and incredibly generous gesture.

The precious comradeship, patience and compassion of Carmen Ríos García, Daniel Lacerda, Daniel Martin, Ian Bryan, Joanne Wood, Kamonchanok Sanmuang, Liciana Lacerda, Macarena Rioseco, Miriam Meissner, Nader Talebi, Oliver Simpson and Vittorio Tantucci were vital to persevere with this project.

I would also like to thank my friends Catarina Leal, Cátia Domingues, Davide Freitas, Inês Melo, Mara Sé, Mariana Goes, Rosa Félix and Rui Duarte, who always had their doors open whenever I returned to Lisbon.
