

Motherhood in Antiquity

Dana Cooper • Claire Phelan
Editors

Motherhood in Antiquity

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Dana Cooper
Stephen F. Austin State University
Nacogdoches, Texas, USA

Claire Phelan
University of Mary Hardin-Baylor
Belton, Texas, USA

ISBN 978-3-319-48901-8 ISBN 978-3-319-48902-5 (eBook)
DOI 10.1007/978-3-319-48902-5

Library of Congress Control Number: 2017933310

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2017

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover illustration: © United Archives GmbH / Alamy Stock Photo.

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature
The registered company is Springer International Publishing AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

*To Brenda Cooper, to all a mother, in every sense of the word.
In memory of Louise Hewlett, a beautiful and much-beloved child.*

CONTENTS

Introduction	1
Dana Cooper and Claire Phelan
Part I Motherhood and Religion	7
“I Arose a Mother in Israel”: Motherhood as a Liberating Power in the Biblical Stories of Miriam and Deborah	9
Dvora Lederman-Daniely
Models of Devotion?: The Rhetoric of Ambivalence and Admonition in Late Antique and Early Christian Discourse on Women and Motherhood	29
June-Ann Greeley
Motherhood in the Ancient Indian Buddhist World: A Soteriological Path	55
Pascale Engelmajer
Part II Motherhood and Politics	77

Mother Knows Best: Motherhood and Succession in the Seleucid Realm Alex McAuley	79
Mamaea's Little Man: Alexander Severus, His Mother, and the Germanic War Karl E. Baughman	107
Jingû: Narratives of Motherhood and Imperial Rule in Early Japan Kendra Strand	123
Part III Motherhood and Identity	143
Earthly and Divine Mothers in Ancient Egypt Emily Teeter	145
Bronze Age Beginnings: The Conceptualization of Motherhood in Prehistoric Europe Katharina Rebay-Salisbury	169
From Cybele to Artemis: Motherhood and Great Mothers of Ancient Anatolia Nilgün Anadolu-Okur	197
Motherhood, Personhood, Identity, and Place-Making in Ancient Mesoamerica Kathryn M. Hudson and John S. Henderson	223
Index	257

LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

Nilgün Anadolu-Okur is Professor of African American Studies at Temple University. She is the author of Dismantling Slavery: Frederick Douglass, William Lloyd Garrison and the Formation of the Abolitionist Discourse, 1841–1851; Contemporary African American Theater: Afrocentricity in the Works of Larry Neal, Amiri Baraka, and Charles Fuller; Essays Interpreting the Novels of Orhan Pamuk; and Islam, Women and Globalization in the Twenty-First Century. Her work has appeared in many peer-reviewed journals, such as Journal of Black Studies and Gender Issues besides contributing chapters to reference books and encyclopedias. She is the recipient of numerous awards and honors, including two International Fulbright awards, the Pennsylvania Legislative Black Caucus Award, and the J. Howard Wert American Heritage Award.

Karl E. Baughman is Assistant Professor of History at Prairie View A&M University, Prairie View, Texas. His interests center on the Roman Empire, early Christianity, and gender, and his most recent research and publications explore the connection between gender and imperial authority in Rome, particularly the influence of empresses in the first three centuries. Currently, he is also working on a monograph about the Roman emperor, Commodus.

Dana Cooper is Professor of History at Stephen F. Austin State University, Nacogdoches, Texas, specializing in women, gender, and transatlantic history. She has presented papers in England, Holland, and Austria and has published with presses in Sweden, the Netherlands, and the United States. Her latest work, Informal Ambassadors: American Women, Transatlantic Marriages, and Anglo-American Relations 1865–1945 (2014), led to her interview for the documentary Million Dollar American Princesses, which appeared on the Smithsonian Channel. Other works include Transatlantic Relations and Modern Diplomacy: An Interdisciplinary Examination (2013) and Motherhood and War: International Perspectives (Palgrave, 2014).

Pascale Engelmaier teaches Religious Studies at Carroll University, Wisconsin, USA. She is the author of Women in Pāli Buddhism: Walking the Spiritual Path in Mutual Dependence (2014) and Buddhism: All That Matters (2013). Her research focuses on women in Buddhism. She has lived and taught in the United Kingdom, Thailand, Hong Kong and the United States.

June-Ann Greeley is Associate Professor in the Department of Theology and Religious Studies at Sacred Heart University, Fairfield, Connecticut. Her research interests and publications focus on Medieval Latin literature; religious and intellectual history of the late antique/early Christian and early medieval (including Carolingian) eras; early medieval religious culture and piety; early Christian and medieval women's spirituality; medieval Christian and Islamic mysticism, Celtic Studies, especially Celtic Christian hagiography, and medieval aesthetics.

John S. Henderson is Professor of Anthropology at Cornell University. His interests center on early complex societies, especially how distinctions in status, wealth, and authority develop and how imagery and text are deployed to maintain and enhance them. Another set of interests revolves around identity and how groups are reflected in archaeological remains. Henderson has written extensively about these issues in the context of ancient Mesoamerica. His field research focuses on the Ulúa River valley in Honduras.

Kathryn M. Hudson is a member of the Department of Anthropology and the Department of Linguistics at the University at Buffalo. Her archaeological research focuses primarily on ceramic analysis and the study of ancient imagery systems, particularly in Mesoamerica and Southeastern Europe, and on mechanisms of identity construction and processes of visual and non-verbal communication. Her linguistic work focuses on linguistic documentation as well as on historical research. She has published and presented widely on both topics.

Dvora Lederman-Daniely is a lecturer at the David Yellin Academic College of Education in Jerusalem, and a researcher in the field of feminine traditions in the biblical stories. She focuses on the reconstruction of the traces of Goddess' religion in the religion of ancient Israel.

Alex McAuley is a lecturer in Hellenistic History at Cardiff University. In addition to his principal work on localism and globalism in the Hellenistic World, he is also the principal author and editor of the ongoing Seleucid Genealogy project, and along with Altay Coskun he edited the volume Seleucid Royal Women. He has published widely on women in the Hellenistic World, Seleucid Dynastic practice, and the political culture of Greek cities. He also works extensively on the reception of antiquity in film and television.

Claire Phelan is Associate Professor of History at the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor. She regularly presents her research at conferences both in the United States and overseas. Her publications include Motherhood and War: International Perspectives (2014), of which she was a contributor and co-editor with Dana Cooper.

Katharina Rebay-Salisbury researches motherhood in prehistoric Europe at the Austrian Academy of Sciences in Vienna. Her approach is to combine archaeological data with physical anthropology, forensics, ancient DNA and isotope analysis to understand social responses to pregnancy, childbirth and childrearing. Previously, she has worked on the archaeology of the human body, art and identity at the Universities of Cambridge and Leicester, UK.

Kendra Strand is Assistant Professor of Japanese at the University of Iowa, where she teaches Japanese literature and culture. Her research focuses on premodern Japanese travel writing, poetry, and visual culture. She is also interested in issues of canon, reception, and the links between political power and literary production in Japan from the earliest times to the present day.

Emily Teeter is Egyptologist, Research Associate, and coordinator of exhibits at the Oriental Institute Museum at the University of Chicago. She is the author of a wide variety of scholarly and semi-popular works, including Baked Clay Figurines and Votive Beds from Medinet Habu (2011), Egypt and the Egyptians (2006, with Douglas Brewer which has appeared in Arabic and Turkish editions), and Religion and Ritual in Ancient Egypt (2011).

LIST OF FIGURES

- | | | |
|--------|---|-----|
| Fig. 1 | Group of female figurines. Medinet Habu, Luxor. Baked clay, pigment, ca. 945–715 B.C., OIM E14594, E14583, E14613. Photo D. 19439, Courtesy of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago | 148 |
| Fig. 2 | Isis and her son Horus. Bronze, ca. 500 B.C., OIM E10682. Photo D. 19283, Courtesy of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago | 157 |
| Fig. 1 | Elaborate double-roofed steambath at Tepoztlan. Upper: sweat chamber, firing facility, and drainage; lower left: cutaway showing sweat chamber, opening to upper firing chamber and drainage; lower right: cutaway showing firing chamber and opening to sweat chamber. The fire is built in the lower section of the chamber and when the volcanic stones above are hot, water thrown on them from the sweat chamber produces steam. Drawing by John S. Henderson after Frank Cresson, “Maya and Mexican Sweat Houses,” American Anthropologist 40, no. 1 (1938): Fig. 5. | 226 |
| Fig. 2 | Doorway in form of feline mouth, the main temple, Malinalco. Photo by John S. Henderson | 228 |
| Fig. 3 | Doorway in form of reptile mouth, Structure 2, Chicanná. Photo by John S. Henderson | 229 |
| Fig. 4 | Maya ruler wearing a hybrid costume with long beaded skirt usually worn by women and short jaguar skin kilt typical of male dress, Stela H, Copán. Photo by John S. Henderson | 232 |
| Fig. 5 | Steambath, Codex Magliabechiano, Folio 77r | 235 |
| Fig. 6 | Interior shrine (symbolic steambath) visible in the rear room, Temple of the Cross, Palenque. Photo by John S. Henderson | 236 |

Fig. 7	Altar 4, La Venta. Photo by John S. Henderson	238
Fig. 8	Altar 5, La Venta. Photo by John S. Henderson	239
Fig. 9	Detail of reliefs on side, Altar 5, La Venta. Photo by John S. Henderson	240
Fig. 10	Detail, Monument 1, Chalcatzingo. Photo by John S. Henderson	243
Fig. 11	Plan of Early Formative household (Str 4) with steambath, Puerto Escondido. Drawing by John S. Henderson	245