Palgrave Studies in Literature, Science and Medicine is an exciting new series that focuses on one of the most vibrant and interdisciplinary areas in literary studies: the intersection of literature, science and medicine. Comprised of academic monographs, essay collections, and Palgrave Pivot books, the series will emphasize a historical approach to its subjects, in conjunction with a range of other theoretical approaches. The series will cover all aspects of this rich and varied field and is open to new and emerging topics as well as established ones.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many thanks are due to the contributors for supporting this collection, and to Ben Doyle at Palgrave for commissioning the book. Hrileena Ghosh, Richard Marggraf Turley and Sarah Wootton helped to organise the third Keats Bicentenary Conference at Guy's Hospital, May 2015, on which John Keats and the Medical Imagination is based. Without their energy and enthusiasm that event would not have happened, and this book would not exist. I'd also like to thank my fellow trustees of the Keats Foundation, Ashley Goodall, Dr. Toni Griffiths, Bob Hall, Judith Palmer and Simon Taylor.

EDITOR AND CONTRIBUTORS

About the Editor

Nicholas Roe is Wardlaw Professor of English Literature at the University of St Andrews, Chair of the Keats Foundation and a Trustee of the Wordsworth Conference Foundation. He has published several books on John Keats, including John Keats and the Culture of Dissent (1997), John Keats: A New Life (2012) and, as editor, Keats and History (1995).

Contributors

John Barnard Emeritus Professor of English, University of Leeds, has published widely on Keats and the second-generation Romantics, and on seventeenth-century literature, drama, and book history. His many publications include John Keats (1987) and editions of Keats's Complete Poems (1973) and his Selected Letters (2014).

Druin Burch is a doctor working in Oxford. He has written a biography of Astley Cooper, Digging Up the Dead (2007) and Taking the Medicine (2009)—a short history of medicine's beautiful idea, and our difficulty swallowing it.

Jeffrey N. Cox is Vice Provost and Associate Vice Chancellor for Faculty Affairs at the University of Colorado Boulder where he is also an Arts and Sciences Professor of Distinction and Professor of English, of Comparative Literature, and of Humanities. He is the author or editor of ten books, including In the Shadows of Romance: Romantic Tragic Drama in Germany, England, and France (1987) and Poetry and Politics in the Cockney School: Shelley, Keats, Hunt, and their Circle (1998), winner of the 2000 South Central Modern Language Association Best Book Award. His most recent book, Romanticism in the Shadow of War: The Culture of the Napoleonic War Years, was published by Cambridge University Press in Fall 2014. He is the author of more than forty articles that have appeared in such journals as Comparative Literature, English Literary History, and Studies in Romanticism. In 2009, he received the Distinguished Scholar Award from the Keats-Shelley Association of America.

Stuart Curran, Vartan Gregorian Emeritus Professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania, served as President of the Keats-Shelley Association of America from 2007 to 2016. His publications include Shelley's Annus Mirabilis: The Maturing of an Epic Vision (1975), Poetic Form and British Romanticism (1989), and many other writings on the British Romantics.

Hrileena Ghosh received her Ph.D. from the University of St Andrews, for a thesis on John Keats's Medical Notebook. Her first book, John Keats's Medical Years and the Poet's Career, is forthcoming from Liverpool University Press.

Nikki Hessel is a Senior Lecturer in the English Programme at Victoria University of Wellington. She is the author of Literary Authors, Parliamentary Reporters: Johnson, Coleridge, Hazlitt, Dickens (Cambridge University Press, 2012) and a wide range of articles on print culture in the Romantic period. Her recent work on Romanticism and indigeneity includes a book project on indigenous-language translations of Romantic texts.

Richard Marggraf Turley's publications include Keats's Boyish Imagination (Routledge, 2004), Bright Stars: John Keats, Barry Cornwall and Romantic Literary Culture (Liverpool University Press, 2009) and, with Jayne Archer and Howard Thomas, Food and the Literary Imagination (Palgrave, 2014). He is also author of a novel set in Romantic London of 1810, The Cunning House (Sandstone, 2015). He teaches at Aberystwyth University.

Damian Walford Davies is Professor of English and Head of the School of English, Communication and Philosophy at Cardiff University, where he teaches Romanticism, twentieth-century literature and creative writing. His interest in Keats and ‘pathography’ is part of a wider commitment to diversifying the field of Romantic Studies across disciplines, cultures and new modes of critical-creative writing. He is the author, most recently, of articles on Coleridge and traumatology (2017) and on archipelagic island writing (2017); the poetry collections Judas (2015) and Alabaster Girls (2015); and Cartographies of Culture: New Geographies of Welsh Writing in English (2012). He is the editor of Roald Dahl: Wales of the Unexpected (2016) and is currently editing a collection entitled Counterfactual Romanticism and the Cambridge edition of Thomas Love Peacock’s The Misfortunes of Elphin, and co-editing a volume entitled Romantic Cartographies.

R.S. White is Winthrop Professor in English and Cultural Studies at the University of Western Australia and a Chief Investigator in the Australian Research Council Centre of Excellence in the History of Emotions 1100–1800. He has held an Australian Research Council Professorial Fellowship. His publications are mainly in the field of early modern literature, especially Shakespeare, and also Romantic literature. They include John Keats: A Literary Life (2010, revised and corrected, paperback 2012); Pacifism in English Literature: Minstrels of Peace (2008); Natural Rights and the Birth of Romanticism in the 1790s (2005); and Natural Law in English Renaissance Literature (1996), as well as articles on peace and literature. Most recently he has published Avant-Garde Hamlet (2015) and Shakespeare’s Cinema of Love (2016). Research for the chapter in this book has been supported by the Australian Research Council (Project DP150102564).
