The Cambridge Imperial and Post-Colonial Studies series is a collection of studies on empires in world history and on the societies and cultures which emerged from colonialism. It includes both transnational, comparative and connective studies, and studies which address where particular regions or nations participate in global phenomena. While in the past the series focused on the British Empire and Commonwealth, in its current incarnation there is no imperial system, period of human history or part of the world which lies outside of its compass. While we particularly welcome the first monographs of young researchers, we also seek major studies by more senior scholars, and welcome collections of essays with a strong thematic focus. The series includes work on politics, economics, culture, literature, science, art, medicine, and war. Our aim is to collect the most exciting new scholarship on world history with an imperial theme.

For my mother

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book builds on the work I did as a research student at University College London. I was able to study there as a consequence of an Arts and Humanities Research Council studentship, and my thanks goes to that body for awarding me funding. I also received an AHRC grant to undertake archival research in Texas and Mexico, as well as two grants from the UCL History Department to spend time in the archives in Paris, for which I am extremely grateful.

Thanks are due to my supervisors at UCL, especially Professor Nicola Miller, whose patient guidance and forensic analysis immeasurably improved my doctoral thesis, as well as ensuring time spent discussing it was a rare intellectual pleasure. Professor Axel Körner also provided invaluable comments and feedback on drafts, which helped my work enormously. I also am grateful for the advice and comments of my examiners. This book has been substantially revised from the thesis and thus any shortcomings are entirely my own.

I owe a great intellectual debt to Dr David Todd, who, despite my reservations, convinced me that French imperialism in Latin America was a topic worth pursuing. His advice and assistance over the years have been especially helpful.

I would also like to thank Dr Gary Savage, whose inspirational teaching first interested me in the French Second Empire.

Friends and family have been extremely understanding during my studies and while writing this book. Thank you to Christabel and Peter for their love and support, and to my father Tim. My brother, Alex, deserves a special mention, as does Orazio for being willing to engage in long rambling conversations on history over the years. I would also like to thank Ian and Catherine for their generosity and support. And to my partner Hannah, who has had to put up with me talking about Maximilian for much longer than he was Emperor of Mexico.

Finally, I would like to thank my mother, Marion, to whom this book is dedicated in loving memory.
