

Ruin Porn and the Obsession with Decay

Siobhan Lyons
Editor

Ruin Porn and the Obsession with Decay

palgrave
macmillan

Editor

Siobhan Lyons
Department of Media, Music,
Communication and Cultural Studies
Macquarie University
Sydney, NSW, Australia

ISBN 978-3-319-93389-4 ISBN 978-3-319-93390-0 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-319-93390-0>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2018944362

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s), under exclusive license to Springer International Publishing AG, part of Springer Nature 2018, corrected publication 2018
This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors, and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover credit: Pe3check/iStock/Getty Images Plus
Cover design by Aki Nakayama

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG
The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

The original version of the book was revised: For detailed information please see Erratum. The erratum to the book is available at https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-319-93390-0_13

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This work is the result of the time and efforts of a number of people, without whom the book would not come to fruition. First, I would like to acknowledge the contributors of this volume, whose work and enthusiasm for the book has made the entire project worthwhile; I wish to thank them for their generous time and efforts in contributing to this volume. I also wish to acknowledge Shaun Vigil, whose continued patience and guidance through the process have been incredibly helpful, and whose support has been very much appreciated. My sincere thanks also goes to Glenn Ramirez for his work on getting the book to publication, and his patience throughout the editing process. I would like to offer my sincere gratitude to the team at Palgrave Macmillan for their assistance and support with this book, from start to finish. And finally, as always, a huge thank you to my parents Fran and Patrick, whose continued support makes this work possible.

CONTENTS

- 1 Introduction: Ruin Porn, Capitalism, and the Anthropocene 1
Siobhan Lyons
- Part I American Ruin
- 2 Detroit Was Always Made of Wheels: Confronting Ruin Porn in Its Hometown 13
Kate Wells
- 3 Gods and Monsters: A Solastalgic Examination of Detroit's Ruins and Representation 31
Christopher T. Gullen
- 4 The Bronx Isn't Burning, Is It?: Ruin Porn and Contemporary Perceptions of The Bronx 45
Joseph Donica

Part II Photographic Ruin

- 5 “Take Nothing But Photos, Leave Nothing But Footprints”: How-to Guides for Ruin Photography 83
Susan A. Crane
- 6 Where the (Moving) Sidewalk Ends: Images of Wasted Americana in the Pre-apocalyptic World 103
Amanda Firestone, Stephen Crompton and Corey George
- 7 Picturing Ruin in the American Rustbelt: Andrew Borowiec’s *Cleveland: The Flats, the Mill, and the Hills 119
Susann Köhler

Part III Alternative Ruinscapes

- 8 Diachronic Fetishisation: Ruin Porn and Pitcairn Island Language, Archaeology, and Architecture 137
Joshua Nash and Martin Gibbs
- 9 No Vacancy: History and Meaning of Contemporary Ruins in a Regional Australian City 155
Nancy Cushing, Michael Kilmister and Nathan Scott

Part IV Virtual and Mediated Ruin

- 10 Immersive Ruin: Chernobyl and Virtual Decay 181
Michelle Bentley
- 11 More Than Ruins: (Post-)Apocalyptic Places in Media 201
Felix Kirschbacher

12	“This Is Not Ruin Tourism”: Social Media and the Quest for Authenticity in Urban Exploration	217
	André Jansson
	Erratum to: Ruin Porn and the Obsession with Decay	E1
	Siobhan Lyons
	Index	235

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Michelle Bentley is Senior Lecturer in International Relations and Director of the Centre of International Public Policy at Royal Holloway, University of London. Her research specializes in representations of mass killing (particularly WMD), strategic narratives, securitization, and US foreign policy. She has written two sole-authored books: Weapons of Mass Destruction and US Foreign Policy: The Strategic Use of a Concept (Routledge, 2014) and Syria and the Chemical Weapons Taboo: Exploiting the Forbidden (Manchester University Press, 2016).

Susan A. Crane is Associate Professor of Modern European History at the University of Arizona. Her research focuses on thematic issues of collective memory, historical consciousness and historical photography. She is author of Collecting and Historical Consciousness in Early Nineteenth-Century Germany (2000) and editor of Museums and Memory (2000). She is editing The Cultural History of Memory in the Nineteenth Century and completing a monograph, “...and then Nothing Happened”: On Seeing the Past as Nothing.

Stephen Crompton is a British filmmaker and photographer whose work explores the American-made landscape. His work has been featured in festivals and exhibitions in the United States and abroad, including the Sarasota Film Festival, Dallas VideoFest, the Virginia Film Festival, Indie Grits, Athens Film and Video Festival, and the Insight Festival. He currently teaches Film Production at Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Nancy Cushing is an Associate Professor based in the History discipline at University of Newcastle, Australia. She works in the areas of heritage, regional, and environmental history having co-written or edited Snake-bitten, Eric Worrell and the Australian Reptile Park (UNSW Press, 2010), Radical Newcastle (NewSouth Press, 2015), Smoky City (Hunter Press, 2015), and Animals Count (Routledge, 2018). She is an active member of the historical profession, convening the Australian and New Zealand Environmental History Network and serving on the History Council of New South Wales' executive council.

Joseph Donica is an assistant professor of English at Bronx Community College of the City University of New York. He teaches American literature, literary criticism and theory, and writing courses. He has published articles and reviews on American architecture, 9/11 literature, Edward P. Jones, Arab-American literature, Netflix and the digital future, the politics of the Internet, Hurricane Katrina memoirs, and disability studies. He is also a contributor to the Sage Encyclopaedia of War as well as the Website American Muslims: History, Culture, and Politics. His latest articles are "Rethinking Utopia for the Twenty-First Century: The Good Life after Occupy and the Arab Spring," "Negative Memory after Katrina: The Persistence of Memoir," "The Erosion of the Cultural Commons and the Possibilities of Participatory Urbanism," "Not All Roads Lead to Rome: The State of the Humanities at Community Colleges," and "Is Computer Code Queer?" His article on everyday life in Rabih Alameddine's Koolhaas: The Art of War is forthcoming in College Literature. He is co-editing a collection of essays titled Reflections on a Changing Profession: The Future of the English Ph.D. and writing his first monograph titled Inequality's Subjects: Neoliberalism and American Literature after Occupy Wall Street and the Arab Spring. He currently serves on the executive board of the Rocky Mountain Modern Language Association, and he is the chair of the committee awarding the John Leo and Dana Heller Award in LGBTQ studies through the Popular Culture Association.

Amanda Firestone is Assistant Professor of Communication at The University of Tampa. She teaches media studies and often includes themes of apocalypse and monstrosity to make classes more accessible (and exciting!) for students. Recently she co-edited the scholarly collection Harry Potter and Convergence Culture: Essays on Fandom and the Expanding Potterverse with Leisa A. Clark and The Last Midnight: Essays on Apocalyptic Narratives in Millennial Media also with Clark and Mary F. Pharr. Amanda enjoys knitting, sewing, baking, and drinking margaritas—all in preparation for The End of Times.

Martin Gibbs is Convenor of Archaeology at the University of Newcastle. His research interests are in the historical and maritime archaeologies of the Australia-Pacific region. He is Chief Investigator on Beyond the New World: A sixteenth-century Spanish colony and its impact on indigenous populations in the Solomon Islands. Gibbs and Duncan have published a book: Please God Send Me a Wreck: The Archaeology of a Community's Responses to Shipwreck, Plenum/Springer Press, 2015. He is also working on convict archaeology in New South Wales, Port Arthur in Tasmania and Norfolk Island. Gibbs is a member of the Archaeology of Sydney Research Group to improve public outputs. This includes an archive: NSW Archaeology Online.

Corey George grew up on his grandparents' farm in upstate South Carolina, surrounded by farmers, old pine forests, wildlife, and Southern Democrats. His current work is a study of the rural landscape of the southern USA, and it documents how man has shaped and altered it over the past few decades. The pursuit of progress often spearheads man's desire to mould the land, yet the land perseveres and eventually reclaims its place. George photographs these sites of mutual destruction and creation. He currently teaches at The University of Tampa.

Christopher T. Gullen is Assistant Professor of Communication at Westfield State University in Westfield, Massachusetts. He teaches courses in Mass Communication, Film Studies, and Social Media. Dr. Gullen's primary research interests focus on film and television, new media and digital culture, and pornography. His film work revolves around the representation of gender and he enjoys international travel and cooking.

André Jansson is Professor of media and communication studies and director of the Geomedia Research Group at Karlstad University, Sweden. His most recent monographs are Mediatization and Mobile Lives: A Critical Approach (Routledge, 2018) and Cosmopolitanism and the Media: Cartographies of Change (with M. Christensen, Palgrave Macmillan, 2015). He has published widely in journals like Annals of Tourism Research, Communication Theory, European Journal of Cultural Studies, New Media and Society, and Urban Studies.

Michael Kilmister is a Ph.D. candidate in History and an academic writing adviser at the University of Newcastle, Australia. His research explores the significance of the British Empire in Australian foreign policy and politics, the teaching-research nexus, and liminal spaces in local histories. He has published in History Compass and The Conversation.

Felix Kirschbacher is Director of studies for economics, ethics, and media at the Protestant Academy of the Palatinate. He studied Film Studies, French, and Protestant Theology in Mainz and is currently finishing his doctoral thesis on “Post-Apocalypse in Films and Series”. His research interests also include film theory, audiovisual seriality, and (US-American) television history.

Susann Köhler is lecturer in American Studies at the University of Göttingen, Germany. In her dissertation project, she examines representations of US-American postindustrial cities in photography books and analyzes the sociocultural legacy of deindustrialisation in the American Midwest and Northeast. Her research focuses on the history of industrial photography, conceptualisations of ruin, theories of the urban, and cultural memory.

Siobhan Lyons is lecturer in Media Studies at Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia. Her book Death and the Machine: Intersections of Mortality and Robotics (Palgrave Pivot) was published in 2018. She has contributed chapters to Philosophical Approaches to the Devil (Routledge, 2016), Westworld and Philosophy (Wiley, 2018), and Understanding Nietzsche, Understanding Modernisms (Bloomsbury, 2018). Her work has also appeared in The Washington Post, The Conversation, New Philosopher, Philosophy Now, Overland, Meanjin, Kill Your Darlings, as well as in academic journals including Continuum: Journal of Media and Cultural Studies, Media International Australia, and Celebrity Studies.

Joshua Nash is an islophilic generalist. He has conducted linguistic fieldwork on Pitcairn Island and Norfolk Island, South Pacific, Kangaroo Island, South Australia, and New Zealand, environmental and ethnographic fieldwork in Vrindavan, India, and architectural research in outback Australia. He is concerned with philosophical and ontological foundations of language and place.

Nathan Scott is a lecturer in Music in the School of Creative Arts at the University of Newcastle. He has interdisciplinary research interests across areas of creative arts, technology, and science and has a wealth of experience across many genres of music including recording commercial releases. He has collaborated with the ABC on live national radio broadcasts and was the telematic manager for the International Space Time Concerto Competition (2012) as well as being involved in collaborative electroacoustic performances/installations at the Newcastle Region Art Gallery (2009) and The Lock-Up Gallery (2011).

Kate Wells hails from Detroit, Michigan and is a Ph.D. candidate in the Social and Political thought program at York University. She has an MA in Cultural History from University of London, Queen Mary and a BA from Colgate University in New York. In her time at York she has worked with collaborative research projects such as LOT and the Visible City Project and Archive, seeking creative approaches to understanding today's urban situation. She is interested in the intersections of race, space, and place and the role that history and culture play in the construction of urban mythologies. Her published article "Ancestral Irrepressible: McLuhan, Derrida and the Future of the Archive" in the Flusser Studies online journal deals with how history and critical theory can illuminate the spatial.

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 3.1	Abandoned Packard Automotive Plant in Detroit, Michigan	32
Fig. 4.1	“Abandoned Home 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	66
Fig. 4.2	“Shakespeare Ave. 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	66
Fig. 4.3	“Burned out Buildings 150th St. 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	67
Fig. 4.4	“East 155th St. 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	68
Fig. 4.5	“Looking for a Robber—Police on Rooftops 1980s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	69
Fig. 4.6	“South Bronx 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	69
Fig. 4.7	“@155th St. 1980s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	70
Fig. 4.8	“Melrose Avenue 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	71
Fig. 4.9	“The Other Park Avenue—Bronx @ 153 Street 1970s” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	72
Fig. 4.10	“Broken Mailboxes 1975” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	73
Fig. 4.11	“Ironic Sign—161st St. & Jerome Ave. 1985” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	74
Fig. 4.12	“Election Posters Nov 1976” (Photograph courtesy of Georgeen Comerford)	75

Fig. 4.13	“Abandoned Car—Cross BX Expressway 1972” (Photograph courtesy of Georreen Comerford)	75
Fig. 5.1	At the threshold of an abandoned Chernobyl cottage. Photo by Kate Brown	96
Fig. 5.2	Todd Sipes, “Caught in a Web”	97
Fig. 5.3	A desk chair stands in a former waterpark in the Mojave desert in southern California. Untitled (2011). Photo by Tong Lam, Abandoned Futures , n.p.	98
Fig. 6.1	“Woodville Mall #1” (2001) (Courtesy of Stephen Crompton)	110
Fig. 6.2	“Honduras,” 2011 (Courtesy of Corey George)	115
Fig. 7.1	“From the roof of Cargill Salt Mine, Whiskey Island, 2002” (Courtesy of Andrew Borowiec)	124
Fig. 7.2	“Steam plant, ISG mill, 2002” (Courtesy of Andrew Borowiec)	128
Fig. 7.3	“Holmden Avenue, Tremont, 2003” (Courtesy of Andrew Borowiec)	130
Fig. 8.1	A Pitcairn Island house being dismantled in April 1998 (Courtesy of Martin Gibbs)	140
Fig. 8.2	Thursday October Christian’s house in 1935 (https://theroguephotographer.smugmug.com/ History/History-of-Pitcairn-in-photos/i-LZ2CkxN/A)	143
Fig. 8.3	Thursday October Christian’s house in May 1998 (Courtesy of Martin Gibbs)	144
Fig. 8.4	Signage commemorating the site of Thursday October Christian’s house in June 2016 (Courtesy of Joshua Nash)	144
Fig. 8.5	Elevation of Nola’s old house in May 1998 (Courtesy of Martin Gibbs)	146
Fig. 8.6	Remains of Nola’s old house in June 2016 (Courtesy of Joshua Nash)	147
Fig. 8.7	Nash in conversation about the Pitcairn language with Nola Warren in Nola’s newer house, July 2016 (Video still courtesy of Joshua Nash)	149
Fig. 9.1	The Froggy’s building, showing the second version of the decorative hoardings and its roofless state after asbestos removal (Source Nathan Scott, 20 October 2016)	164
Fig. 9.2	Rear of Brisbane Water County Council building (Source Nathan Scott, 20 October 2016)	164
Fig. 9.3	Rear of former Froggy’s roller skating rink (Source Nathan Scott, 20 October 2016)	166
Fig. 9.4	Waltons Gosford advertisement circa 1966, Gostalgia (https://www.flickr.com/photos/gostalgia/4602179465)	168

- Fig. 9.5 The rear of the new Walton's store, later Frogys, in October 1966 (Source Gostalgia: local history from Gosford Library) 169
- Fig. 9.6 Graffiti now largely obscure this bas relief sculpture in the Brisbane Water County Council Building (Source <http://thenandtoday.com/australia/nsw/gosford-council/gosford/bwcc-april-2017/>) 171
- Fig. 9.7 An everyday space transformed: plants colonise Frogys' interior (Source Michael Kilmister, June 2016) 174
- Fig. 9.8 Interior shot of Frogys in 2016 showing the original timber floors laid for Waltons, the roller skating rink and the proliferation of street art (Source Michael Kilmister, June 2016) 175