

New Caribbean Studies

Series Editors

Kofi Campbell

Department of English
Wilfrid Laurier University
Waterloo, ON, Canada

Shalini Puri

Department of English
University of Pittsburgh
Pittsburgh, PA, USA

New Caribbean Studies series seeks to contribute to Caribbean self-understanding, to intervene in the terms of global engagement with the region, and to extend Caribbean Studies' role in reinventing various disciplines and their methodologies well beyond the Caribbean. The series especially solicits humanities-informed and interdisciplinary scholarship from across the region's language traditions.

More information about this series at <http://www.palgrave.com/gp/series/14752>

Bénédicte Ledent • Evelyn O'Callaghan
Daria Tunca
Editors

Madness in Anglophone Caribbean Literature

On the Edge

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Bénédicte Ledent
University of Liège
Liège, Belgium

Evelyn O'Callaghan
University of the West Indies
Bridgetown, Barbados

Daria Tunca
University of Liège
Liège, Belgium

New Caribbean Studies

ISBN 978-3-319-98179-6

ISBN 978-3-319-98180-2 (eBook)

<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-319-98180-2>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2018958358

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2018

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover illustration: Image by Nadia Huggins, reproduced with their kind permission

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG

The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We thank, for their generous financial support, the University of Liège and the “Fonds de la Recherche Scientifique—FNRS”.

CONTENTS

- “Madness Is Rampant on This Island”: Writing Altered States
in Anglophone Caribbean Literature 1
Bénédicte Ledent, Evelyn O’Callaghan, and Daria Tunca
- “Kingston Full of Them”: Madwomen at the Crossroads 19
Kelly Baker Josephs
- “Fighting Mad to Tell Her Story”: Madness, Rage, and Literary Self-Making in Jean Rhys and Jamaica Kincaid 39
Denise deCaires Narain
- Madness and Silence in Caryl Phillips’s A Distant Shore and *In the Falling Snow 63
Ping Su
- Speaking of Madness in the First Person/Speaking Madness in the Second Person? Junot Díaz’s The Brief Wondrous Life of Oscar Wao and “The Cheater’s Guide to Love” 81
Delphine Munos

What Is “Worse Besides”? An Ecocritical Reading of Madness in Caribbean Literature	103
Carine M. Mardorossian
Performing Delusional Evil: Jamaica Kincaid’s The Autobiography of My Mother	117
Rebecca Romdhani
Horizons of Desire in Caribbean Queer Speculative Fiction: Marlon James’s John Crow’s Devil	137
Michael A. Bucknor
When Seeing Is Believing: Enduring Injustice in Merle Collins’s The Colour of Forgetting	161
Alison Donnell
Migrant Madness or Poetics of Spirit? Teaching Fiction by Erna Brodber and Kei Miller	181
Evelyn O’Callaghan
(Re)Locating Madness and Prophecy: An Interview with Kei Miller	203
Rebecca Romdhani
Index	213

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Michael A. Bucknor is Associate Professor, Head of the Department of Literatures in English and the Public Orator of the Mona Campus, UWI. He serves on the editorial boards of Caribbean Quarterly, Issues in Critical Investigation, and Lucayos, and is senior editor of the Journal of West Indian Literature. He is also co-editor with Alison Donnell of The Routledge Companion to Anglophone Caribbean Literature and carries out research on Austin Clarke, Caribbean-Canadian writing, postcolonial literatures and theory, diaspora studies, masculinities, and popular culture. He is completing a book manuscript entitled “Performing Masculinities in Jamaican Popular Culture.”

Denise deCaires Narain is Reader in Postcolonial Literatures at the University of Sussex and is Director of the Consortium for the Humanities and Arts in the South East of England. She teaches Caribbean and postcolonial writing with an emphasis on gender in the contexts of global feminisms. She has published widely on Caribbean and postcolonial women’s writing, including two monographs: Caribbean Women’s Poetry: Making Style and Olive Senior: Writers and Their Work. She is researching on the representation of servants in postcolonial women’s writing for a book project titled “Maids and Madams: Postcolonial Feminisms, Solidarity and Servitude.”

Alison Donnell is Professor of Modern Literatures in English and Head of School of Literature, Creative Writing and Drama at the University of East Anglia. She has published widely on Caribbean, diasporic, and black

British writings. She is the General Editor of Caribbean Literature in Transition, 1800–2015 [3 volumes] with Cambridge University Press (2020) and is the lead researcher on a Leverhulme Trust-funded project, 2017–2020, on “Caribbean Literary Heritage: Recovering the Lost Past and Safeguarding the Future.”

Kelly Baker Josephs is Associate Professor of English at York College, CUNY. She is the author of Disturbers of the Peace: Representations of Madness in Anglophone Caribbean Literature (2013) and editor of sx salon: a small axe literary platform. Her current book project, “Caribbean Articulations: Storytelling in a Digital Age,” explores the intersections between new technologies and Caribbean cultural production.

Bénédicte Ledent teaches at the University of Liège, Belgium, and is a member of the postcolonial research group CEREP (<http://www.cerep.ulg.ac.be>). She has published extensively on Caryl Phillips and other contemporary writers of Caribbean descent. She has also co-edited several volumes and special issues, the latest of which is a special issue of The Journal of Postcolonial Writing, edited in collaboration with Delphine Munos and devoted to “minor” genres in postcolonial literatures. She is co-editor of the book series Cross/Cultures (Brill).

Carine M. Mardorossian is Professor of English at the University at Buffalo, SUNY, where she specializes in postcolonial and feminist studies. Her books Reclaiming Difference: Caribbean Women Rewrite Postcolonialism and Framing the Rape Victim: Gender and Agency Reconsidered both locate in Caribbean literature answers to theoretical impasses surrounding gender and race. She is completing a co-authored book on dying as well as a project on creolization and ecocriticism. Her articles on Caribbean literature have appeared in Small Axe, Callaloo, Ariel, Journal of Caribbean Literatures, College Literature, Modern Language Studies, and numerous anthologies.

Delphine Munos is a Humboldt researcher at the Institute for English and American Studies, Goethe University Frankfurt (Germany), where she is working on a postdoctoral project focusing on narratology and twentieth- and twenty-first-century minority/postcolonial literatures. She has published in the field of US ethnic and postcolonial literatures, diaspora studies, South Asian studies, and South Asian literatures in English. She is the author of a monograph on Jhumpa Lahiri titled After Melancholia (2013) and the co-editor of special issues for South Asian Diaspora (2014, 2018) and Journal of Postcolonial Writing (2018).

Evelyn O'Callaghan is Professor of West Indian Literature at the University of the West Indies, Barbados campus. She has published on West Indian literature, particularly on women's writing, early Caribbean narratives, and, more recently, ecocritical readings of Caribbean landscapes in visual and scribal texts. Her books include Woman Version: Theoretical Approaches to West Indian Fiction by Women and Women Writing the West Indies 1804–1939: A Hot Place, Belonging to Us, and editions of early Caribbean novels by Frieda Cassin and Elma Napier. An editor of the Journal of West Indian Literature, she serves on the advisory committees of several scholarly journals and recently co-edited an interdisciplinary collection of essays entitled Caribbean Irish Connections.

Rebecca Romdhani is a lecturer at the University of Liège, Belgium, and is a member of the postcolonial research unit CEREP. Her current research project is on violence in Jamaican literature. Her publications include a chapter on Caribbean women's writing in The Routledge Companion to Anglophone Caribbean Literature (2011), articles on emotion and violence in Dionne Brand's In Another Place, Not Here (MaComère 2013–14) and Nalo Hopkinson's Brown Girl in the Ring (Research in African Literatures 2015), and an article on Kei Miller's Facebook notes and blog posts (Journal of Postcolonial Writing 2018).

Ping Su is a lecturer in the Faculty of Foreign Languages and International Studies at Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou, China. She has a PhD degree in English literature from the University of Hong Kong. Her research interests include postcolonial studies, Caribbean diasporic literature, and visual arts.

Daria Tunca works in the English Department of the University of Liège, Belgium, where she is a member of the postcolonial research group CEREP (<http://www.cerep.ulg.ac.be>). Her research focuses on stylistics and African literatures, with a particular emphasis on contemporary Nigerian fiction. She is the author of Stylistic Approaches to Nigerian Fiction (Palgrave, 2014) and the co-editor of several books and journal issues on postcolonial literatures. She also maintains online bibliographies of works by and about Nigerian writers Chris Abani, Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie, Ben Okri, and Chika Unigwe (accessible via <http://www.cerep.ulg.ac.be/bibliographies>).