PHENOMENOLOGY WORLD-WIDE
ANALECTA HUSSESLIANA

THE YEARBOOK OF
PHENOMENOLOGICAL RESEARCH

VOLUME LXXX

Founder and Editor-in-Chief

ANNA-Teresa TYMIENIECKA
World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire

Editorial Board

Angela Ales Bello, Lateran University, Italy
Jan Bengtsson, Göteborg University, Sweden
Robert Bernasconi, University of Memphis, USA
Gianfranco Bosio, University of Verona, Italy
Bruno Calzferi, Encyclopaedia Italiana, Italy
Jacques Colette, University Sorbonne, France
Jesús Conill, University of Valencia, Spain
Jacques Derrida, Institute of Social Sciences, France
Biana-Maria d’Ippolito, University of Naples, Italy
Manuela G. Dolodze, Institute of Philosophy of Georgia, Georgia
Luis Flores H., Pontifical Catholic University of Chile, Chile
Manfred S. Frings, Editor in Chief of Scheler’s posthumous work, USA
Miguel García-Baró, Universidad Complutense, Madrid, Spain
Rudolf Haller, Karl-Franz University, Graz, Austria
Claire Ortiz Hill, Paris, France
Arion Kelkel, University of Paris, XII, Emeritus, France
Peter Kemp, University of Copenhagen, Denmark
Marlies Kromegger, Michigan State University, USA

Authors

For sequel volumes see the end of this volume.
PHENOMENOLOGY WORLD-WIDE

FOUNDATIONS – EXPANDING DYNAMICS – LIFE-ENGAGEMENTS
A Guide for Research and Study

Edited by
Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka

Encyclopedia of Learning

The Tree of Life

SPRINGER-SCIENCE+BUSINESS MEDIA, B.V.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface

Introduction: Phenomenology as the Inspirational Force of Our Times

Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka, World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire, USA

PART ONE: LAYING THE FOUNDATIONS OF PHENOMENOLOGY

I The Incipient Phase

Franz Brentano, the “Grandfather of Phenomenology” and the Spirit of the Times

Mauro Antonelli, University of Bologna, Italy and Karl-Franz University, Graz, Australia

The Generative Principles of Phenomenology, Their Genesis, Development and Early Expansion

Angela Ales Bello, Italian Phenomenology Center, Rome, Italy

Personal Identity and the Depth of the Person, Husserl and the Phenomenological Circles of Munich and Göttingen

Roberta de Monticelli, University of Geneva, Switzerland

Jean Hering and Early Phenomenological Ontology

Jacek Surzyn, Slask University, Sosnowiec, Poland

II Laying the Foundations of Phenomenology

On Husserl’s Mathematical Apprenticeship and Philosophy of Mathematics

Claire Ortiz Hill, Paris, France

The Question of Grammar in Logical Investigations, with Special Reference to Brentano, Marty, Bolzano and Later Developments in Logic

Jocelyn Benoist, University of Paris I, France

Husserl and Bolzano

Jocelyn Benoist, University of Paris I, France

Husserl’s Concept of Pure Logical Grammar

Luis Flores, Pontifica Catholic University of Chile

Époque: Meaning, Object, and Existence in Husserl’s Phenomenology

Oded Balaban, University of Haifa, Israel

Husserl’s Notion of the Natural Attitude and the Shift to Transcendental Phenomenology

Sebastian Luft, Catholic University, Leuven, Belgium

Passivity as Pre-Predicative Constitution in Husserl: Structure and Discussion

Rolf Kühn and Michael Staudigl, University of Vienna, Austria

Fathoming the Abyss of Time: Temporality and Intentionality in Husserl’s Phenomenology

Sonja Rinofner-Kreidl, Karl Franz University, Graz, Austria

The Role of Intersubjectivity and Empathy in Husserl’s Foundational Project

Kathleen Haney, University of Houston, United States

The Concept of Lebenswelt from Husserl’s Philosophy of Arithmetic to His Crisis

Bianca Maria d’Ippolito, University of Naples, Italy
III  The Efflorescence of Phenomenology: Its Classical Representatives

- Max Scheler: The Human Person in Action and in the Cosmos

  Manfred S. Frings, Editor of Scheler’s Nachlass
  172

- The Philosophy of Roman Ingarden
  Zofia Majewska, Marie Curie-Skoldowska University, Lublin, Poland
  184

- In the Shadow of the Master: Danuta Gierulanka, Phenomenology of Mathematics
  Maria Bielawka, Academia Gorniczo-Hutnicza, Krakow, Poland
  199

- Roman Ingarden’s Unique Conception of Aesthetic Objects
  Victor Kocay, St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, Nova Scotia, Canada
  202

- Hedwig Conrad-Martius and the Phenomenology of Nature
  Angela Ales Bello, Italian Phenomenology Center, Rome, Italy
  210

- Edith Stein’s Contribution to Phenomenology
  Angela Ales Bello, Italian Phenomenology Center, Rome, Italy
  232

- Heidegger’s Phenomenology of Being and Husserl’s Phenomenology of Consciousness
  Jiro Watanabe, University of Tokyo, Japan
  240

PART TWO: EXPANDING HORIZONS

I  Reception: Interpretation, Assimilation and Elaboration around the World after the Second World War

- German Phenomenology from Landgrebe to Waldenfels
  Gabriella Baptist, University of Naples, Italy
  255

- The Development of Phenomenology in Belgium and the Netherlands
  Antonino Mazzù, Free University of Brussels, Belgium
  265

- Phenomenological Anthropology in the Netherlands and Flanders
  Bas Levering and Max van Manen, University of Alberta, Canada
  274

- Phenomenology in North America and “Continental” Philosophy
  Robert Sweeney, John Carroll University, United States
  286

- Italian Phenomenology in the World Forum
  Patrizia Manganaro, Lateran University, Rome, Italy
  293

- Phenomenology in Cross-cultural Dialogue with Oriental Philosophy
  Robert J. Wise Jr., World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire, United States
  298

- Phenomenology in Bohemia and Slovakia
  Josef Siváň, Slovak Academy of Sciences, Bratislava, Slovakia
  301

- Phenomenological Thinking in the Georgian Philosophy of XX Century
  Manuka Dolidze, Institute of Philosophy of Georgia, Tbilisi, Georgia
  307

- Teodors Celms, Kurt Stavenhagen and Phenomenology in Latvia
  Ella Buceniece, University of Latvia, Riga, Latvia
  312

- Phenomenology in India
  Debabrata Sinha, Brock University, St. Catherines, Ontario, Canada
  316

- Phenomenology and Islamic Philosophy
  Hassan Hanafi, Cairo University, Egypt
  318
TABLE OF CONTENTS

II  Further Inspirations and Probings, New Beginnings and Developments

Jean-Paul Sartre, A Profound Revision of Husserlian Phenomenology
Yvanka B. Raynova, Institute for Axiological Research, Vienna, Austria 323

Sartre’s Early Phenomenology of Authenticity in Relation to Husserl
Jacob Golomb, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel 335

Maurice Merleau-Ponty, Philosophy As Phenomenology
Patrick Bourgeois, Loyola University, New Orleans, Louisiana, United States 342

Hans-Georg Gadamer, Phenomenology and the Hermeneutic Turn
Osvaldo Rossi, University of Trento, Italy 384

Paul Ricoeur and Hermeneutic Phenomenology
Domenico Jervolino, University of Naples, Italy 392

Phenomenology in Ortega and in Zubiri
Jesús Conill, University of Valencia, Spain 402

Emmanuel Levinas: The Ethics of “Face To Face”/The Religious Turn
Richard Sugarman, University of Vermont, United States 409

Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka’s Phenomenology of Life
Thomas Ryba, St. Thomas Aquinas Center at Purdue, United States 430

Jacques Derrida’s Profound and Radical Questioning of Husserlian Phenomenology
Denis Seron and Daniel Giovannangeli, University of Liège, Belgium 460

III  The Worldwide Spread of the Original Phenomenological Inspiration

María Zambrano’s Phenomenology of Poetic Reason
Miguel Illdà, University of Valencia, Spain 470

Fernando Montero’s Linguistic Phenomenology
Jesús Conill, University of Valencia, Spain 473

José Gaos
Alberto Carrillo Canán, Benemérita Autonomous University, Puebla, Mexico 474

Antonio Banfi
Stefano Zecchi, University of Milan, Italy 478

Enzo Paci, the Life World from an Empirical Approach
Stefano Zecchi, University of Milan, Italy 479

Sofía Vanni-Rovighi
Stefano Zecchi, University of Milan, Italy 481

Dino Formaggio
Stefano Zecchi, University of Milan, Italy 482

Husserlian Phenomenology in the Work of Mario Sancipriano
Angela Ales Bello, Italian Phenomenology Center, Rome, Italy 483

Karol Wojtyła, between Phenomenology and Scholasticism
Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka, World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire, United States and Roger Duncan, University of Connecticut, United States 486

Hermann Schmitz, the “New Phenomenology”
Hermann Schmitz, Kiel University, Germany 491
Józef Tischner’s Philosophy of the Human Being  494
Edward Domagala, Pontifical University of Saint Thomas Aquinas, Rome, Italy

Michel Henry’s “Radical Phenomenology of Life”  497
Rolf Kühn and Michael Staudigl, University of Vienna, Austria

PART THREE: LIFE-ENGAGED PHENOMENOLOGY

I Phenomenology’s Bringing Forth and Formulating Basic Life-Significant Issues  503

Meditations on Intersubjectivity and Historicity in Husserl’s Transcendental Phenomenology  503
Konrad Rokstad, University of Bergen, Norway

Phenomenological Ethics, A Historical Outline  520
Jan Bengtsson, Göteborg University, Sweden

Phenomenology: Corporeity and Intersubjectivity in Husserl; the Most Significant Influences of Husserl  532
Maria José Cantista and Maria Manuela Martins, University of Porto, Portugal

Philosophy of Language and Corporeity  544
Luigia DiPinto, University of Bari, Italy

The Conception of Intentionality in Phenomenology and Pragmatics  553
Eric Grillo, University of Paris III, France

Phenomenological Sociology  562
Gary Backhaus, Morgan State University, Baltimore, Maryland, United States

Phenomenology and Pragmatism: A Recent Encounter  568
Patrick Bourgeois, Loyola University, New Orleans, Louisiana, United States

II Innovation In Life-Oriented Arenas  571

The Concept of Lebenswelt in European Culture  571
Bianca Maria d’Ippolito, University of Naples, Italy

Simone de Beauvoir’s Feminism, the Other as Subject  573
Judy Miles, California Polytechnical University, Pomona, United States

Work and Economics in Max Scheler  580
Daniella Verducci, Center for Phenomenology of Life and the Sciences of Life, University of Macerata, Italy

Phenomenology and Fundamental Educational Theory  589
Donald Vandenberg, United States and Australia

Phenomenologically Grounded Interdisciplinary Aesthetics: Marlies Kronegger  601
Robert J. Wise, Jr., World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire, United States

From Ingarden to Naturalistic Aesthetics: Maria Gołaszewska  606
Piotr Mróz and Andrzej Warminski, Jagiellonian University, Krakow, Poland

Phenomenology in Science and Literature  608
Mamuka G. Dolidze, Institute of Philosophy of Georgia, Tbilisi, Georgia

Phenomenology of Religion  616
Franco Bosio, University of Verona, Italy

Alfred Schütz, Progenitor of Social Phenomenology  621
Gary Backhaus, Morgan State University, Baltimore, Maryland, United States
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Phenomenology and the Philosophy of the Natural Sciences
Patrick A. Heelan, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., United States

Paul Ricoeur on Language, Ethics and Philosophical Anthropology
Robert Sweeney, John Carroll University, Cleveland, Ohio, United States

Hannah Arendt, Phenomenology and Political Theory
Robert Bernasconi, University of Memphis, United States

Edith Stein: Phenomenology, the State and Religious Commitment
Angela Ales Bello, Italian Phenomenology Center, Rome, Italy

III From Theory to Life-Practice: Phenomenological Psychiatry

Ludwig Binswanger, the Inspiring Force
Paola Ricci Sindoni, University of Messina, Italy

Medard Boss
Charles E. Scott, The Pennsylvania State University, United States

The Life and Work of Erwin Straus
Erling Eng, Veterans Administration Medical Center, Lexington, Kentucky, United States

The Phenomenological-Hermeneutical Approach in Psychopathology and Psychotherapy of Schizophrenia in The Czech Republic
Eva Syrštova, Charles University, Prague, The Czech Republic

Phenomenology in Henri Ey's Work and French Psychiatry
Jean Garrabé, Institut Marcel Riviere, Le-Mesnil-Saint-Denis, France and F. Régis Cousin, Hôpital Sainte-Anne, Paris, France

The Phenomenologico-Existential Approach to Psychopathology
Bruno Callieri, Encyclopedia Italiana, Rome, Italy and Angela Ales Bello, Italian Phenomenology Center, Rome, Italy

PART FOUR: TOWARD NEW HORIZONS

Intrinsic Dynamisms and Untapped Resources of Phenomenology

A Note On Edmund Husserl's Late Breakthrough to the Plane of Nature-Life, Completing His Itinerary
Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka, World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire, United States

Phenomenology of Life, Integral and Scientific, Fulfiling the Expectations of Husserl's Initial Aspirations and Last Insights: A Global Movement
María Avelina Cecilia, University of Seville, Spain

Bibliography of Analecta Husserliana

Synopsis and Prospectus of Phenomenology's Path
Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka, World Phenomenology Institute, Hanover, New Hampshire, United States

Glossary of Terms

Index of Names
On bringing this encyclopedia of learning in phenomenology to the public, I want to express my warm thanks to our colleagues who have lent me their support by enlisting in the editorial board of this undertaking, as well as to all our contributors, who by their dedicated effort have made this project happen. The worldwide scope of their expertise and the high level of scholarship make it manifest that phenomenology is present and well grounded around the world.

The fact that the majority of our contributors are longtime participants in the work of the World Phenomenology Institute manifests the Institute’s extensive and profound work and makes this encyclopedia of learning in phenomenology its crowning natural accomplishment. So far unique in its kind, our guide is meant to offer a survey in depth of phenomenological learning. It is meant for the scholar in phenomenology as well as for the scholarly layman. It presents the complete body of learning/scholarship in phenomenology. A Glossary of Terms aids the general reader.

Here is the harvest of a hundred years. In these seven hundred some pages we have traced in in-depth specialized studies the course that the phenomenological inspiration of Edmund Husserl took in his followers and goes on taking. We have done this pinpointing the main assumptions of the Husserlian endeavor, tendencies, and aims while marking the turning points of their unfolding. Great attention is given to the main thinkers who came after Husserl, to their own original developments of his thinking in various directions. Lastly, great attention is paid to the ways in which phenomenology has informed, enlivened, influenced the fields of knowledge whether in the humanities or in the sciences.

We owe the reader some explanation of our roster of subjects and philosophers. I hope that all of the classical phenomenological thinkers of the first wave of phenomenology have been mentioned in appropriate places; we have chosen for a special individual entry only a few, namely, those whose influence remains alive and actual in contemporary phenomenological reflection. From the second wave of the phenomenological efflorescence, we have given an individual entry to all of the thinkers who made a substantial contribution to the field or exercised a major influence in their cultural area, while others have been mentioned in appropriate places in either specialized studies or in an account of phenomenology in their nation. These may be located using the Index of Names.

As a matter of fact, we are not giving a general survey of phenomenological life in all countries. For that one may consult the last quarter century’s issues of our journal Phenomenological Inquiry (formerly Phenomenology Information Bulletin). Here are covered, first, the most significant areas like Germany, the United States, Belgium, the Netherlands, etc. secondly, those countries that have now emerged from Soviet domination (e.g., Georgia, Latvia, Slovakia), and then places we have not presented before, like India. I hope that all will find themselves in an appropriate entry.

Our view of phenomenology is very inclusive and broad, including all the allegiances of the scholars who feel an affinity with it. However, it should be understood, as I point out briefly in the Introduction, that in this allegiance there are several “circles” or rings to be distinguished, according to the clarity found of an at least immanent awareness of following more or less essentially phenomenology’s procedures for achieving legitimate recognitions. Not every type of description complies with the rules of phenomenological description. The all-overriding call of Husserl is that we clarify as closely as possible what we are doing philosophically.

The volume will offer all necessary references for research and probing in phenomenology. But this is not its only or even main task. Amid the diverse sweep of doctrines, approaches, views that claim allegiance to phenomenology, it is of paramount importance for a researcher or student of phenomenology to have guidelines that he may orient himself/herself in this field, in order to find proper bearings and phenomenology’s authentic significance in the history of philosophy, its present aims, and inspirations too for pursuing it further.

It is my hope that owing to the effort of our enthusiastic participants in this substantial work it will be easier to locate phenomenology’s place among the philosophical influences feeding our thought and culture and to propel it on a promising, fecund course. The seminal ideas which came to light should stimulate the philosophical imagination and lead to a phenomenological revival.

Thanks are due to the special people who were instrumental in carrying this project to its completion. First of all I owe great appreciation to Dr. Claire Ortiz
Hill, who with her great expertise has prepared the text of the book for publication and lent her judicious advice; Jeff Hurlburt, my assistant, gave invaluable assistance in the logistics of the project, with the aid of Louis Houthakker. Lastly, I thank Robert J. Wise and Ryan Walther for their editing roles. To all of them I present my warmest thanks.

Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka