PREFACE

This book is a revised version of my Ph.D. dissertation that was submitted to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1983. Although much of the analysis and argumentation of the dissertation has survived rewriting, the organization has been considerably changed.

To Paul Kiparsky and Morris Halle, I owe a major debt. Not only has it been a great privilege to work on phonology with both of them, but it is hard to imagine what this piece of research would have looked like without them. (They, of course, may well imagine a number of appropriate ways in which the work could be different had I not been involved. . . .) In addition, special thanks are due to Ken Hale, the third member of my thesis committee. Our discussions of a variety of topics (including tone) helped me to keep a broader outlook on language than might have otherwise been the result of concentrating on a thesis topic.

Special recognition is also due to Diana Archangeli, Nick Clements, Larry Hyman and K. P. Mohanan. All provided discussion, suggestions and criticisms of many of the matters discussed here. Special thanks are also due to Frank Heny, whose painstaking review of the manuscript of this book led to numerous improvements. I also benefitted considerably from discussion with numerous people, including the following: Akin Akinlabi, Joan Bresnan, Maggie Browning, Denis Bouchard, Noam Chomsky, Mary Clark, Nigel Fabb, Anne-Marie Grignon, Mohamed Guerssel, Mike Hammond, Jim Harris, Jim Huang, Jonathan Kaye, Jay Keyser, Jeri Kisala, Hilda Koopman, Mary Laughren, Will Leben, Juliette Levin, Lori Levin, Jean Lowenstamm, Tara Mohanan, Mario Montalbetti, David Odden, Bill Poser, Paula Pranka, Tova Rapoport, Malka Rappaport, Anne Rochette, Susan Rothstein, Mamoru Saito, Jane Simpson, Dominique Sportiche, Lisa Travis, Jan Wager, Betsy Walli, Meg Withgott, Martha Wright and Moira Yip.

I also owe a major debt to the linguistics communities at the Universities of Ibadan and Ilorin. They are directly responsible both for my initial formation as a linguist and for my on-going interest in tone languages. Thanks especially to Wale Adeniran, Dele Awobuluyi, Yiwola Awoyale, Ayo Bamgboşe, Sammy Chumbow, Ben Elugbe, Carl Hoffmann, Mona Lindau-Webb, Yasuko Nagano, Bisi Ogunsina, Chief Olajubu, Klaus Schubert and Kay Williamson.

The work represented in this book has been partially supported by fellowships from the Social Science and Humanities Research Council of Canada.

My final acknowledgements are the most special, and the most difficult to express adequately. Thanks go to my parents, Dorothy Frickleton Pulleyblank and Robert Willoughby Pulleyblank, for always encouraging me even when what I was doing may have seemed a little unorthodox. And thanks to Cato, Ingrid and Victor — whose refusal to take “later” as an acceptable answer helped me to keep some balance in my life during the writing of this book. Finally, my most important acknowledgement is to Anne-Marie Comte. Her support and her perspective have greatly improved this work.
