Special Note About this Book

This book marks the launching of a new series of books by Kluwer Academic Publishers. This series, the joint idea of Zachary Rolnik and the editor, is published in the framework of International Regional Economic Integration. Initially, it is planned to publish four volumes. These will deal with four different regions of the world: Latin America – MERCOSUR, NAFTA, Europe, and South-East Asia. Eventually, it is also hoped to include a volume on Africa. The editor is grateful to Zachary Rolnik, Vice President of Kluwer Academic Publishers, for taking this initiative.

Acknowledgements

Although all the views expressed in this book are exclusively those of the editor and authors, this work would not have been possible without the encouragement and assistance given by a number of friends and colleagues. The editor thus wishes to acknowledge this help individually.

He is particularly appreciative of the encouragement and help given by three Latin American friends and colleagues. Professor José Ares, formerly Dean of the Business School at the Universidad del Uruguay, and now Director of Human Resources at the Bank of Boston, in Montevideo, gave much encouragement. Equally, Professor Juan Carlos Torre, Director of the Center for Social Research at the Instituto Torcuato Di Tella, in Buenos Aires, encouraged the editor in his enterprise and introduced him to professor Lucangelli. Very special thanks are due to Professor Antônio Salazar Brandão, Director of the Brazilian Institute of Economics at the Fundação Getulio Vargas, in Rio de Janeiro. Professor Salazar Brandão most graciously agreed to hold discussions with the editor as well as providing him with important documents about Brazil which proved to be indispensable in the preparation of the chapter on Brazil.

In Brussels, Mr. Andy Klom, of the European Commission most kindly agreed at short notice, to meet the editor and provided him with very useful documents.

At the University of St. Thomas, the editor is particularly grateful to Brian Hill who has so patiently transcribed the manuscript of this book. He is also grateful to his assistant Juan Molina, who prepared the index for this work as well as obtaining documents for the appendices.

Notes About the Contributors

Peter Coffey, a British national, teaches European and International Political Economy at the University of St. Thomas, where he holds the US West Chair. He has published widely on European and international issues.

Carlos Eduardo López-Rodríguez, a national of Uruguay, is a Professor of Integration Law at the Catholic University of Uruguay, Damaso Antonio Larranaga. He is also Professor of Commercial Law at the Oriental Republic of Uruguay University.

Jorge Lucángeli, an Argentine national, is Director of Argentine Foreign Ministry's CEI International Economy Centre. Before joining CEI, Lucangeli coordinated the UNDP "Integration of Argentina in MERCOSUR" project, also at the Foreign Ministry. After graduating in Economics at the University of Buenos Aires, he has been consultant to CEPAL, LAIA, INTAL, IBD, and the World Bank, with research on industrial economics, government-owned enterprises, and international trade. Formerly full professor of International Economics at the Salvador University, Lucángeli is at the present associate professor of International Economics at the University of Buenos Aires and also teaches at the Entre Rios National University's postgraduate course on MERCOSUR Taxation.

Dario Menanteau-Horta, a national of Chile, is a Professor of Sociology, Rural Sociology, and Latin American Studies at the University of Minnesota. He has undertaken research and taught in a number of Latin American countries as well as publishing widely. In 1985, he was awarded the title of “Professor Extraordinary” by the Austral University of Chile.

Robert Riley, a US national, is a Professor of Economics at the University of St. Thomas, where he specializes in International Trade and Regional Integration. He has taught in a number of countries, and has published widely.
