

FOUNDING COMMUNITY

H. PETER STEEVES

FOUNDING COMMUNITY

A PHENOMENOLOGICAL-ETHICAL INQUIRY

Editorial Board:

Director: R. Bernet (Husserl-Archief, Leuven) Secretary: J. Taminaux (Centre d'études phénoménologiques, Louvain-la-Neuve) Members: S. IJsseling (Husserl-Archief, Leuven), H. Leonardy (Centre d'études phénoménologiques, Louvain-la-Neuve), U. Melle (Husserl-Archief, Leuven), B. Stevens (Centre d'études phénoménologiques, Louvain-la-Neuve)

Advisory Board:

R. Bernasconi (Memphis State University), D. Carr (Emory University, Atlanta), E.S. Casey (State University of New York at Stony Brook), R. Cobb-Stevens (Boston College), J.F. Courtine (Archives-Husserl, Paris), F. Dastur (Université de Paris XII), K. Düsing (Husserl-Archiv, Köln), J. Hart (Indiana University, Bloomington), K. Held (Bergische Universität Wuppertal), D. Janicaud (Université de Nice), K.E. Kaehler (Husserl-Archiv, Köln), D. Lohmar (Husserl-Archiv, Köln), W.R. McKenna (Miami University, Oxford, USA), J.N. Mohanty (Temple University, Philadelphia), E.W. Orth (Universität Trier), B. Rang (Husserl-Archiv, Freiburg i.Br.), P. Ricoeur (Paris), K. Schuhmann (University of Utrecht), C. Sini (Università degli Studi di Milano), R. Sokolowski (Catholic University of America, Washington D.C.), E. Ströker (Universität Köln), B. Waldenfels (Ruhr-Universität, Bochum)

H. PETER STEEVES, Ph.D.

Department of Philosophy, California State University, Fresno, USA

FOUNDING COMMUNITY

A Phenomenological-Ethical Inquiry

SPRINGER SCIENCE+BUSINESS MEDIA, B.V.

A C.I.P Catalogue record for this book is available from the Library of Congress.

ISBN 978-94-010-6180-3 ISBN 978-94-011-5182-5 (eBook)
DOI 10.1007/978-94-011-5182-5

Printed on acid-free paper

All Rights Reserved

© 1998 Springer Science+Business Media Dordrecht
Originally published by Kluwer Academic Publishers in 1998
Softcover reprint of the hardcover 1st edition 1998

No part of this publication may be reproduced or utilized in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, including photocopying, recording or by any information storage and retrieval system, without written permission from the copyright owner.

FOR MI CONEJITA

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
CHAPTER I: MORALITY AND PHENOMENOLOGY
1. Introduction	1
2. Science, Morality, and Phenomenology	3
Notes	8
CHAPTER II: THE EGO AND THE OTHER IN A PAIRING RELATION
1. Introduction	9
2. Empathic Perception and the Constitution of the Ego and the Other in Cartesian Meditations	10
3. The Sphere of Ownness	13
4. The Reciprocal Relation of Pairing: Some Problems	20
5. Theunissen and the Question Concerning Pairing	22
Notes	28
CHAPTER III: INSTINCT AND THE PRESENCE OF THE OTHER
1. The Case for Instinct	31
2. The Other as Unity	35
3. Re-Thinking Infantile Intentionality	39
4. Limitations from a Husserlian Standpoint	43
Notes	51
CHAPTER IV: MORAL CATEGORIALITY & MORAL BEING
1. Introduction	54
2. The History of Moral Theory	54
3. Categoriality and Foundations	57

4. Moral Categoriality	59
5. Morality as Choice v. Mode of Being	62
6. Problem: The Unthinking Actor	63
7. Problem: The Non-Judgmental Actor	70
8. Conclusion	76
Notes	76
CHAPTER V: PHENOMENOLOGICAL COMMUNITARIANISM
1. Introduction: The Descriptive and the Normative	78
2. Communitarian Theory in General: Three Problems	81
3. The “Disappearing-Self” Problem	83
4. The “Intersubjective Good” Problem	88
5. The “Constitution of a Community” Problem	94
6. The State of our Union, the Union of our State	102
Notes	116
CHAPTER VI: NON-HUMAN LIFE AND THE BOUNDARIES OF COMMUNITY
1. Introduction: A Persian Fable	121
2. Initial Human Pairing with Animals	123
3. “Animal Phenomenology” and the Possibility of Community Generated Without Humans	126
4. The Gracious Act of Attention Late-in-Coming	129
5. Community Through Narrative	131
6. Humans and Animals in a Second-Order Community	134
7. Conclusion: The Common Good as Moral Foundation	137
Notes	141
BIBLIOGRAPHY	144
INDEX	152

Acknowledgments

Philosophy, like any other endeavor, flourishes in community. I have been lucky enough to find members of my community willing to share their time, their talents, and their hearts with me now for several years.

First, I would like to thank those who have played a role specifically in the work which follows: Professors James Hart, Paul Spade, and Paul Eisenberg. I am grateful for Paul Spade's perceptive comments, keen philosophical insights, and friendship. He has provided support and guidance that has made this project stronger and my life richer. Jim Hart's role in my project will be especially clear to the reader. These pages are filled with his spirit and his intellectual presence. In large part, he is responsible for setting me on my present philosophic course and for providing an enthusiasm, dedication, and demeanor which continues to inspire me in both my academic and my personal life. I am lucky and honored to call him my friend.

Gratitude is also owed to Robert Sokolowski who offered his constructive comments on an earlier draft of this work and whose philosophic clarity is a blessing to the world. My thanks to Ullrich Melle who helped see to the publication of this work, and to Maja S. M. De Keijzer at Kluwer whose infinite patience for, among other things, my lack of skills with technology made all of this possible.

I am grateful to the Department of Philosophy at Indiana University for supporting me with a teaching contract from 1990-94 and for honoring me with the Nelson Fellowship for the 1993-94 academic year which allowed me to concentrate on writing my dissertation—the work from which this text has grown.

A deep gratitude is also owed to my friends—academic and otherwise. The fact that these friends are too numerous to mention here only serves as testimony to my great fortune. To each of you—old and new—my thanks. And for Dr. Charles Klingler, who is responsible in so many ways for my continuing education and joy in life, a special place in my heart is always reserved. Also, a wonderful and heart-felt thanks to my family: Jennylind, David, Chris, and Marian. As Aristotle reminds us, one thinks best with friends, and I have been truly blessed by those to whom I am related and those I have been lucky enough to encounter.

Finally, I acknowledge my gratitude to my wife, Marinés. She has been all things to me: a typist, a critic, an artist capable of acting out appropriate examples when called upon to do so, a deep well of appropriate thought and insight, and a continuous inspiration. She has played a role in the development of the ideas presented here too deep to be expressed adequately in such a short space. I am guided by and grateful for her ever-present reminder of the richness of a truly communal life.

Some of the work which follows appeared in a different form in various locations. Parts of Chapters Two and Three were included in "Constituting the Transcendent Community: Some Phenomenological Implications of Husserl's Social Ontology," Selected Studies in Phenomenology and Existential Philosophy 19 (Albany, NY: State University of New York Press, 1996), pp. 83–100. Chapter Five appeared in a different form in "Moral Categoriality and Moral Being," International Philosophical Quarterly, vol. XXXVI, no. 1, issue 141 (March 1996), pp. 65–83. Chapter Six appeared in part as "The Boundaries of the Phenomenological Community: Non-Human Life and the Extent of our Moral Enmeshment," Becoming Persons, edited by Robert Fisher (Oxford, England: Applied Theology Press, 1995), pp. 777–797. Other parts of Chapter Six appeared in "Deep Community: Phenomenology's Disclosure of the Common Good," Between the Species, vol. 10, numbers 3–4 (Summer/Fall 1994), pp. 98–105. These works are reproduced here by kind permission of the editors of the respective journals and volumes. Part of Chapter Two also appeared in "Husserl, Aristotle, and the Sphere of Ownness," The Southwest Philosophy Review, vol. 12, no. 1 (1995), pp. 141–150, and is reproduced by permission of the author.