ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Without the help of many friends this book could never have been. A United States Government Grant under the Fulbright Act afforded me two years of profitable study in Paris. I am also indebted to Dean John G. Palfrey and the Columbia College Committee on Instruction for a Chamberlain Fellowship that made it possible to devote a semester unhampered by teaching responsibilities to the actual composition of these pages. In retrospect, I do not see how the task could have been finished without their generous underwriting.

Columbia University Library has been kind enough to grant me permission to publish unedited fragments of its collection of autograph letters of Pierre Bayle.

Professor Donald M. Frame assumed the taxing burden of reading, criticizing, and correcting the ungainly first drafts of these chapters. His patience and sound advice have constantly helped me and taught me. The greatest debt, and the one most difficult to repay sufficiently, is the debt owed to a teacher from whom one has learned.

Professors Otis E. Fellows and Jean Hytier have also read this work in manuscript, contributing valuable comments and advice where my haste or ignorance needed correction.

REFERENCES TO MONTAIGNE AND BAYLE TEXTS

The editions referred to are:

Montaigne, Oeuvres complètes, ed. Albert Thibaudet and Maurice Rat. Bibliothèque de la Pléiade. Paris; Gallimard, 1962. (It is to be hoped that succeeding printings will not change the pagination of this useful volume, but the inclusion of strata indicators at present missing from essays one through eight in Book II may make a difference.) References will give the book number in capital Roman numerals, the essay number in small Roman numerals, the page number, and the letter a, b, or c to indicate that the passage first appeared in 1580, 1588, or on the Bordeaux copy. JV means Journal de voyage.

Bayle, Pierre. Dictionnaire historique et critique, ed. Beuchot, 16 vols. Paris: Desoer, 1820. (Abbreviated DHC.)

— . Oeuvres diverses de Pierre Bayle, 2nd ed. 4 vols. Trévoux, 1737. (Abbreviated OD. The notation “OD I B” refers to Bayle’s letters to his family, separately paginated at the end of volume one in the second edition of OD.)

The notations “l” or “r” will be used to indicate the left or right column of OD or DHC when necessary. References to the Dictionnaire will include: (1) the article title (homonyms will be distinguished, e.g., Dante, poète and Dante, Pierre-Vincent), (2) in superscript an indication of the edition in which the passage first appeared (p = Projet, 1692; 1 = 1697; 2 = 1702; 4 = 1720, posthumous); the notations 2 and 4 may refer to a new article or to an addition made to an article originally appearing in an earlier edition, (3) the location of the comment, either in the article (art.) or in a remark (e.g., C) or in a footnote to a remark (an Arabic numeral) or rarely in a subsection of a remark (a Roman numeral).
