ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book is truly a collaborative effort. Several scholars over the years have shaped the ideas presented in it. Two of them stand out in my mind: James Yoon and Beatrice Santorini. James taught me how to present theoretical analyses that are faithful to data. He was able to navigate my ideas in a direction that invariably yielded promising results. Beatrice has, with her thoughtful, rigorous commentaries on several earlier drafts, vastly improved the contents of this book. Her constant encouragement, attention to detail, and the wealth of knowledge of the V2 field made the task of writing this book seem manageable.

Since the ideas presented in this book evolved over several years, a large number of linguists have contributed toward its progress, through comments, criticism, suggestions, and sometimes simply by making available the relevant research. They include Rajesh Bhatt, Tej Bhatia, Luigi Burzio, Miriam Butt, Alice Davison, Veneeta Dayal, Molly Diesing, Stanley Dubinsky, Hans Hock, Peter Hook, Yamuna Kachru, Baber Khan, Tracy King, Anoop Mahajan, Christer Platzack, Jean Rutten, Carson Schütze, Peter Sells, S. N. Sridhar, Mary Tait, Kashi Wali, Gert Webelhuth, Fred Weerman, Jan-Wouter Zwart, and two anonymous reviewers for Kluwer.

Special thanks to Braj B. Kachru for his guidance over the years, which I treasure, always. His influence on my understanding of general linguistics has been considerable. He has shown me how to be, and stay, productive and committed to my chosen areas of research, and have fun with it too.

Friends usually have a special way of introducing a balance between work and play. I have been lucky to have some around: Mukul, Russell, Marcia, Baber, Isabel, Jill, Ilona, Janina, Shahrzad and David.

Parts of this material were presented, at various stages of development, at the West Coast Conference on Formal Linguistics, Western Conference on Linguistics, Linguistic Society of America meetings, Chicago Linguistic Society meeting, Formal Linguistic Society of Mid-America, and South Asian Language Analysis roundtable. I thank the audiences at all of these conferences for their questions, comments, and suggestions.

I am also grateful to the English Department faculty at the University of Tennessee for their support and understanding while I was finishing this manuscript. I am also grateful for the several Hodges English summer grants, which made it possible for me to continue research on this book.

Thanks are also due to Steven Gross for proof-reading/copy-editing the manuscript, to Randy Miller for working on the Index and proof-reading, and to Chang-Kyum Kim for help with formatting and other technical wizardry.

It was a pleasure working with Vanessa Nijweide and Susan Jones. I thank them for their enthusiasm, support and assistance.

Finally, for the love, support and understanding they have always provided me, my deepest gratitude go to my parents, Mohani and Mohan Lal Bhatt; to my sister, brother-in-law, and niece, Renu, Sushil and Tanushree; and to my wife, Barbara, gobur Ashish, and gobri Priyasha. It is from all of them that I derive my strength, energy and peace of mind.
