ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is based on my doctoral thesis which was written at the University of Nijmegen. I thank all those people who have contributed to its realization. In particular, I would like to thank Ad van Deemen, Grahame Lock and Harrie de Swart for their encouragements and support. I am also very grateful to Marcel Wissenburg for his nagging questions and helpful suggestions. Furthermore, I would like to thank Jos de Beus, Wulf Gaertner, Prasanta Pattanaik, Huib Pellikaan, Dick Ruiters and Jeroen van Rijen for their contributions to different stages of the research.

Some of the results of chapter 8 have been published in Social Choice and Welfare vol. 12 (1995), pp. 155-164. I am grateful to the publishers for their permission to use this material. Furthermore, financial support by the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NWO) is gratefully acknowledged.

Above all, I am indebted to Anneke. I dedicate this book to her and to our son.
