

Asia in Transition

Volume 4

Editor-in-chief

Chee Kiong Tong, Universiti Brunei Darussalam, Brunei Darussalam

Series editors

Kathrina Haji Mohd Daud, Universiti Brunei Darussalam, Brunei Darussalam

Zawawi Ibrahim, Universiti Brunei Darussalam, Brunei Darussalam

Jeremy Jammes, Universiti Brunei Darussalam, Brunei Darussalam

This book series is an initiative in conjunction with Springer under the auspices of the Universiti Brunei Darussalam—Institute of Asian Studies (<http://ias.ubd.edu.bn/>). It addresses the interplay of local, national, regional and global influences in Southeast, South and East Asia and the processes of translation and exchange across boundaries and borders. The series explores a variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary perspectives.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/13611>

Victor T. King · Zawawi Ibrahim
Noor Hasharina Hassan
Editors

Borneo Studies in History, Society and Culture

Ubd INSTITUTE OF
ASIAN STUDIES

 Springer

Editors

Victor T. King
Institute of Asian Studies
Universiti Brunei Darussalam
Bandar Seri Begawan
Brunei Darussalam

Noor Hasharina Hassan
Institute of Asian Studies
University Brunei Darussalam
Bandar Seri Begawan
Brunei Darussalam

Zawawi Ibrahim
Institute of Asian Studies
Universiti Brunei Darussalam
Bandar Seri Begawan
Brunei Darussalam

ISSN 2364-8252

Asia in Transition

ISBN 978-981-10-0671-5

DOI 10.1007/978-981-10-0672-2

ISSN 2364-8260 (electronic)

ISBN 978-981-10-0672-2 (eBook)

Library of Congress Control Number: 2016933201

© Springer Science+Business Media Singapore 2017

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are reserved by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made.

Printed on acid-free paper

This Springer imprint is published by Springer Nature

The registered company is Springer Science+Business Media Singapore Pte Ltd.

Preface and Acknowledgements

This volume has had a rather long chequered history. As is often the case a project emerges from chance meetings and happy coincidental circumstances. After delivering an overview paper on the theme of ‘Culture and Identity: Some Borneo Comparisons’ at the Biennial International Conference of the Borneo Research Council, held at Universiti Brunei Darussalam (UBD) during 25–27 June 2012, Victor King happened to be speaking with Poline Bala about the progress and development of anthropological studies in Borneo. It was really at her suggestion that we then began to think about providing a more comprehensive overview of Borneo Studies, and it was from this initiative that the current volume emerged. The co-editors, Zawawi Ibrahim and Noor Hasharina Hassan, enthusiastically embraced this project.

When Victor King was actively engaged in teaching and research at the Institute of Asian Studies, UBD from August 2012, and working closely with Zawawi Ibrahim, the opportunity presented itself and the decision was taken to organise, host and fund a workshop on Borneo Studies. This duly took place during 30 November–1 December 2012 at UBD when we brought several leading local scholars together in order that we could consider where we might take this proposal.

What was clear, however, was the following:

1. We had to try to widen the agenda beyond anthropology (though this remains a vitally important focus) to examine the contribution of the social sciences more generally to our understanding of Borneo societies and cultures and their transformations since the Second World War (which should also include the multidisciplinary fields of development studies, environmental studies, social policy studies, cultural studies and gender studies).
2. We should try to address a range of conceptual issues as well as more substantive problem areas in that, though Borneo Studies has quite understandably been preoccupied with ‘real world’ issues of modernisation and development and with the application of social science knowledge to practical and everyday problems and processes, there have been some significant contributions to concepts and theory as well.

3. We should attempt to locate Borneo Studies within the wider studies of Malaysia and Indonesia and within the context of Southeast Asian Studies; widening the frame of reference also applies to the only fully national territory in Borneo, Brunei Darussalam.
4. We should endeavour to locate Borneo Studies within disciplinary contexts and examine the contribution of the study of Borneo societies, cultures and transformations to the development of the social science disciplines more generally.
5. And, in contemplating the 'state of the art' in Borneo Studies we should be prepared to look to the future, and try to determine where we go from here. What are the urgent matters which we need to address that have not received the attention they deserve? What subjects have we been concerned with already but which need further elaboration and research? What is the scope for disciplinary and multidisciplinary collaboration? What is the scope for collaboration between some of the participants in this workshop?

We then invited the participants of the workshop to prepare their papers for publication and we contacted several other active researchers on Borneo to add to the range of issues and topics on what we wanted to cover and present. We do not claim that this is a comprehensive treatment of research on Borneo undertaken since the late 1940s when what we might term modern social science, based on primary field research, emerged in Borneo. Sadly we are still underrepresented in Kalimantan, and, as has always been the case, the field continues to be dominated by social science in Sarawak. We have managed, however, to secure some contributions from our Indonesian colleagues and to ensure that some of the major developments in the largest part of the island have been covered. As the workshop was organised in Brunei we have also been able to include recent research contributions from colleagues at the university there, and we have been fortunate in securing contributions from scholars in Sabah. Nevertheless, we recognise that this is only a modest beginning in the attempt to capture some of the major scholarly post-war developments in Borneo Studies, and much more needs to be done and continuing glaring gaps need to be filled.

The rather extended delay between the initial planning for this volume and its publication requires some explanation. After Victor King's temporary departure from Brunei in December 2012, though with a brief 10-week revisit in mid-2013, the project stalled due to the pressure of other research and publication commitments. It was re-energised in 2014 when Zawawi Ibrahim, as the local coordinator at UBD, and Victor King, with the assistance of Noor Hasharina Hassan, contacted those contributors who had committed to the publication and then approached other potential contributors to at least begin to fill some of the gaps in coverage. Much of 2014 and 2015 have been preoccupied with bringing together and editing the volume.

The project might not have materialised had it not been for the support of colleagues in Universiti Brunei Darussalam's Institute of Asian Studies. We wish to acknowledge the financial support provided by the institute to enable the initial workshop to take place, and the copy-editing and indexing to be undertaken, a substantial task given the size of the volume. Had it not been for the enthusiasm and encouragement of the then Director of the Institute, Prof. Tong Chee Kiong, for arguing for the importance of developing a Borneo Studies agenda within the university and securing funding for it, this project would not have been completed successfully. We owe him an enormous debt of gratitude. Sincere thanks are also due to Dr Yabit Alas at UBD for developing the network of Borneo institutions and for providing a framework for the inclusion of our contributors from Kalimantan. Our heartfelt thanks also go to Gareth Richards of Impress Creative and Editorial, Penang, who, in many respects has been our fourth co-editor. His professionalism, good humour, patience and sheer determination to see the project to a conclusion, and his meticulous copy-editing, ably assisted by Julia Tan and Siti Aishah Kamarudin, have ensured that what started as an interesting concept has turned into a publication which we hope will set an agenda for Borneo Studies in the next decade.

Brunei Darussalam
March 2016

Victor T. King
Zawawi Ibrahim
Noor Hasharina Hassan

Abbreviations and Acronyms

AMA-JK	Aliansi Masyarakat Adat Jalai dan Kendawangan (Jalai Kendawangan Alliance of Indigenous Peoples)
AMA-Kalbar	Aliansi Masyarakat Adat Kalimantan Barat (West Kalimantan Alliance of Indigenous Peoples)
AMAN	Aliansi Masyarakat Adat Nusantara (Indigenous Peoples' Alliance of the Archipelago)
AMBD	Autoriti Monetari Brunei Darussalam (Monetary Authority of Brunei Darussalam)
ANPRI	Aliansi untuk Perdamaian dan Rekonsiliasi (Alliance for Peace and Reconciliation)
ASEAN	Association of Southeast Asian Nations
BATAMAD	Barisan Pertahanan Masyarakat Adat Dayak (Dayak Customary Defence Guard)
BEM	Borneo Evangelical Mission
Berjaya	Parti Bersatu Rakyat Jelata (Sabah People's United Front)
Bernamea	Pertubuhan Berita Nasional Malaysia
BHEP	Bakun Hydroelectric Project
BKCUK	Badan Koordinasi Credit Union Kalimantan (Kalimantan Credit Union Coordinating Board)
BKSNT	Balai Kajian Sejarah dan Nilai Tradisional (Centre for Studies of History and Tradition)
BMT	Baitul Maal wa Tamwil
BRC	Borneo Research Council
CDD	Curriculum Development Department
CIFOR	Center for International Forestry Research
CoERI	Centre of Excellence for Rural Informatics
CSSRC	Colonial Social Science Research Council
CUSO	Canadian University Service Overseas
DAD	Dewan Adat Dayak (Dayak Traditional Council)
DBP	Dewan Bahasa dan Pustaka
EVR	Ethnolinguistic vitality rating

FID	Financial Institutions Division
FPI	Front Pembela Islam (Islamic Defenders Front)
GAD	Gender and development
GMTPS	Gerakan Mandau Telawang Pancasila (Pancasila Dagger and Shield Movement)
GPD	Gerakan Pemuda Dayak (Dayak Youth Movement)
GPPK	Gerakan Pemberdayaan Pancur Kasih (Pancur Kasih Empowerment Movement)
IAIN	Pontianak Institut Agama Islam Negeri (Pontianak State Institute of Islamic Studies)
IAS	Institute of Asian Studies
ICT	Information and communication technology
ICTM	International Council for Traditional Music
IDRD	Institute of Dayakology Research and Development
IDS	Institute for Development Studies, Sabah
INDEP	Institute for Indigenous Economic Progress
INGI	International NGO Forum on Indonesia
ISAI	Institut Studi Arus Informasi (Institute for the Studies on Free Flow of Information)
Jatam	Jaringan Advokasi Tambang (Mining Advocacy Network)
JKKK	Jawatankuasa Kemajuan dan Keselamatan Kampung (village development and security committee)
JMM	Jasa Menenun Mandiri
JTB	Jabatan Telekom Brunei
Kalteng	Kalimantan Tengah (Central Kalimantan)
KCA	Kadazan Cultural Association
KDCA	Kadazan Dusun Cultural Association
KKN	korupsi, kulusi dan nepotisme (corruption, collusion and nepotism)
KLF	Kadazandusun Language Foundation
KPA	Konsorsium Pembaruan Agraria (Consortium of Agrarian Reform)
LBBPJ	Lembaga Bina Benua Puti Jaji
LBBT	Lembaga Bela Banua Talino (Institute for Community Legal Resources Empowerment)
LCDA	Land Consolidation Development Authority
LGBT	Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender
LP2M	Lembaga Penelitian dan Pengabdian pada Masyarakat (Centre for Research and Community Service)
LP3S	Lembaga Pelatihan dan Penunjang Pembangunan Sosial (Institute for Training and Supporting Social Development)
LSE	London School of Economics and Political Science
MABM	Majelis Adat Budaya Melayu (Malay Custom and Cultural Council)
MABT	Majelis Adat Budaya Tionghoa (Chinese Custom and Cultural Council)
MAD	Majelis Adat Dayak (Dayak Traditional Council)

MADN	Majelis Adat Dayak Nasional (National Dayak Traditional Council)
MIKA	Percetakan Mitra Kasih (Mitra Kasih Printing House)
MiSEM	Mitra Sekolah Masyarakat (Public Schools Partners)
MTs	Madrasah Tsanawiyah (Islamic junior high school)
NGO	Non-governmental organisation
OT1	Oral Tradition 1 project
PAR	Participatory action research
PASEA	Performing Arts of Southeast Asia
PBS	Parti Bersatu Sabah
PCN	Personal credit line
PDI-P	Partai Demokrasi Perjuangan (Indonesian Democratic Struggle Party)
PEK	Program Pengembangan Ekonomi Kerakyatan (People's Economic Development Programme)
PRCF	People, Resources and Conservation Foundation
PTUN	Pengadilan Tata Usaha Negara (State Administrative Court)
RRI	Radio Republik Indonesia (Republic of Indonesia Radio)
RTB	Radio Television Brunei
SDN	sekolah dasar negeri (state elementary school)
SEASREP	Southeast Asian Studies Regional Exchange Program
SEDIA	Sabah Economic Development and Investment Authority
SMP	sekolah menengah pertama (junior secondary school)
SMTE	Small-medium tourism enterprises
TAP	Tabung Amanah Pekerja (Employees' Trust Fund)
Tidayu	Tionghoa, Dayak and Melayu
UBD	Universiti Brunei Darussalam
UMS	Universiti Malaysia Sabah
UNESCO	United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation
UNIMAS	Universiti Malaysia Sarawak
UNTAN	Universitas Tanjungpura
USNO	United Sabah National Organisation
VoIP	Voice over internet protocol
WALHI	Wahana Lingkungan Hidup Indonesia (Indonesian Forum for the Environment)
WID	Women in development
WWF	World Wildlife Fund for Nature
YKSPK	Yayasan Karya Sosial Pancur Kasih (Pancur Kasih Social Work Foundation)

Contents

1	Introductory Remarks	1
	Victor T. King, Zawawi Ibrahim and Noor Hasharina Hassan
Part I Borneo-Wide Perspectives
2	Some Preliminary Thoughts on Early Anthropology in Borneo . . .	15
	Victor T. King
3	Towards a Critical Alternative Scholarship on the Discourse of Representation, Identity and Multiculturalism in Sarawak	35
	Zawawi Ibrahim
4	Material Culture Studies and Ethnocultural Identity	57
	Bernard Sellato
5	Borneo and Beyond: Reflections on Borneo Studies, Anthropology and the Social Sciences	79
	Victor T. King
6	Devolved, Diverse, Distinct? Hunter-Gatherer Research in Borneo	125
	Lars Kaskija
7	Issues and Trends in Media and Communications in Borneo over the Past 30 Years	159
	Fausto Barlocco
8	Identities in Borneo: Constructions and Transformations	177
	Victor T. King
Part II State-Specific Perspectives
9	The Real and the Ideal: Towards Culturally Appropriate and Collaborative Heritage Practice in Kalimantan	211
	Christina Kreps

10	An Overview of Cultural Research in Sabah	235
	Jacqueline Pugh-Kitingan
11	Whither Gender Studies in Sarawak?	261
	Hew Cheng Sim
12	The Rise of Dayak Identities in Central Kalimantan	273
	Kumpiady Widen
13	An Overview of Anthropological and Sociological Research at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak	283
	Poline Bala
14	Borneo Research in the Institute of Asian Studies, Universiti Brunei Darussalam	303
	Gary M. Jones
15	Institut Dayakologi: The Challenges of an Information and Advocacy Centre of Dayak Culture in Kalimantan	313
	John Bamba
 Part III Case Studies
16	Kenyah-Badeng Displacement: Bakun Hydroelectric Project Resettlement	343
	Welyne Jeffrey Jehom
17	Community, River and Basin: Watersheds in Northern Sarawak as a Social Linkage	365
	Jayl Langub and Noboru Ishikawa
18	From Inclusion to Social Exclusion in Resource Stewardship among Members of Migrant Bilik Families in Pantu, Sri Aman	385
	Dimbab Ngidang
19	Stones and Power in the Kelapang: Indigeneity and Kelabit and Ngurek Narratives	405
	Valerie Mashman
20	Social Change and the Contributions of the Tionghoa, Dayak and Melayu (Tidayu) in West Kalimantan	427
	Zaenuddin Hudi Prasajo
21	'Wild Borneo': A Study of Visitor Perception and Experience of Nature Tourism in Sandakan, Sabah, Malaysian Borneo	443
	Rosalie Corpuz

22 Challenges in Indigenous Language Education: The Brunei Experience. 463
Noor Azam Haji-Othman

23 Everyday Finance and Consumption in Brunei Darussalam 477
Noor Hasharina Hassan

24 The Relevance of Contextual Components in the Religious Conversion Process: The Case of Dusun Muslims in Brunei Darussalam 493
Asiyah az-Zahra Ahmad Kumpoh

25 Borneo Studies: Perspectives from a Jobbing Social Scientist 511
Victor T. King

Glossary of Non-English Terms 533

Index 539

List of Figures

Figure 10.1	Kadazan Dusun bobolian or priestesses chanting rinait during a moginakan celebration in Kampung Sunsuron, Tambunan (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 1987)	236
Figure 10.2	Paluan Murut women (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 2010)	237
Figure 10.3	A Makiang woman from the upper Kinabatangan area playing a gabang (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 1989)	238
Figure 10.4	Rungus bobolizan or priestesses (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 2010)	242
Figure 10.5	A lahat or village of the now semi-nomadic Sama Dilaut near Mabul Island, off Semporna, Sabah (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 1999)	243
Figure 10.6	Constructing the Bonggi house (from Bangi Island) in the grounds of the Sabah Museum complex under the Traditional Houses Project (now Living Heritage Village) of Sabah Museum (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 1989)	245
Figure 10.7	An Iranun woman playing kulintangan at Kg Merabau, Kota Belud (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 1998)	248
Figure 10.8	The late Odun Rinduman, tantagas lawid (high priestess) of the Lotud Dusun, chanting rinait (long ritual poetry) during the Mamahui Pogun (Cleansing the Universe) ritual series in 2003 (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 2003)	250
Figure 10.9	Interviewing village headmen at Kampung Karanaan, Tambunan, in the Ethnographic and Cultural Mapping project (Photograph Pugh-Kitingan 2008)	251
Figure 16.1	The stages of displacement	347
Figure 17.1	Watersheds and Penan migration routes in northern Sarawak	367
Figure 17.2	Genealogy of Julaihi Keti	377

Figure 17.3 Genealogy of Awang Robert bin Awang Osman 382

Figure 18.1 Genealogy of Penghulu Linang’s bilik families 393

Figure 19.1 Long Peluan 410

Figure 19.2 Map of Long Peluan 411

Figure 19.3 Ngrek Penghulu Lenjau Kuleh from Sarawak visiting
Ngrek grave at Long Bera, Kalimantan 418

Figure 19.4 Dolmen grave near Long Puak. Source de Clayre
(2010: 285) 419

Figure 19.5 Stone mound (perupun) at Long Senibong 420

Figure 19.6 Tama Gerawat uncovering a slab grave at Long
Belilin 421

Figure 21.1 First impressions of Borneo. 450

Figure 21.2 Expectations of Borneo. 451

Figure 22.1 Map of Tutong language areas. Source Nothofer
(1991) 468

List of Tables

Table 15.1	Plant diversity in Menjalin and Jelai Hulu, West Kalimantan	323
Table 15.2	Oral tradition documentation data, 1991–2007	328
Table 15.3	Documentation data, 1991–2007	328
Table 15.4	Community radio station facilitation	331
Table 15.5	Institut Dayakologi’s documentation and publication output	333
Table 16.1	Seasonal vegetables in Uma Badeng, Sungai Asap	356
Table 16.2	Cost of transportation to market	356
Table 17.1	Generations of Penan Suai leaders	368
Table 17.2	Northern Sarawak watershed connecting points and ethnic groups	370
Table 17.3	Marriage profiles of Rumah Julaihi, Penan Saoh, Jelalong and Bintulu	376
Table 23.1	Consumer indebtedness	484
Table 23.2	Popular forms of borrowing	485

List of Boxes

Box 22.1	Short Tutong text	470
Box 22.2	Long Tutong text	471

Editors and Contributors

About the Editors

Victor T. King is emeritus professor at the University of Leeds, professorial research associate at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, visiting professor at Chiang Mai University, Thailand, formerly eminent visiting professor at Universiti Brunei Darussalam and currently distinguished visiting fellow at the UBD Institute of Asian Studies. He has long-standing research interests in the sociology and anthropology of Southeast Asia. His recent publications include The historical reconstruction of Southeast Asian studies: Korea and beyond (edited with Park Seung Woo, 2013), Rethinking Asian tourism: culture, encounters and local response (edited with Ploysri Porananond, 2014), and an edited book UNESCO in Southeast Asia: world heritage sites in comparative perspective (2015).

Zawawi Ibrahim is a professor at the Institute of Asian Studies and coordinator of the Sociology and Anthropology Programme, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Universiti Brunei Darussalam. He conducts research on the rural Malay peasantry and labour, indigenous society, popular culture, the new media, multiculturalism and postmodernist storytelling. Among his publications as author and editor are The Malay labourer: by the window of capitalism (1998), Voices from the Crocker Range indigenous communities, Sabah (2001), Blogging and democratisation in Malaysia: a new civil society in the making (with Jun-E Tan, 2008), Representation, identity and multiculturalism in Sarawak (2008), Social science and knowledge in a globalising world (2012) and Masyarakat Penan dan impian pembangunan: satu himpunan naratif keterpeminggiran dan jatidiri (Penan society and their imagined development: narratives of marginalisation and identity) (with Noorshah M.S., 2012).

Noor Hasharina Hassan is a lecturer in economic and social geography at the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences and the Institute of Asian Studies, Universiti Brunei Darussalam. She participated in the Scholar Exchange Programme at the East-West Center, Honolulu, USA in 2014 and at King's College London in 2015. She has conducted research on issues of consumption and housing and has presented research papers at several international conferences.

Contributors

Asiyah az-Zahra Ahmad Kumpoh is a lecturer in the Historical and International Studies Programme, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Universiti Brunei Darussalam. She teaches Bruneian diplomatic and political history, post-war urbanisation in Southeast Asia, and the evolution of philosophy and theories in historical studies. Her current research interests focus on the intersecting historical evolutions of religion, ethnicity, identity and culture in Brunei and Southeast Asia. Her most recent publication is 'Understanding religious conversion of the Dusun Muslim converts in Brunei Darussalam: critical engagement of the Rambo model', in Graffiti, converts and vigilantes: Islam outside the mainstream in maritime Southeast Asia (2015).

Poline Bala is an associate professor and head of the Department of Anthropology and Sociology, Faculty of Social Sciences, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak, where she is also the deputy director of the Centre of Excellence in Rural Informatics. Her areas of research include the impacts of political boundaries on the formation of cultural, political and economic units in the border regions of Borneo and the role of information communication technologies on development activities in rural Malaysia. Her publications include 'Changing borders and identities in the Kelabit Highlands' (2002), 'Re-thinking methodology through e-Bario project: from participatory methods to a relational approach to information communication technologies for rural development' (2011), 'Redeploying technologies: ICT for greater agency and capacity for political engagement in the Kelabit Highlands' (2014) and 'Being Christians in Muslim-majority Malaysia: the Kelabit and the Lun Bawang experiences in Sarawak'.

John Bamba co-founded Institut Dayakologi, Pontianak in 1991 and was its executive director from 1999 to 2014. He is now the leader of Gerakan Pemberdayaan Pancur Kasih (Pancur Kasih Empowerment Movement), a consortium of 10 organisations and five credit unions working for the empowerment of local communities. He has been working on Dayak cultural revitalisation and the empowerment of indigenous rights since the early 1980s and has written extensively on Dayak culture and their problems and challenges in Kalimantan. His latest books are Dayak Jalai di persimpangan jalan (Dayak Jalai at the crossroads, 2010) and Credit union gerakan konsepsi filosofi petani (Concept of the credit union movement based on the farmers' philosophy, 2015).

Fausto Barlocco is a fellow at the University of Florence, Italy, associated with the Department of Clinical and Experimental Medicine, where he follows a set of research projects on cardiac disease and sudden death. He previously worked in the field of special needs education in London, undertook a development consultancy in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and has taught and been programme leader for the social sciences at Nottingham Trent International College. His research interests range across the fields of media, political and medical anthropology, and centre on issues of identity, ethnicity, nationalism, lived experience, and life and illness narratives. He is the author of the Identity and the state in Malaysia (2014), based on his doctoral research in Sabah, Malaysia.

Rosalie Corpuz is a freelance consultant based in Sabah, Malaysia. Following a career as a research analyst in London, she set up a social research consultancy in Sabah providing solutions to key decision-makers and environmental conservation managers in government departments, international non-governmental organisations and private companies.

Hew Cheng Sim is a professor at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak. Her research interests include gender and development, urbanisation, marriage, family and work with a focus on Sarawak. She has published widely in international journals. Her authored books include Women workers, migration and family in Sarawak (2003) and Tra Zehnder: Iban woman patriot of Sarawak (with Rokiah Talib, 2011), while she is the editor of Village mothers, city daughters: women experiencing urbanization in Sarawak (2007) and For better or worse: marriage and family in Sarawak (2015).

Noboru Ishikawa is a professor of anthropology at the Center for Southeast Asian Studies, Kyoto University, Japan. He has conducted fieldwork in Sarawak and West Kalimantan over the past two decades, exploring the construction of national space in the borderland, highland–lowland relations, commodification of natural resource and labour, and the relationship between nature and non-nature. His publications include Between frontiers: nation and identity in a Southeast Asian borderland (2010), and the edited volumes Transborder governance of forests, rivers and seas (2010) and Flows and movements in Southeast Asia: new approaches to transnationalism (2011). His forthcoming edited book Anthropogenic tropical forests: resilience of post-development nature and society examines a high biomass society in northern Sarawak.

Welyne Jeffrey Jehom is a senior lecturer in the Gender Studies Programme, Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, Universiti Malaya. A practising applied anthropologist, she identifies as an academic activist who does research on indigenous peoples and issues of poverty. Her current research is on natural dyes and the weaving industry among the Iban, engaging in issues of management and the development of indigenous tacit knowledge as an important livelihood tool. Her most recent publications include ‘Reconstruction of post-resettlement gender relations: the Kenyah-Badeng of Sungai Asap, Sarawak, Malaysia’ (2013), ‘Lily Eberwein: her life and involvement in the anti-cession movement in Sarawak’ (2013) and ‘Governance on compensation: Bakun dam in Sarawak, Malaysia’ (2014).

Gary M. Jones is a former dean of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences and is currently the director of the Institute of Asian Studies, Universiti Brunei Darussalam. He previously worked in Britain, Germany, Sri Lanka and Abu Dhabi. His research interests include bilingualism, bilingual education and language planning. He is currently working on bilingualism in small states and on various projects linked to the Borneo Studies Network at the IAS. His recent publications include ‘Bilingual and multilingual education in Brunei and Malaysia: policies and practices’ (2015) and ‘Maintaining and revitalising the indigenous endangered languages of Borneo: comparing “top-down” and community-based policy initiatives and strategies’ (with James McLellan, 2015).

Lars Kaskija conducted extensive fieldwork from 1990 to 2001 among the Punan of the Malinau and Tubu Rivers in North Kalimantan, and also worked in Central Kalimantan. His research interests include hunter-gatherer economics and ecologies, and environmental conservation and culture. He is the author of The Punan of Borneo: cultural fluidity and persistency in a forest people (1998), Claiming the forest: Punan local histories and recent developments in Bulungan, East Kalimantan (2002) and Images of a forest people: Punan Malinau—identity, sociality, and encapsulation in Borneo (2012).

Christina Kreps is a cultural anthropologist who has conducted research on museums and participated in museum development and heritage training programmes in Indonesia, Vietnam and Thailand in addition to the United States and Europe. She was associate professor of anthropology, director of Museum and Heritage Studies and the Museum of Anthropology at the University of Denver, USA from 1998 to 2015. She is currently the director of Museum Studies in the Arts and Administration Program in the School of Architecture and Allied Arts, University of Oregon. She is co-editor of the series Museum Meanings (Routledge). Some of her publications include Liberating culture: cross-cultural perspectives on museums, curation, and heritage preservation (2003) and Intangible threads: curating the living heritage of Dayak ikat weaving (2012).

Jayl Langub is a retired civil servant, and was engaged as a senior research fellow at the Institute of East Asian Studies, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak from 2004 to 2014. Since the mid-1970s he has published numerous papers on the Penan and Orang Ulu, including entries in The encyclopedia of Malaysia. He has also written on adat, human rights issues among Sarawak’s minority groups and social change, and compiled Sukêt: Penan folk stories (2001). He is currently one of the trustees of World Wide Fund for Nature-Malaysia.

Valerie Mashman is currently pursuing her PhD entitled ‘A history of our people: the end of warfare, the coming of government and Christianity at the borders of the Kelabit highlands’ at Universiti Malaysia Sarawak. She is also a visitor at the School of Archaeology and Anthropology, Australian National University (2014–2016) and research associate with the Australian Research Council-funded project ‘Beyond Allied histories: Dayak memories of World War II in Borneo’.

Recent publications include ‘The Bidayuh of Sarawak: gender, spirituality and swiddens’ (with Patricia Nayoi, 2015) ‘Songs from Long Peluan’ (2014) and ‘Northwestern Borneo’ (2012), as well as articles in the Sarawak Museum Journal and Borneo Research Bulletin on basketry and material culture. She co-edited Sarawak cultural legacy (with Lucas Chin, 1991). She is a member of the Borneo Research Council.

Dimbab Ngidang is professor of development studies at the Faculty of Social Sciences, Universiti Malaysia Sarawak, where he was also dean (2001–2003), and served as the Chair of Dayak Studies in the Institute of East Asian Studies (2004–2006). His areas of research include land development, rural–urban migration and contract farming. He is currently undertaking a study on informal native customary land markets and the expansion of oil palm among smallholders in Sarawak. He is also actively engaged in community service as a member of the panel of advisers to the Dayak Chamber of Commerce and Industry and as a board member of the Tun Jugah Foundation.

Noor Azam Haji-Othman is the director of the Centre for Advanced Research, Universiti Brunei Darussalam and is also an associate professor in applied linguistics, teaching on the English Language and Linguistics and Communication and Media Studies Programmes. His main research interests include the interactions between the indigenous languages of Brunei with Malay and English in relation to state policies on language, education and society. He is also interested in bilingualism and bilingual education, and teaching and learning strategies in multilingual classrooms.

Jacqueline Pugh-Kitingan is professor of ethnomusicology, and holds the Kadazandusun Chair at Universiti Malaysia Sabah. Her original research was about the Huli, Papua New Guinea. She first came to Sabah in 1977 and has done research among many indigenous communities. Her publications include Selected papers on music in Sabah (2004), ‘An ethnomusicological discussion of bi te, the chanted tales of the Huli’ (2011) and ‘Balancing the human and spiritual worlds: ritual, music and dance among Dusunic Societies in Sabah’ (2014). She is a Borneo Research Council Fellow, a member of the International Council for Traditional Music’s Study Group on Performing Arts of Southeast Asia, serves on the Jawatankuasa Pakar Pendaftaran Warisan (Expert Committee on Heritage Registration) of the Department of National Heritage, Malaysia, and was an adjunct research fellow of anthropology, Monash University, Anthropology (2009–2010).

Zaenuddin Hudi Prasajo is an assistant professor of religious and cross-cultural studies and vice rector at Pontianak State College for Islamic Studies, West Kalimantan, Indonesia. He has also worked for Save the Children International at the United Nations Office, New York, USA. His research interests include indigenous traditions and environment in western Borneo, particularly focusing on adat and its contribution to environmental management. His published books and articles include ‘Merajut perdamaian di Kalimantan Barat’ (2007), Riots on the News in West Borneo (2008), A little book for wisdom: between Pontianak and Oxford (2010) and 'Indigenous community identity within Muslim societies in Indonesia: a study of Katab Kebahan Dayak in West Borneo' (2011).

Bernard Sellato has been working in and on Borneo since 1973, first as a geologist and later as an anthropologist. He is now a senior researcher with Centre Asie du Sud-Est, Paris, France (Centre national de la recherche scientifique and École des hautes études en sciences sociales). He is a former director of the Institut de recherche sur le Sud-Est Asiatique, Université de Provence, Marseille, and for 10 years was the editor of the bilingual journal Moussons: social science research on Southeast Asia. He is the author or editor of a dozen books, including Hornbill and dragon: arts and culture of Borneo (1989/1992), Nomads of the Borneo rainforest (1994), Innermost Borneo: studies in Dayak cultures (2002), Beyond the green myth: Borneo's hunter-gatherers in the twenty-first century (with Peter G. Sercombe, 2007) and Plaited arts from the Borneo rainforest (2012).

Kumpiady Widen is a senior lecturer in anthropology and dean at the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, Universitas Palangka Raya, Indonesia. He previously served as vice rector for academic affairs at the university (2007–2013). His research interests include the social, cultural and political dynamics of Central Kalimantan. He is the author of Dayak identity: impacts of globalisation (2002) and numerous book chapters and journal articles on the (re)construction of Dayak identity. He has been also a speaker on Dayak culture in local, national and international forums.