

Guns & Roses: Comparative Civil-Military
Relations in the Changing Security Environment

Steven Ratuva • Radomir Compel
Sergio Aguilar
Editors

Guns & Roses:
Comparative Civil-
Military Relations in the Changing Security
Environment

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Steven Ratuva
Macmillan Brown Center for Pacific Studies
University of Canterbury
Christchurch, New Zealand

Radomir Compel
School of Global Humanities and Social Sciences
Nagasaki University
Nagasaki, Japan

Sergio Aguilar
Faculdade de Filosofia e Ciências
Sao Paulo State University
Marília, São Paulo, Brazil

The conference on which the book is based and the publication itself were funded by the New Zealand Marsden Research Grant awarded to Prof Steven Ratuva for research on security.

ISBN 978-981-13-2007-1 ISBN 978-981-13-2008-8 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-981-13-2008-8>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2018961005

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2019

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use. The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover illustration: © Liliboas / Getty Images, © zim286 / Getty Images, © Epitavi / Getty Images

Cover Design by Fatima Jamadar

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Singapore Pte Ltd.

The registered company address is: 152 Beach Road, #21-01/04 Gateway East, Singapore 189721, Singapore

CONTENTS

- 1 Guns and Roses: The Nexus Between the Military and Citizenry in the New Security Environment 1
Steven Ratuva, Radomir Compel, and Sergio Aguilar
- 2 Multi-faceted Dilemmas: Politics and the Changing Dynamics of Civil–Military Relations—A Global Synopsis 15
Steven Ratuva
- 3 Popular Revolt and Military Intransigence in Egypt 39
Paul J. Carnegie
- 4 Military Coups d'état and the Distribution of Domestic Institutional Political Power Within Democracies: The Case of Post-1789 France 53
Miles Kitts
- 5 Political Culture and Institution-Building Impacting Civil–Military Relations (CMR) in Bangladesh 75
Mohd Aminul Karim

6	The Executive and the Military in South Africa During the Zuma Presidency	97
	Jo-Ansie van Wyk
7	Moving Towards a More Multiethnic Fiji Military Forces	117
	Vijay Naidu
8	The Military and Security in the Pacific Islands Past and Present	137
	Stewart Firth
9	Order and Chaos: Military Government and the Middle Classes in Thailand	153
	James Ockey
10	The Dilemma Relating to the Modernisation of the SANDF and Its External Role: From Defence Review 1989 to Defence Review 2015	179
	Theo Neethling
11	The Role of the Military in Chinese Politics	201
	Kate Hannan
12	Rethinking the Second Wave: Democratization and Public Order in Occupied Japan	215
	Radomir Compel
13	The Role of the Military and Police in the Regional Assistance Mission to Solomon Islands	231
	Jon Fraenkel
14	European Union Military Operations: The Use of Force in the Central African Republic, Chad, and the Democratic Republic of the Congo	257
	Sergio Aguilar

- 15 Soldiers, Rebels, and Overlords 277
Jovanie Camacho Espesor
- 16 Terminating Terrorism with Negotiations: A Divided Path Toward Progress 301
Anthony D. Hustedt
- 17 Can the Military Be Entrusted with the Role of Police? 323
Asha Gupta
- 18 Guilty by Association: The Issue of Gender Violence and the Targeted Killing of Men of Fighting Age in Times of Conflict 343
Marcus Boomen
- 19 From Guardians of the State to Guardians of Democracy? Institutional Change and Military Democratization in Insecure States 365
Cornelia-Adriana Baciu
- 20 United States Risk Management in the Post-war Iraq: Encountering Societal Risks 391
Radomir Compel
- 21 Protego ergo obligo? The Sovereignty Paradox in the Responsibility to Protect Doctrine 411
Pablo Zambrano
- 22 Some Concluding Remarks: The Future of Civil–Military Relations 433
Steven Ratuva, Radomir Compel, and Sergio Aguilar

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Sergio Aguilar has a PhD in History and is Associate Professor in International Security at São Paulo State University (UNESP), Brazil. His research is financed by the São Paulo Research Foundation, Process 2016/21211-8.

Cornelia-Adriana Baciu is a PhD candidate and IRC Government of Ireland Fellow at the School of Law and Government, Dublin City University (DCU). Her current research focuses on EU internal and external security, and she specializes in defence collaboration regimes, civil–military relations and EU Global Security Strategy. She studied politics and European studies in Germany, India and Romania and was DAAD-Erasmus fellow at the Terrorism Prevention Branch, United Nations. In 2013, she was awarded the prize for the best MA thesis at the University of Konstanz.

Marcus Boomen was a former MA student at the University of Canterbury. He works at the Ministry of Corrections, Government of New Zealand. His MA thesis was on conflict in Bougainville.

Paul J. Carnegie is an associate professor and Director of Governance at the School of Governance, Development and International Affairs at the University of the South Pacific. He has research specializations in comparative post-authoritarian politics, human security and localized responses to militant extremism with a focus on Indonesia, Southeast Asia, MENA and the Asia Pacific. He has published widely in his fields including the monograph The Road from Authoritarianism to Democratization in Indonesia and an edited book on Human Insecurities in Southeast Asia. Paul has extensive applied research experience and networks having lived and worked previously in Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Egypt and the United Arab Emirates.

Radomir Compel is Associate Professor of Comparative Politics at Nagasaki University. He is the co-author of Hito to Kaiyo no Kyosei wo Mezashite VI (2013) and Ashida Hitoshi Nikki 1905–1945 V (2012) and has written articles on wartime and post-war Okinawa and Japanese–American relations which have been published in many journals. He obtained PhD from Yokohama National University, and previously taught at Hosei University, Yokohama National University, Nihon University and University of Oulu.

Jovanie Camacho Espesor is a PhD student in Political Science and resident scholar of the Macmillan Brown Centre for Pacific Studies at the University of Canterbury. He is Assistant Professor of Political Science and Public Administration at the Mindanao State University, General Santos City, Philippines, and a research fellow of the Centre for Middle East and Global Studies at the National Islamic State University–Jakarta, Indonesia, and International Centre for Aceh and Indian Ocean Studies at the Syiah Kuala University, Aceh, Indonesia. His area of research interest intersects the disciplinary boundaries of political science, development studies, anthropology and critical security studies, and he specializes in the study of civil society, conflict, violent extremism and conflict transformation focusing on the Philippines and Indonesia.

Stewart Firth is a visiting fellow in the Department of International Relations and is affiliated with the Department of Pacific Affairs at the Research School of Pacific and Asian Studies at the Australian National University. He is a former professor and head of the Department of History and Politics at the University of the South Pacific and has published widely on Pacific politics, security and history.

Jon Fraenkel is Professor in Comparative Politics in the School of History, Philosophy, Political Science and International Relations at Victoria University of Wellington. He formerly worked at the Australian National University (2007–2012) and the University of the South Pacific in Fiji (1995–2007). He is author of The Manipulation of Custom; From Uprising to Intervention in the Solomon Islands and co-editor of The 2006 Military Takeover in Fiji; A Coup to End All coups? He is the Pacific Islands correspondent for The Economist.

Asha Gupta A recipient of Shastri Indo-Canadian, Friedrich Ebert Stiftung, Norwegian fellowships, UGC Career Award in Humanities, Asha Gupta is a former director and principal at the University of Delhi. She has served IPSA RC 44 as convener for many years. She has authored 11 books and 77 research papers, which have been published in various journals.

Kate Hannan has been researching and writing on the topic of contemporary Chinese politics since the Deng Xiaoping government introduced the 1978 programme for economic reform. She has taught courses and programmes in Chinese politics and society, political theory and development studies in a number of universities. Recent publications include Kate Hannan and Stewart Firth, 'Trading with the Dragon: Chinese trade, investment and development assistance in the Pacific Islands', Journal of Contemporary China, 2015, Vol. 24, No. 95, 865–82 and Kate Hannan, 'China's Migrant Workers and the Global Financial Crisis' in Vicki Crinis and Adrian Vickers, editors, Labour in the Clothing Industry in the Asia Pacific, Routledge, 2017, 97–118.

Anthony D. Hustedt is a graduate student of Political Science at Purdue University, specializing in International Security and Homeland Defense.

Mohd Aminul Karim is professor of School of Business, Independent University of Bangladesh, Dhaka; visiting professor, China Foreign Affairs University, Beijing (July–August 2016); Senior Fellow (Non-resident), International Institute for Non-Proliferation Studies, USA (Currently holding); Senior Research Fellow (with the Status of a full Professor–Grade-C), Asia-Europe Institute, University of Malaya, October 2011 to date; professor, BRAC Business School, BRAC University, Dhaka. January 2011—September 2011. He was also adjunct professor at the University of Malaya.

Miles Kitts holds a PhD in Political Science from the University of Queensland and specializes in strategic studies, international security, great power politics and terrorism and insurgency. In particular, he is interested in strategic concepts, history and how they can be used in combination to conduct analysis. His doctoral thesis focused on how to understand the relationship between the use of force and the outcomes of such use.

Vijay Naidu is Professor of Development Studies in the School of Government, Development and International Affairs (SGDIA); adjunct professor at VUW; and adjunct professor, Faculty of Health, Arts and Design, Swinburne University of Technology, Melbourne. He has researched aid, development policies, ethnicity and racism, higher education, electoral politics and coups in Fiji, land tenure, MDGs, indentured labour, migration, urbanization, informal settlements, the post-colonial state, poverty, social protection and human security, child sexual abuse and commercial sexual exploitation of children, Samoan taro blight, small island states and globalization.

Theo Neethling is professor and Head of the Department of Political Science at the University of the Free State since 1 April 2009. Neethling is the author (and co-author in a few instances) of more than 120 publicized outputs in scientific and popular scientific publications, including 42 articles in accredited academic journals and 16 chapter contributions to scholarly book publications. These publications appeared in South Africa, Australia, Germany, India, Pakistan, Ethiopia, the Russian Federation, Canada, Slovenia, the Czech Republic, the United States, the United Kingdom and Zimbabwe. Furthermore, he has presented more than 50 research papers at national and international level. In this regard, his project work has taken him to governmental and academic institutions in all five of Africa's regions, Asia, Australia, Europe and North America.

James Ockey is an associate professor in the Department of Politics at the University of Canterbury. He has extensive research and publication experience on South East Asian politics, politics in Thailand, democratization, civil-military relations, nationalism and Chinese politics.

Steven Ratuva is a political sociologist, is Director of Macmillan Brown Centre for Pacific Studies and a professor in the Department of Anthropology and Sociology at the University of Canterbury, New Zealand. He is also a Fulbright professor at University of California (LA), Duke University and Georgetown University. He is an inter-disciplinary scholar who has published widely on security, conflict, military, elections, development, affirmative action, ethnicity, nationalism, social protection and culture including as editor in chief of the Palgrave global handbook on ethnicity.

Jo-Ansie van Wyk is Professor of International Politics at the University of South Africa (Unisa), Pretoria, South Africa. She has authored various articles on, amongst others, nuclear diplomacy, foreign policy, political leadership, African politics, space politics and environmental and hydro-politics, which have been published in many books and journals. She is Fulbright Alumna of University of Delaware, Newark, USA and a member of the South African Academy for Science and Art. She has been a guest lecturer at the Universities of Johannesburg and Pretoria, the South African National Intelligence Academy, the South African National Defence College, the South African National War College and the South African Diplomatic Academy.

Pablo Zambrano is a journalist with experience in print media in Chile. He holds a Masters by Research in Political Science from University of Melbourne and a master's degree in Political Theory from Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile. He is studying for a DPhil in Politics, at the Department of Politics and International Relations, University of Oxford.

LIST OF FIGURES

Fig. 6.1	Major service delivery protests, 2004–16. Source : SAIRR (2017, 929)	100
Fig. 6.2	SANDF deployment for peacekeeping operations in Africa, 2000–14. Source : SAIRR (2017, 885)	110
Fig. 13.1	Combined Task Force 635 deployment. Source : RAMSI Annual Reports (Various) and author’s collations. Notes: 2005 figure is as from 1 December 2004	236
Fig. 13.2	Composition Combined Task Force 635, September 2003. Source : RAMSI Annual Reports (Various) and author’s collations	236
Fig. 13.3	Troop deployments on peacekeeping missions: soldiers per 1000 population (peak years, 1989–2006). Source : Dobbins et al. (2005, 244–5). Notes: Data cover the pre-2006 period only	238
Fig. 13.4	Troop deployments on peacekeeping missions (peak years, 1989–2006). Source : Dobbins et al. (2005, 244–5). Notes: Data cover the pre-2006 period only	238
Fig. 13.5	Composition of the participating police force, 2003–13. Source : RAMSI Annual Reports (Various) and author’s collations. 2009 figures interpolated	239
Fig. 13.6	Police deployments on peacekeeping missions (peak years, 1989–2006). Source : Dobbins et al. (2005, 244–5). Note: Data unavailable for Iraq and Afghanistan. Data cover the pre-2006 period only	240
Fig. 16.1	Total attacks by negotiation period	313
Fig. 16.2	Participating organization attacks by negotiation period	314

Fig. 16.3	Excluded organization attacks by negotiation period	314
Fig. 16.4	Excluded organization attacks by negotiation period W/IEV	315
Fig. 16.5	Total casualties by negotiation period	316
Fig. 16.6	Participating organization casualties by negotiation period	316
Fig. 16.7	Excluded organization casualties by negotiation period	317
Fig. 16.8	Excluded organization casualties by negotiation period W/IEV	318
Fig. 18.1	Content analysis of the victimization of men aged between 15 and 49	355
Fig. 18.2	Combined results of the demographic and content analyses	357

LIST OF TABLES

Table 2.1	Top ten contractors in Iraq and Afghanistan	31
Table 2.2	Top ten military contractors in the US in 2015	34
Table 6.1	ANC seats in Parliament, 1994–2014	100
Table 6.2	Military training of South Africa’s post-apartheid presidents	102
Table 6.3	The state of the South African Defence Force	106
Table 13.1	Distribution of RSIPF established posts, 2009	242
Table 13.2	Key RSIPF questions in the RAMSI Annual People’s survey	244
Table 13.3	Solomon Islands Police Commissioners, 1997–2018	246
Table 14.1	Characteristics of EU military operations	268
Table 15.1	Contents of the SSR modules developed by the AFP and IAG	291
Table 15.2	Contents of modules for the CRT course	293
Table 16.1	Attacks and casualties by negotiation status	312
Table 16.2	Attack and casualty monthly averages by negotiation status	312
Table 19.1	Descriptive statistics of the data used for the empirical analysis	375