Titles include:

Christopher N. Candlin and Jonathan Crichton (editors)
DISCOURSES OF DEFICIT

Jonathan Crichton
THE DISCOURSE OF COMMERCIALIZATION
A Multi-Perspectived Analysis

Cecilia E. Ford
WOMEN SPEAKING UP
Getting and Using Turns in Workplace Meetings

Sue Garton and Keith Richards (editors)
PROFESSIONAL ENCOUNTERS IN TESOL
Discourses of Teachers in Teaching

Rick Iedema (editor)
THE DISCOURSE OF HOSPITAL COMMUNICATION
Tracing Complexities in Contemporary Health Care Organizations

Louise Mullany
GENDERED DISCOURSE IN THE PROFESSIONAL WORKPLACE

Keith Richards
LANGUAGE AND PROFESSIONAL IDENTITY
Aspects of Collaborative Interaction

H. E. Sales
PROFESSIONAL COMMUNICATION IN ENGINEERING
Also by Jonathan Crichton

DISCOURSES OF DEFICIT (co-edited with Christopher N. Candlin)
The Discourse of Commercialization

A Multi-Perspectived Analysis

Jonathan Crichton

University of South Australia, Australia
To Veruschka
This page intentionally left blank
Contents

List of Figures and Table  ix
Acknowledgements  x

1 Introduction  1
- Commercializing education  4
- The question of tension  10
- Discourse analysis and the researcher  12
- Cicourel’s challenge and Candlin’s proposal  15
- Outline of the book  17

2 Why a Multi-Perspectived Approach to Discourse?  20
- Connecting language, context and social theory  20
- Key features of the approach  29
- Developing the perspectives  33
- Design of the study  42
- Selecting and analysing data  45
- Summary of the study  48

3 Framing the Discourse of Commercialization  49
- Motivational relevancies and multiple memberships  49
- Three narratives  50
- Motivating themes  58
- Theoretical starting points  59
- Summary of the analyst’s perspective  67

4 Professional Practice As a Site of Struggle  68
- Analysing the diaries  68
- Relations between teachers, managers and students  70
- Evaluation and appraisal  86
- Implications for other practices  98
- Links to the social-theoretical resources  106
- Summary of the participants’ perspective  108

5 Constructing Communities of Consumption  109
- Analysing the brochures  109
- The construction of a community of consumption  113

vii
Contents

Interdiscursive relations: the brochures and the diaries 118
Teaching, learning and other products and attractions 118
The college as producer 128
Students and readers as consumers 139
Summary of the semiotic resource perspective 150

6 The Role of Macro-Actors in Professional Practice 151
   The discourse of commercialization and contemporary society 151
   Bourdieu’s critique 153
   Explaining meso- and micro-relations 156
   The influence of macro-actors 159
   Subordinating the social to the economic 162
   Summary of the social/institutional perspective 180

7 Understanding Practice and Informing Change 181
   Characterizing communities of consumption 183
   Broadening the field: comparable sites 188
   Issues of policy, practice and change 193

Appendix 1: Diary Coding System 196
Appendix 2: Brochure Coding System 198
References 202
Index 214
List of Figures and Table

Figures

2.1 Outline of the ontology 34
2.2 Outline of the study 44
4.1 Relations between teachers, managers and students 71
5.1 Community of consumption 115

Table

4.1 The diarists 69
I am indebted to Chris Candlin for his encouragement and support through the production of the book and during the research on which it draws. Throughout this journey, his scholarship and insight have been crucial. I would also like to express my gratitude to Rob Barrett for his inspiration and friendship, and to Angela Scarino for her understanding and comments on drafts of the manuscript. Particular thanks also to Priyanka Gibbons and Melanie Blair at Palgrave Macmillan for their patience and sound advice, and to Priya Venkat for her meticulous editing.

For data collection, I have many people to thank, but foremost among these are the teachers who participated in the study.

Finally, I would like to thank my family, especially my wife, Veruschka, for her uncompromising support at every stage, and our children, Elise and Arthur.

I also gratefully acknowledge permission from the ELICOS Association to quote from the newsletter in Chapter 6.